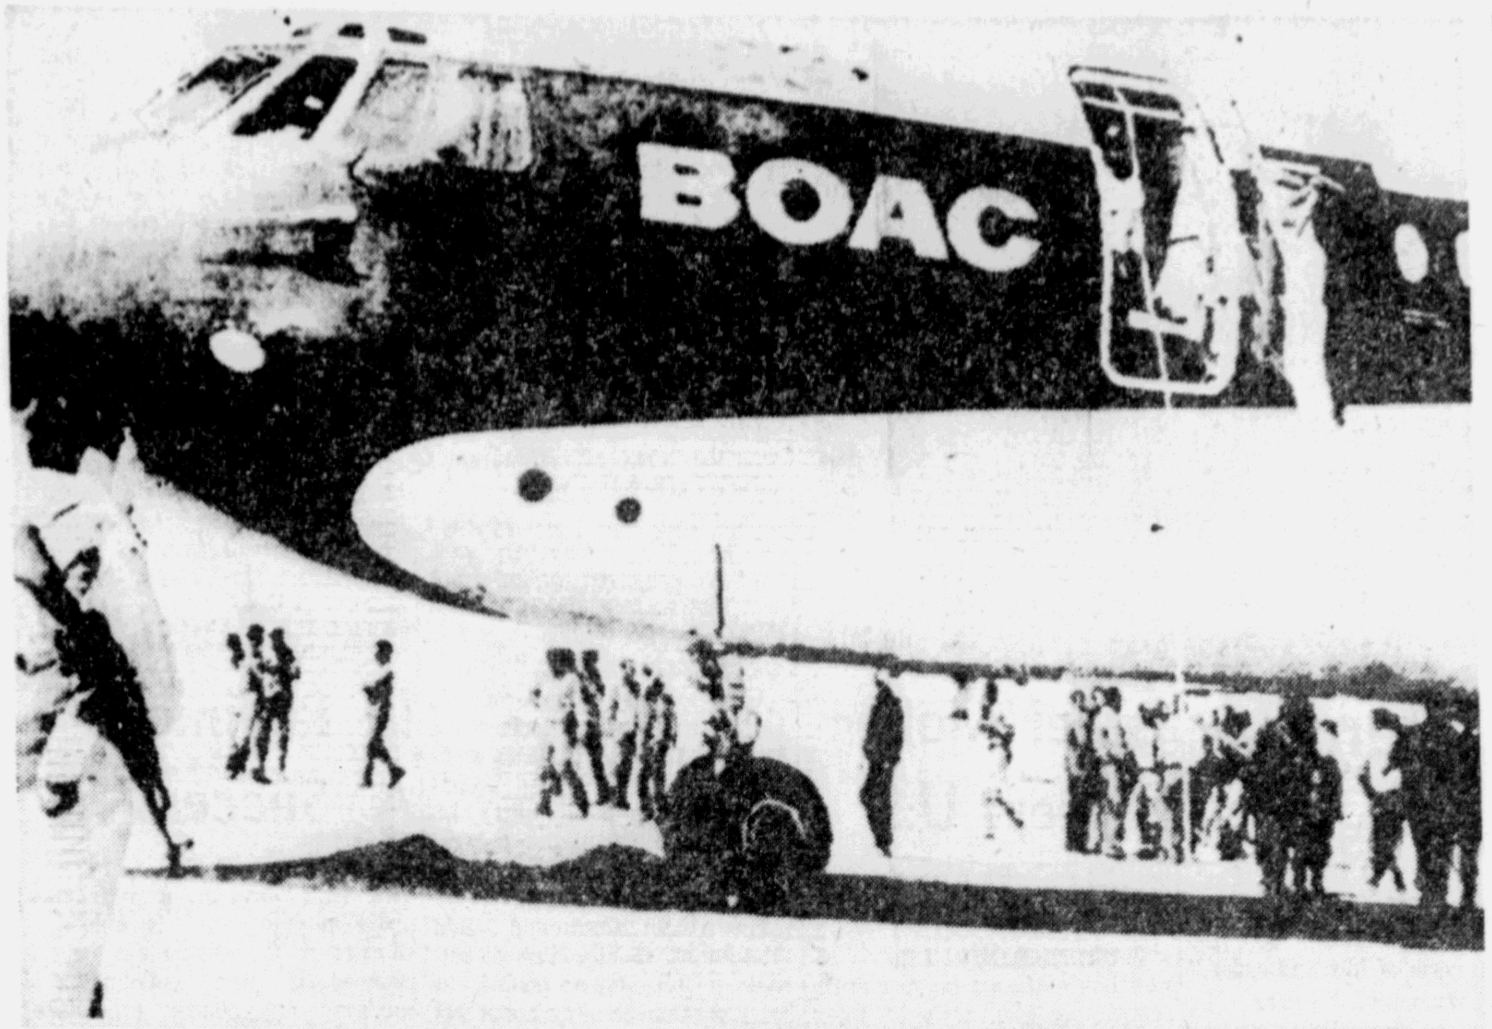
Plane Guards Ordered; New Hostage Tension



AT DAWSON'S FIELD — While an armed guard stands in the doorway of the hijacked BOAC jetliner at Dawson's Field in the Jordanian desert, Palestinian guerrillas and newsmen stand around the plane. The 255 hostages aboard the planes were set to be freed today, but at the last minute the guerrillas changed their mind and reloaded the planes with dynamite. (UPI Cablephoto)

Dynamite Back On Craft

U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Arab guerrillas today released 60 women and children held hostage in Amman but made no move to carry out an earlier promise to transfer "immediately" into the Jordanian capital the 255 other hostages still aboard three hijacked airliners parked on a desert air strip.

An International Red Cross spokesman in Geneva said Arab guerrillas guarding the planes at the air strip northeast of Amman had replaced dynamite aboard the three planes today and were still holding the passengers and crew members aboard the aircraft at nightfall.

"PUSH OF BUTTON"

"The planes can now be blown up at the push of a button," said the Red Cross spokesman, Alain Modoux. "The maintenance of the status quo (at the strip) is equivalent to mental and physical torture, and this must be brought to the attention of all."

Modoux said the guerrillas at Dawson's Field also had ordered a Red Cross medical team of three physicians and five nurses to leave the air strip and stopped trucks carrying medical and sanitary supplies before they reached the strip. The supplies were airlifted by the Red Cross to Amman Thursday.

Later in Washington, the State Department said it had received word from the International Red Cross that Palestinian guerrillas had lifted a 72-hour deadline for agreement on release of the hostages they hold from three hijacked airliners.

A department spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, said canceling of the deadline of 10 p.m. EDT Saturday was "one item of encouraging news" received this morning. He said that it meant "diplomatic efforts will continue for release of all the people in the aircraft."

LEAVE HOTEL

In Amman, the freed hostages left the Inter-Continental hotel in a calvacade of taxis and private cars. A spokesman for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), whose members hijacked the TWA, Swissair and British Overseas Airways Corp. (BOAC) planes, said the freed group was made up of 34 Americans, 17 Indians, 3 Italians, 2 Turks, 2 Greeks and 2 Yugoslavs.

The group was scheduled to fly to Nicosia, capital of the Mediterranean island of Cyprus, on a chartered Jordanian Airlines plane later today.

"I feel fine except I hope we don't get another hijack," said one of the freed hostages, Yvonne Addassi, 8, of Hayward, Calif.

One unidentified mother received her passport and permission to leave from the guerrillas but did not go with the other released hostages because the Palestinians did not return the passport of her 5-year-old daughter.

Earlier today, the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) announced that the passengers and crew members aboard the three planes parked at the air strip would be brought immediately to Amman while negotiations for their release continued. At first the PFLP appeared to go along with the Airliner Security For U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon today ordered armed guards placed on many U.S. commercial airliners, starting tomorrow in both overseas and domestic flights, to combat the menace of air piracy.

In a strongly worded statement, Nixon announced a series of moves to cope with further hijackings and airline sabotage—including greatly increased use of sophisticated equipment for surveillance of passengers, baggage and airports.

The President said he had instructed Secretary of State William P. Rogers to ask the Council of International Civil Aviation Organization to convene an emergency meeting for joint action to suspend airline service with countries that refuse to extradite or punish hijackers involved in what was described as international blackmail.

SUPPORT ORDERS

Peter Flanigan, a Presidential assistant, said that the Airilne Pilots Association and all of the U.S. airlines unanimously concurred in the anti-hijack steps ordered by Nixon in the wake of four hijackings in five days by the Palestinian guerrillas.

The decision to use armed guards on many flights of American airliners — the White House did not specify what routes would be involved either in international or domestic flights—was announced after a White House meeting involving top administration and congressional leaders.

OTHER MEASURES

Nixon also directed the Transportation Department to extend the use of electronic surveillance to all domestic airports and—wherever possible—in other countries.

A large number of guards is already available and are ready to begin their duties immediately, officials said. They will be drawn from the Secret Service and will be supplemented by specially trained members of the armed forces who will serve until an adequate number of civilian guards have been trained.

Flanigan said the cost will be met from a small increase in the $3 head tax for international passengers and a "very slight increase" in the 8 per cent excise tax on all airline tickets.

While participants in the White House meeting mentioned both domestic and overseas flights would be guarded, administration sources said the domestic flights involved would be only those most vulnerable to hijacking.

Most of the U. S. hijackings have involved airliners on routes to or from the Southeast.

It has been estimated that about 4,000 personnel would be needed to guard overseas

IN CANAL AREA

Official Israeli Missile Charge

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israel specifically accused Egypt for the first time today of moving Soviet SAM3 missile batteries closer to the Suez Canal cease-fire zone. It was Israel's 13th protest lodged since the military standstill went into effect Aug. 7.

Previous Israeli accusations have involved SAM2s. The SAM3 are designed to attack low flying aircraft and have been manned by Russians. SAM2s are aimed at high flying jets and Israeli military leaders believe they are targeted by Egyptians aided by Russian advisers.

In Amman, joint teams of Jordanian troops and Palestinian guerrillas patrolled the streets urging residents back to their shops and businesses as a shaky truce brought a halt to 11 days of bitter fighting in the Jordanian capital.

A guerrilla spokesman said 50 persons were killed in fighting Wednesday, but the Middle East News Agency in Cairo said 140 persons were killed and "hundreds" of others were wounded in the clashes which brought Jordan to the brink of civil war. About 350 others were reported killed or wounded in the first nine days of the fighting.

Some shops were open in Amman following a return-to-work appeal by the government. UPI correspondent Ray Wilkinson reported after a walking tour of the city that "despite outward calm you could still see fear on the faces of the people."

Israeli officials viewed the latest alleged cease-fire violation as especially serious since the SAM3s designed to attack low flying aircraft have been manned by Russions.

"SAM3 missile batteries have been advanced to the area extending from the canal up to 31 miles west of it," the Israeli military spokesman said. "Construction and other preparational work for surface-to-air missiles along the area extending west of the canal and within

Nixon Hits Congress For Lag On His Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon accused the Democratic-controlled Congress today of tinkering with old programs while failing to act on recommendations of his where "there is an unmistakable national judgment that something needs to be done."

The President's latest criticism of congressional inaction on his programs was coupled with a call for both the Republican administration and the Democratic legislative leadership to forego partisanship in tackling "issues of national importance."

He sent an 11,000-word message to the House and Senate running over in detail the recommendations from making the military draft more equitable to reforming welfare laws.

Nixon's message listed 16 broad categories and more than two score specific measures Congress has failed to act on, including: Draft reform, welfare reform, proposals to share federal revenues with the states, manpower reform, social security reform, electoral reform, foreign trade, anticrime measures, a multibillion dollar educating package, consumer protection measures and a family assistance program.

He renewed his commitment to switching ultimately to an all-volunteer army—"the only long-range solution" to inherent unfairness of the draft.

His so-called family assistance plan to overhaul the present patchwork of welfare plans, he said, "is the keystone of income strategy for the elimination of poverty in the United States."

Nixon also cited among major proposals still pending in Congress his anticrime package to meet what he said was the need to restore "the individual American's freedom from violence in his home and on the streets."

And he also reaffirmed his support for a proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the electoral college in favor of direct election of the President.

Inverness Relying On Truck Water

Approximately 100 people near Inverness have been relying since Tuesday on trucked-in water since a water storage tank was discovered to be empty, according to Gen. Mayor Gerald D. Griffith, of Citizens Utilities Company of California, which serves the area.

Two fire tankers, a thousand-gallon unit from Point Reyes Station and a 1,500 gallon unit from Woodacre, were pressed into service Tuesday to bring water to the storage tank which supplies residents of the Inverness Park and Silver Hills areas.

Residents of the affected area don't seem to mind the inconvenience. "It's very nice water, actually," said Sally Wallace. "It's the best we've had."

Marin County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom was not available for comment and other members of the department did not know when the situation would be fixed.

UAW Rejects Second Proposal From GM

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. today made a second contract proposal to the United Auto Workers, offering to boost wages by 9.1 per cent in the first year. The union rejected the proposal and said unless it was improved, "there will be a strike" at midnight Monday.

Drydocks Facing Demolition Order

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court today ordered demolition or removal of the four wooden drydocks bogged down in Richardson Bay.

The next step in the long campaign by county officials to get rid of the structures will be for the public works department to draft specifications so the job can be put out to bid, according to Deputy County Counsel Joseph A. Forest.

The judge ordered that the sheriff, who has been appointed receiver for the docks, authorize the drafting of specifications. Lt. Leland L. Brown, a civil division chief acting for Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, has been handling the matter.

Forest said that Judge Gardiner did not make a decision as to who will receive any proceeds from the sale of materials salvaged from the docks but ordered the sheriff to take custody of any such receipts.

Forest said he thought that beams from the docks would be saleable and described them as similar to large ones used in the Strawberry Shopping Center.

No estimate of the cost of removing the drydocks has been made, Forest said.

The docks have been the subject of court action since the late Delmar D. Wise of Diesel Engineering and Maintenance Co. brought them to Sausalito four years ago.

The present owner, J. Christopher Roberts of Mill Valley, had earlier announced plans to move them closer to Sausalito and refit them into a lotus-shaped cultural center. The Marin Board of Supervisors, however, passed an emergency ordinance in July forbidding moving drydocks without a permit.

Clean Air Surveyors Blast Utility Growth

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Bay Area never again will have clean air if the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. is allowed to continue to grow so rapidly, a Stanford University study of air pollution concluded yesterday. (Another pollution control story, page 34.)

"There are definite limits to the amount of growth the Bay Area can sustain and still remain worth living in; PG&E seems largely unconscious of such limits," the report declared.

The 380-page report was compiled by 70 graduate and undergraduate students in a nine-month study of air pollution.

The students criticized the mammoth utility for encouraging rapid development of the region, development that inevitably creates new sources of air pollution in addition to new power plants.

The utility was commended for doing "a great deal to reduce its direct contributions to air pollution," but the students' report also said that "its policy of unbridled growth threatens to increase the amount of pollution from other sources."

The utility's sales doubled over the past 10 years, the report noted, adding that "PG&E rhetoric places the blame for the skyrocketing energy demand on the consumer; they depict themselves as simply serving people's needs.

"Actually, the company is not so innocent. They spend enormous amounts of money on advertising — strange activity for a company with no competitors. The constant theme is 'consume more energy.'"

"Buy a dryer, or a dishwasher, PG&E customers are urged, along with their monthly bills. At Christmas time, PG&E even raffled off electric blankets," the students noted.

They also faulted the utility's encouragement of heavy industry to move into the Bay Area through advertisements in eastern newspapers.

The utility is spending more than $1 million a day on new construction, the report said.

Farmer Ahead

ALTANTA (UPI) — Peanut farmer Jimmy Carter pulled off one of the great upsets in Georgia political history, but missed winning the Democratic gubernatorial nomination without a runoff, latest vote returns showed today.

21 To Run For Posts In Marin

Five candidates will run for three posts on the Marin County Hospital District board of directors in the November election, and seven will seek one seat on the Fairfax School District board of trustees.

There will be no election for the Tamalpais High School District board and for the Terra Linda Parks and Recreation board because not enough candidates filed.

Marin Hospital District, three vacancies — George H. Folsom, incumbent; Marion C. Ibach, incumbent; Thomas K. Procter, incumbent; W. R. McCall, airline captain; Robert W. Schrier, physician.

Fairfax School District, one vacancy — Marilyn J. Birks, housewife; Stanley W. Little, utility rate engineer; Harry Murphy, advertising executive; David R. Seyler, policeman; Paris B. Simmons, teacher; Thomas A. Truchan, teacher and textbook writer; and Joann Ruth Walla, cytotechnologist.

Terra Linda Recreation and Park District, two vacancies — Robert N. Bennett. (no election.)

Hurricane Ella To Hit Coasts

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) —Small but swift Hurricane Ella swirled 90-mile-an-hour winds, torrential rain and high tides today toward the coasts of Texas and Mexico. Thousands fled.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said the summer's fifth hurricane would hit the shoreline late today south of Brownsville.

Ella picked up strength but slowed its unusually speedy course across the Gulf of Mexico during the morning.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Manson Link

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Manson's hippie followers now are being called at the Tate murder trials in attempts to tie the 35-year-old ex-convict into the slayings.

Thomas J. Walleman, a bald, bearded young man, testified Thursday he once saw Manson carry into a Hollywood apartment a long-barreled revolver similar to the one the state says was used at the Tate home.

Waleman recited a story of receiving a phone call from an unidentified woman and setting out with Manson because "a guy was going out to the ranch and do us in."

He said Manson got a long-barreled revolver and they drove together to an apartment in Hollywood and entered it. The prosecution ended its questioning of Walleman at that point without asking him to relate what happened once they got inside.

Bankers Arrested

BASEL, Switzerland (UPI) — Four former officers of the United California Bank (UCB) have been arrested and are being held for investigation, the Basel prosecutor's office said Thursday.

The UCB announced Tuesday its Basel branch had suffered nearly $30 million in losses from unauthorized trading in cocoa.

The arrested officers were unidentified, but officials said one was a vice president. The vice president of the UCB's Basel affiliate Paul E. Erdman, an American, resigned last Sunday.

The prosecutor's office said an emergency audit already had provided sufficient evidence to warrant the arrests. Financial sources said the losses had been concealed from government bank inspectors.

Wants War Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge, refusing to dismiss a suit challenging the Vietnam War's legality, wants the U.S. Supreme Court to rule on its constitutionality.

U.S. District Court Judge William T. Sweigert rejected Thursday a government request that he dismiss a suit brought by three Berkeley law students, all military reservists.

He declined to rule on their suit, however, until federal attorneys file an answer to the pleadings.

His decision, he declared, was designed "to further . . . an ultimate ruling by our Ninth Circuit and, hopefully, by the Supreme Court."

"It has already been charged that the failure of the courts to decide the constitutional question . . . has contributed to the controversy and the consequent unprecedented disunity in our country on the Vietnam War issue," the judge wrote.

Cigarette Attack

Jesse L. Steinfeld told the conference of the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health that authorities could "prevent hundreds of thousands of deaths due to pulmonary and cardiac diseases if we would apply our knowledge regarding the hazards of cigarette smoking."

"I believe the time is ripe for government and voluntary groups to mount a much more vigorous program on all fronts to portray cigarette smoking for what it really is — a dirty, smelly, foul, chronic form of suicide with the added uncertainty of Russian roulette for the individual smoker," he said.

Diphtheria Shots

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — With the number of persons having contracted diphtheria nearing 100, Gov. Preston Smith says he will call for a law requiring all Texas school children be immunized against diphtheria and five other diseases.

Health officials reported three more confirmed cases of diphtheria Thursday. Since the first of the year, 93 diphtheria cases have been confirmed, 63 since Aug. 1.

City Health Director William R. Ross ordered quarantine signs posted on the homes of all persons having diphtheria or who are known carriers of the disease. Anyone leaving the homes are subject to $1,000 fines.

Attacks Militants

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The religious leader of 6.3 million American Negroes suggests militants "whose rhetoric would turn our society into a jungle of wild beasts" be walled off from the rest of society.

"I believe in dissent," Dr. Joseph H. Jackson of Chicago said Thursday. "But I do not believe in destruction."

Jackson, president of the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc., made the statement before 20,000 delegates to the sect's 90th annual meeting.

Jackson, re-elected president of the group later Thursday, said the nation's penal code should be revised in light of increasing militance to cope with "group crime as opposed to individual criminals." He said "destructionists" had no place in American society.

Typhoon Georgia Loses Strength

MANILA (UPI) — Typhoon Georgia weakend into a tropical storm today, as it crossed Luzon 180 miles north of Manila and headed out into the South China Sea.

The weather bureau said that at 2 p.m. Georgia was 27 miles north of the mountain resort of Baguio, heading west northwest at 13 miles per hour with maximum center winds of 67 m.p.h.

It was expected to pass over the Luzon coast later today, and possibly pick up speed slightly as it heads for the Chinese mainland.

Previn, Mia Are Married

LONDON (UPI)—Conductor Andre Previn and Actress Mia Farrow were married Thursday, a spokesman for Previn said today.

Miss Farrow gave birth to twin boys Feb. 26. Previn, principal conductor of the London symphony orchestra, said he was the father.

Miss Farrow, 26, is the former wife of singer Frank Sinatra. Previn's divorce from his wife of 11 years, Dory, became final last month.

Johnson Back In Politics: Texas Style

Johnson was in his old familiar form Thursday night when he delivered a jocular endorsement speech for Democratic Senate candidate Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr.

"I announce to you people of the nation that we are going to send Lloyd Bentsen to the U.S. Senate," Johnson said at the candidate's black tie, $100-a-plate fund raising dinner.

"There are a couple of other things I would like to say," the former President said. "I am not angry at anybody. Things are peaceful where I come from. I don't have any ugly things to say about the Republican Party.

KNOWS HIM WELL

"I know Mr. Bentsen's opponent real well. I am not going to say anything ugly about him. I knew his father well. I sat across the aisle in the senate with him years ago. I believe he was the minority senator from Connecticut.

"And now, if I wanted a senator from Connecituct, and his son was running, and he would change parties, and if I lived in Connecticut, I would vote for him down the line.

"I almost always agree with (former Texas Gov.) John Connally. We agree more often than two men should. I don't agree nearly as often with John Tower."

SPECIAL ELECTION

(Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., won a special election to the Senate in 1960 to replace Johnson when he became vice president.)

"But I do agree with something John Tower said in 1966 (when Tower was re-elected for a second term). He said Texas needs one republican and one Democruat in the U.S. Senate. It's important not to disappoint John Tower and not to disappoint me."

Irish Bombing

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A bomb today damaged the offices of the Irish Dairy Board, police said. No injuries were reported.

Agnew Blasts Demo's 'Troglodytic Leftists'

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew pledging to 'blow the whistle' from coast to coast on ultra liberals in Congress, launched a six-day campaign trip Thursday with attacks on "pusillanimous pussyfooting' and "troglodytic leftists."

The vice president, who sent reporters and audiences alike thumbing through dictionaries, even coined a new word — "radiclibs" — as he spoke to crowds at Springfield, Ill., and at Casper to begin a six-state tour.

It was at Springfield that Agnew assailed 'pussillanimous pussyfooters," 'troglyodytic leftists," "whimpering isolationism," "mulish obstructionism," and "radiclibs, the latter an Agnew word combining radical and liberal.

"There was a time when the liberalism of the old (Democratic) elite was a venturesome and fighting philosophy — the vanguard political dogma of a Franklin Roosevelt, a Harry Truman, a John Kennedy," Agnew said.

"But the old firehorses are long gone. Today's breed of radical-liberal posturing about the Senate is about as closely related to a Harry Truman as a chihuahua is to a timber wolf.

"Ultra-liberalism today translates into a whimpering isolationism in foreign policy, a mulish obstructionism in domestic policy, and a pusillanimous pussyfooting on the critical issue of law and order."

In Wyoming, where he received an enthusiastic ovation from a crowd of more than 4,000, he pledged to "blow the whistle" on radical liberals who now were "in a mad scramble to the center.

"These radical liberals have taken over the Democratic Party in Congress," Agnew said. "But now we come to election time, and a strange political alchemy is taking place. Since the views of the radical congressmen are so completely at variance with the majority of Americans, they have begun a mad scramble to the center."

Agnew said the "new election-time patriot is still our old undependable friend — the radical liberal. The overnight hardliner on crime is still the old bleeding heart, now worried about his seat.

"These men — these sheep in wolves' clothing — are trying to pull the fastest switchero in American politics. But I intend to blow the whistle on them from Maine to California and they are not going to get away with it."

Agnew was in Illinois to support the re-election bid of freshman Republican Sen. Ralph T. Smith, battling against Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III, and in Wyoming to back Republican congressman John Wold in his effort to unseat Democratic Sen. Gale Mc Gee.

Air Crash Blamed On FAA Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Transportation Safety Board has blamed an in-flight collision between a jetliner and a private plane near Indianapolis last year on outdated Federal Aviation Agency air traffic control rules.

The FAA immediately responded that the collision occurred simply because the pilots of the two planes didn't see each other.

A student pilot and all 83 persons aboard the Allegheny Airlines DC9 were killed in the accident Sept. 9, 1969.

The safety board specifically criticized the FAA's practice of allowing planes not under the direction of air traffic controllers to mix in congested air space over airports with planes under instrument control.

Israel Makes Biggest U.S. Arms Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israel has made its biggest arms request to the United States and, for the first time, is asking it be allowed to buy on credit.

This report came Thursday from Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., chairman of an Armed Services subcommittee that visited Israel last week, and Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., who also made the trip.

They said Israeli officials told them they have submitted a "shopping list" to the U.S. Defense Department for arms purchases over the next two years totaling $800 million.

The Israelis refused a detailed breakdown, the congressman said, but indicated their requests included F4 Phantom fighter-bombers, A4 Skyhawk jets, helicopters, Hawk antiaircraft missiles, tanks, bombs, radar and both ground and aerial electronic equipment intended to help detect Soviet missile emplacements in Egypt.

Both congressmen said they favored allowing Israel to buy on credit to help match the Soviet buildup of arms to Egypt and other Arab nations.

Egg-Throwers

OEREBRO, Sweden (UPI)—Three youths aged 17 to 21, charged with throwing eggs at U.S. Ambassador Jerome H. Holland last May, were convicted Thursday and fined for insulting a foreign power, court spokesmen said.

Cambodians Ready For Red Attack

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian government troops who broke the 60-day siege of Kompong Thom are prepared for a counterattack by Communist forces, a high command spokesman said today.

He said the troops also have opened the waterways to the southwest of the city without resistance and they now are "completely secure." The lack of resistance probably was because of high flood waters, which enabled the gunboats to reach the besieged city and to open the flooded area between Kompong Thom and the lake on Tonle Sap, 30 miles to the southwest.

Intelligence reports indicated "an unknown percentage" of the 2,000-man Communist force around Kompong Thom had withdrawn toward Siem Reap. 60 miles to the northwest, the spokesman said. Siem Reap was the scene of a Communist attack earlier this week.

Despite the lack of resistance so far, the spokesman said, "we are prepared for an attack —in fact we are trying to draw them (the Communists) out so that we can kill them."

U.S. military spokesmen in Saigon said two American 4th Infantry Division troopers were killed and two wounded Thursday morning in a bitter 20-minute firefight in the Central Highlands about 262 miles northeast of Saigon.

The U.S. Command said Communist mortar fire directed at a U.S. Marine position in the mountain country about 342 miles north-northeast of Saigon landed in the nearby village of Hoan, killing three Vietnamese civilians and wounding 13 others. Two other rounds landed in the Leatherneck outpost but caused no casualties or damage.

Military officials said that in another ground action, one member of the 3rd Brigade, 9th Infantry Divison was killed and five wounded Thursday when their unit received small arms and rocket-propelled grenade fire in the jungles 21 miles east-southeast of Saigon. Communist losses were not known.

The Rev. Carl McIntire arrived in Saigon Friday to personally urge South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky to attend an Oct. 3 "Rally for Victory" in Washington. He said "I want to talk to the vice president face to face as a companion in battle. I want him to know that we want him to come to the United States."

Ky had accepted the invitation but was reported reconsidering it after the South Vietnamese embassy in Washington recommended against his attending due to possible demonstrations. McIntire said he wanted to reassure Ky he would be in no danger from antiwar extremists if he visited the United States.

He said the ground troops moving towards Kompong Thom from Phnom Penh 80 miles to the south have moved another five miles without resistance Thursday but came to a standstill 32 miles from the city when faced with a blown bridge. They have been making their way towards Kompong Thom for five days.

First Bussing In Richmond A 'Success'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The first day of a bussing program in the Richmond District of San Francisco was pronounced "an outstanding success" by school officials Thursday.

Some 2,100 children were transported in 26 buses to 12 elementary schools in the neighborhood where whites, blacks, Orientals and Spanish-speaking people live.

"I am pleased with what happened today," said Superintendent of Schools Dr. Thomas Shaheen, "andc I think the momentum will pick up during the years."

"The teachers and parents showed great enthusiasm," he said.

The racial balance of one school, Sutro, changed in the following way: 58.7 per cent white and Spanish-speaking, compared to 66.8 per cent last year; 26 per cent Oriental compared to 23.7 per cent last year; and 15 per cent black compared to 5.3 per cent last year. Four per cent of the students last year were of "other" races.

ORDERS OUT OF INQUEST

A security officer beckons Bob Fernandez, 29, after Fernandez disrupted the first day of a coroner's inquest into the death of newsman Ruben Salazar. Salazar was killed when a tear gas projectile hit him on the head during a riot in East Los Angeles, Calif. last month. Mexican-American spectators trooped out of the Los Angeles inquest twice yesterday after denouncing the hearing.

Waddell Smith Widow Sues: $345,000

The widow and stepson of the late Col. Waddell F. Smith, great-grandson of a Pony Express Founder, yesterday filed suits in Marin Superior Court charging that Smith reneged on a promise to adopt the youth and asking $345,000 from his estate.

In two suits against the estate's executor, attorney Herbert K. Walton Jr., of San Rafael, Mariana B. Smith described how the late colonel allegedly made the promise when he proposed to her.

Mrs. Smith, a Swedish divorcee, said that Smith, a longtime bachelor, asked her to marry him in 1958 and "in connection with this proposal" said he would adopt her son, Chris Dahlgren, then 6 years old.

Because of this promise, Mrs. Smith said, she gave up plans to return to Sweden, and married Smith.

After the marriage Mrs. Smith said that the boy was given the name "Waddell F. Smith Jr.," which he used from that time on.

Although Smith publicly stated that he had adopted the boy, now 18, he never did so legally, Mrs. Smith said in the suit.

In January, 1959, Colonel Smith drew up a will under which young Smith, now a college freshman, inherited $1,000. The will stated that Smith had no natural or adopted children.

Mrs. Smith received $45,000 under the will, which is still in probate. The estate, which includes the family home in San Rafael known as the Pony Express Retreat, was estimated at $250,000 at the time of Smith's death in January.

He left the house, which includes a museum of early western artifacts, to the county, which turned it down. Under the will a niece and nephew will receive it if the state doesn't want it.

Mrs. Smith asked on behalf of her son $245,000 for various causes including his education and damages because Smith broke his agreement.

She asked $126,000 for herself.

An article from a San Francisco newspaper attached to the suit and written 18 months after the Smiths' marriage described how Smith had adopted the child and said that the boy's "home is a paradise."

Utility Board To Hold Forum On Pollution

The Independent-Journal erred Wednesday in reporting that a forum discussion on "Pollution and Related Problems in Bolinas", scheduled for today at 8 p.m., had been organized by Vernon Bradley of Bolinas.

The meeting, which will include talks by state, county and regional officials, was organized and is being sponsored by the Bolinas Community Public Utility District. It will be held in the district office, 270 Elm Road.

YMCA Meeting Sign-Up Starts

Registration has opened to all Marin high school students wanting to participate in this year's three-day Yosemite Youth Conference sponsored by the YMCA.

Delegates to the three-day conference beginning Nov. 27, will meet in small groups to explore the social issues that concern them, and where possible, offer solutions to social problems.

Call Sounded For Sausalito To Take On Self-Sufficient Image

Sausalito planning commissioners agreed last night that the city should try to shake loose of its traditional status as mainly a bedroom community for San Francisco and become self-sufficient.

Toward this end they proposed that there be no housing east of Bridgeway, including the Marinship area, except for hotels and boatels.

It was proposed by Commissioner Violetta Autumn that the Marinship area be devoted to commercial and light industrial uses that would provide jobs for local residents.

"The idea is for Sausalito to be self-sufficient and not a bedroom for San Francisco," she said.

It was conceded that there always will be commuters, but there was a hope that more people could both work and live in the community.

Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt said the Marinship area can be very productive and help maintain a semblance of community balance. There are areas other than Marinship that are more suitable for housing, he contended.

Mrs. Autumn's advocacy of a self sufficient community came at a public hearing on proposed revisions to the city's General Plan.

She proposed a limit on the population ceiling of the city, and proposed as a step toward this end, a ban on housing along the waterfront. "Any more houses would increase problems."

Chariman Robert L. Nissen said this would require a major change in the Marinship plan, which permits housing. Marinship property owners should be notified of the proposal and a public hearing held, he said.

William Clark a planner and lone member of the audience aside from an Independent-Journal reporter, doubted that people working in the Marinship area could afford to live in Sausalito.

As for housing in the area, Commissioner Evert Heynneman pointed out there would be "480 apartments across the street," referring to the Whiskey Springs Development at the site of the former American Distillery Co. plant.

The vote for the self-sustaining policy was 3-1 with Commissioner Thomas E. Gildersleeve dissenting because he wasn't ready to vote to preclude waterfront housing without further study. Commissioner John M. Davis was absent.

Planning consultant William E. Spangle of Menlo Park said Sausalito has been a "Commute town all this time," and wondered how much of a change commissioners were contemplating.

Commissioners said the city "should work toward a reasonably self-sufficient community, recognizing the goal can't be fully attained," but nevertheless should move toward it.

Spangle reprted that he had allowed for 1,500 persons living in the Marinship area in compiling the city's ultimate population capacity.

In light of their new "self-sufficiency" policy, the commission called for an intensive review of the Marinship Plan.

After two hours of item-by-item study, the commission recommended about 35 revisions in the General Plan, most of them changes to make the plan consistent with the recently adopted Central Waterfront Plan and incorporate the Marinship Plan.

They split 3-1 with Nissen dissenting on a recommendation that the present City Hall be retained for public use. Nissen said he didn't think the City Hall should be at that location and didn't think the building should be retained for public use.

Funds from the sale of city hall could be used to place City Hall "at a proper location," and "I think there are sufficient areas for public use downtown," he said.

Commissioners deleted a passage calling for a single elementary school at the Bayside School Site to serve the area, an educational park plan that had previously failed to win voter approval.

"We don't want the city in the position of prejudging the school district's plan," Nissen said.

They added as a community goal encouragement of bicycle paths and pedestrian walkways, which will serve as an alternative to automobile traffic.

Commissioners adjourned until 8 p.m. Sept. 16 at city hall for their next regular meeting.

BART Workers Postpone Strike

OAKLAND (UPI)—A strike against the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, scheduled to start today, was postponed by the United Public Employes Union Local 390.

The union said BART management has agreed to attend a meeting next Monday under auspices of the California State Conciliation Service in an effort to settle the issues.

About 40 employes of BART are involved. The Alameda County Labor Council and other union officials had assured them support of a strike.

Back To School Dance To Be At High School

Performances of the Novato Professional Firemen's Association Circus will be at 2 and 8 p.m. tomorrow, rather than 1 and 8 p.m. at reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal through a typographical error.

San Anselmo Plans To Review Sign Proposals

The San Anselmo City Council will hold a special meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in city hall to review a proposed revised sign ordinance.

The revised ordinance was approved by the city's planning commission in May and includes these revisions: (1) window displays of merchandise will not be considered signs; (2) method of measurement will be the sum of the two smallest adjoining rectangles which can encompass the sign; (3) plant nurseries will be included among those businesses which may have signs with changeable copy.

In some ways it's as good as a sports car.

A sports car should have bucket seats like we do.

A sports car should have a four-speed stick shift like we do.

And, any sports car worth its stripes should have torsion bars. And four-wheel independent suspension, like we do.

But unlike most sports cars, we have a rear-mounted air-cooled engine like the Porsche.

We have fuel injection instead of a carburetor like the Alfa Romeo and the Mercedes-Benz.

Of course, our car isn't as fast as a sports car.

But then, it isn't exactly a sports car.

It has a roomy rear seat like a sedan.

By now we think we've made our point:

The Volkswagen Type 3.

But you know what's even nicer about this car?

It only costs $2446

And about $2000 less than the average sports car. The Volkswagen Type 3

In some ways it's better.

A LITTLE TOO NEIGHBORLY

A car belonging to Marian Claire MacLean of 202 Marinda Drive, Fairfax, nestles in the shattered living room wall of the 118 Marinda Drive home of neighbor Elmo De Martini. Mrs. MacLean, 41, was backing the car out of her driveway when it began accelerating backwards and was still accelerating when it crashed into the home smashing windows, furniture and the wall. Mrs. MacLean and her son, William Dean, 15, who said he was dragged by the open driver's side door, said they would consult a private physican for treatment of injuries. Police gave no explanation of why the car went out of control.

The spokesman said the complaint based on data gathered Thursday was submitted to the U. N. cease-fire observers in Jerusalem. The first 11 complaints dealt with deployment of additional SAM2s and the 12th with alleged Egyptian mistreatment of Israeli prisoners.

The spokesman also said an Israeli army patrol shot and wounded three Arabs in occupied Gaza City today when they ignored a challenge to identify themselves and attempted to escape.

In Washington, two congressman said Thursday Israel presented its biggest "shopping list" of military hardware to date and for the first time requested credit terms.

The request totalled $800 million and included F4 Phantoms, A4 Skyhawks, helicopters, Hawk missiles, tanks, bombs, radar and other electronic gear.

Egyptian Minister of National Guidance Mohammed Hassanein Heikal said in Cairo American Middle East policy has been designed to eliminate the Soviet presence from the area, to keep Israel strong and the Arabs weak, and to cripple Egypt's role in the region.

Heikal said in his weekly column in the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram the primary aim of the U.S. peace initiative which led to the 90-day Suez Canal cease-fire was to face "the Soviet military move in the area which pushed up the temperature in the (Arab-Israeli) struggle."

flights of American carriers. There are 14,730 daily domestic flights of all kinds, according to the Air Transport Association, and only a fraction of those would be involved in the guard protection.

There are about 125 trans-Atlantic flights a day involving U. S. carriers and presumably all of these would be guarded.

Administration sources said civilian personnel drawn from the Federal Aviation Administration and the Treasury Department would likely be the first used for the on-plane protection, with military police —who would make up the bulk of the force —joining later. The FAA already has an undisclosed number of "sky marshals."

Airline sources said the FAA and the Treasury have begun a crash program at Kennedy International Airport in New York to train guards.

Overdose Treated

Avis Ann Kabot, 37, of 1704 Lincoln, Apt. 3, San Rafael was treated at Marin General Hospital at 4:48 a.m. today for an overdose of pills. She telephoned the Jim Dunbar show on radio station KGO to report she had taken the pills and he called the San Rafael police, they reported.

New Hostage Tension At Guerrilla Airstrip

decision, but they made no subsequent move to follow it up. Later a PFLP guerrilla issued a statement at the air strip saying:

"The passengers on the planes will not be released until our demands are met."

The guerrillas have demanded the release of seven Palestinian commandos imprisoned in Great Britain, Switzerland and West Germany in exchange for women, children, elredly and sick hostages and the release of an unspecified number of guerrillas held in Israel as ransom for the remaining healthy men held as hostages.

The nations involved have rejected the two-part exchange and are seeking the release of all passengers.

In Geneva, the Red Cross protested the "inhuman conditions" imposed on the passengers. The TWA and Swissair planes have been on the hot, dusty airfield since Sunday and the BOAC plane was hijacked Wednesday.

The Palestine Liberation Oorganization (PLO), a large central body of Arab guerrilla groups, has said earlier in Amman the hostages would be moved "for humanitarian reasons."

During yesterday's tension at the desert airstrip the Red Cross team reported that an American woman gave birth today to an infant aboard the TWA aircraft. The report said there were no problems.

However, there was no further information of the mother or even the sex of the baby.

Also yesterday the guerrillas released 22 persons from BOAC plane, including 22-year-old Leslie Pressley, an English girl and her 23-year-old fiance Ali Al Sharif. Today they were in Beirut, awaiting air travel to London — their destination when the plane was skyjacked.

Meanwhile in Chicago, Rev. Paul Lindstrom, head of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, said today he has learned the United tSates government would consider accepting the release of Gentiles held by Arab hijackers in exchange for captive Arab terrorists, leaving Jewish - American passengers behind.

Lindstrom spoke at an early-morning news conference with Rabbi Yisrael Trachtman, father of a 10-year-old boy held among passengers on a Trans World Airlines plane hijacked last Sunday to a desert airfield in Jordan.

In Washington, State Department officials stressed that the United States was seeking the release of all the passengers. But they could not categorically exclude the possibility that a deal might have to be reached whereby the majority of passengers would be freed but that those of Jewish faith might be left behind.

Four Injured In Sonoma Wreck

Four Southern Sonoma residents were treated at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma for injuries received in a one-car accident at 2:20 a.m. today on Highway 101 near Highway 116 in Petaluma.

Treated for scalp and facial cuts were: Raymond Kolby, 33, and William St. Jean, 29, both of 1401 Sarkesian Drive, Petaluma; Gary Johnson, 25, of 9 Jess Drive, Petaluma, and Michele Ridout, 21, of 336 East Main Street, Cotati.

The California Highway Patrol said that Kolby, who was driving the car in which the others were passengers, swerved to avoid a slow moving truck and his car then hit a concrete wall.

Cars Colide, Go Through Window

A collision of two cars at 5:55 p.m. yesterday at Fourth Street and Lootens Place, San Rafael, sent both cars into the window of the J. C. Penny Department Store, and injured both drivers,

Candace Arlynne Shepardson, 22, of 104 A Merrydale Road, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for scrapes on both knees and elbows and a bruised abdomen.

Dennis Edward Miller, 18, of 1118 Ruhlman Lane, Novato, was taken to Marin General Hospital, transferred to Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital and then to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco. He was reported in good condition today by the hospital, suffering with a broken left leg and cut left arm.

Miller's car, going west on Fourth Street, collided with the Shepardson car going north on Lootens Place.

Drive To Replace Burned Costumes

The Marin Shakespeare Festival board decided last night to try to raise $3,000 by direct appeals and two special performances to replace costumes destroyed in a fire Aug. 31.

Barbara Young, administrator for the festival board, said that spontaneous community donations of money have been good, but that additional money to replace the costumes will have to be raised by asking for donations from the audience at each performance.

Also, an original scenario written by festival executive director John Brebner will be performed Nov. 10 at Morrison Planetarium in San Francisco with proceeds going to the festival as will money raised at a special Christmas show in December at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club.

YOGI VISITS MARIN — Yogi Bhajan, who studied under the same swami who instructed India's Prime Minister Indira Ghandi, explains the scientific basis of a discipline he says is 28,000 years old. 'WE DON'T SELL GOD'

Yogi Sees Permanent 'High' Via Meditation, Not Drugs

By MICHAEL A. SMITH

"You Americans use artifical methods to relax yourselves and to escape tension. Your pills and drugs, everyone of these artifical methods will hok you. I can show you a permanent high through meditation."

Yogi Bhajan, master of Kundalini Yoga, the yoga of awareness, is presently teaching his method of meditation to about 50 Marinites, mostly young. A teacher of yoga for 22 years in his native India, the 42-year-old bearded, turbaned and powerfully built yogi left his wife and three children and a government post three years ago to teach the principles of yoga to people in Canada and America.

"I came to America," he explains, "because you seem to be under so much tension here, so much unnecessary tension."

The yogi, presently staying with friends in San Anselmo, who he says will remain here as teachers of his brand of yoga, has set up more than 40 ashrams, or religious retreats, in Canada and the United States during the past two years.

These ashrams, called 3HO — The Happy, Healthy, Holy Organization — are set up to "teach control of the senses and awareness to the consciousness of an individual so that he may be aware of the causes leading to effects and he will be able, through conscious control, not to cause that cause which will have a negative effect," he says.

"We don't sell God," says the yogi. "We show God by making a man see himself as a god. You are God so long as you act like God and think like God. God is within you. So long as you breathe, you are one with God."

The yogi stresses that he is not teaching a religion, but rather a science, and that he hopes to set up a credit course at the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) this year. He is armed with physiological charts showing how various body functions relate directly to the state of a person's mind.

"We know that not all the brain cells work all the time," he says. "There is a neuro (nerve) pocket just below the navel, and if this can be activated, energy passes up the spinal passage, like an electric shock. First this shock affects the pituitary gland and then merges into the pineal gland, which is the 'seal of the soul.' This (pineal gland) normally doesn't work after seven years of age, but once it starts working again, it is called intuitive power and through this intuitive power you can know the effects of a cause before the cause occurs.

"You have perfect power of self correction and you don't cause a negative result. You are a positive man.

"What more do you want?" he asks, laughing.

"Between you and that unseen thing which we call God, there is one link and that link is called breath. If breath, if this basic life force, can be channelled into the body psychic centers, then there is the absolute possibility that we can have strong nerves to face any situation and to develop absolute tolerance."

This development of tolerance, says the yogi, will lead to love and "then you are a living God on Earth."

Two followers of Yogi Bhajan's Kundalini Yoga, Stephen S. Samuels, 28, of 45 Oak Road in Larkspur and Paul Ehrlich, 26, of the Rock Island Line Health Food Store in Sausalito, say that they both have sampled the drug scene and that the yogi's teaching helped birng them out of it. Both are now teaching Kundalini Yoga at classes in Sausalito and San Anselmo and see yoga as an alternative not only to drugs, but to all crutches for relieving tension.

"You don't need drugs to find peace," says Samuels. "We happened to have used them, but there are many who have turned on to yoga and found peace without using drugs."

"We'd like to keep others from making the same mistakes we did," adds Ehrlich. He says that yoga has taught him to get rid of his own ego and to act like a god at all times.

Yogi Bhajan plans to leave Marin County shortly, but he will leave behind several teachers of his science and a 3HO office at 1915-A Bridgeway in Sausalito.

Armed Robbery At Larkspur Station

Archer's Chevron Station in Larkspur was robbed Wednesday of about $200 in cash by a pistol waving masked man, police reported today.

Police said the robber entered the service station at about 11 p.m. as two employees were locking up and counting the day's receipts.

Wearing a stocking mask and training a .45 caliber pistol on the two attendants, the man first ordered them to lie on the office floor and then demanded the money, officers said. He then fled on foot to an alley across from the station at 532 Magnolia Avenue.

Police said they later found clothing and $250 in checks near the alley while searching for the thief.

Values Up In Larkspur District

The Larkspur School District board was told last night that total assessed valuation withinhhe district had climbed 6.8 per cent.

Supt. Milton S. Cohen said today the county auditor has set the official assessed valuation at $36,000,385. Last year's total was about $34,800,000.

Even with the increase in assessed valuation, Cohen said the district's tax rate rose this year about 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation or $95,060 over last year's budget. This year's budget stands at $1,756,396.

Cohen attributed the increase to a full medical-dental insurance plan for district employees at a cost of about $55,000. Other increases include the district's education program for handicapped children and an 8 per cent pay hike to teachers and classified personnel.

In other business, the board last night approved an agreement with San Francisco State College for the placement of five student teachers in the district at a cost to the college of $360. The board approved the hiring of Kenneth Koutz as a seventh grade science teacher to replace John Compton who requested a release from his contract. Koutz will be paid $7,660 per year.

Cohen also told the board attendance was down 25 students this year. First day attendance figures showed 16,025 students in the district.

Sausalito Hopeful Has Eye On Future

By PAT ANGLE

(Last of four articles on Sausalito School District board candidates)

By running for a seat on the Sausalito School District board in Tuesday's election Robert R. Lyon is hopeful he will be able "to do some good by helping to adjust our society" and working to eliminate some of the serious problems.

"I feel all citizens owe a part of their time to social involvement, service to the community and their fellow men," the 48-year-old insurance executive said to explain his candidacy.

Although he has no children enrolled in the school district, Lyon has a 30-month-old son and feels personally concerned with the district's future.

"I believe in public schools and particularly local public schools," he commented. "I like Sausalito very much and I would like to live here for a long time; I want my child to go to our schools."

Lyon, who became involved in the problems of the Sausalito school system three years ago, feels the district is "at a crossroad right now. If it continues in the way it is going, I am afraid it will eventually self-destruct."

Like the other three school board candidates, he is concerned about the continuing decline in enrollment in the district. "Most of the people who have left have been white parents who feel there is a lack of stability and academic achievement in the schools," he said.

Lyon believes both stability and sound education have been sacrificed "because a philosophy has developed in the district long political and racial lines. This has brought about an unstable situation and created a climate where education has becomesecondary to social concerns," he added.

"Some parents — especially some from Mill Valley — realize their children are not going to get an education in Sausalito, but want to bring their youngsters into the district for the social experience. That's well and good," he continued, "but I don't think education can take a back seat in a school system. There has to be a balance between both."

Lyon, who is Northern California manager for Employers Self-Insurance Service in San Francisco feels his experience in the business world and insurance field will be valuable on the school board.

"The administration of a complex district requires someone with maturity and business experience; someone who knows how to deal with people," he explained, "and I am in the business of communication and selling ideas."

He feels parents in both communities in the school district need to be sold on the Sausalito School system. "Part of the social unrest seen at school board meetings and in the children at school results from a lack of confidence," Lyon said. "Many parents feel black children have not been given the same equal opportunity as white children.

"To me, all kinds should have the same opportunities. I think there are those who need more help than others and they should be given that help," he added, "but in such a way that they do not feel separated or segregated from the rest of the students.

Although the candidate said he is "not an educator," he feels strongly "that education is one of the basic essentials for solving problems in society and for equalizing opportunities for all people."

If he is elected to the board, Lyon said he would "try to create — through the staff — environment and programs conducive to learning."

The candidate believes the setting of actual curriculum is up to the administrators in the district "who must be selected on the basis of their proven ability to educate in an integrated situation.

Teachers must be chosen on the same basis, Lyons thinks. "Some teachers have already left the district because they were not ready for the change caused by integration," he said "and there may be more who will follow those who have already left."

According to Lyon all new teachers hired "must be thoroughly screened for their ability to teach in integrated schools and to have as their main concern the education of children rather than political indoctrination."

Although he lives in Sausalito, Lyon feels he can represent the people of Marin City as well as those in Sausalito if he is elected. "The only thing I have in mind is the education of children," he explained. "I can represent anybody who wants this."

Lyon is aware and concerned about divisiveness and conflict in the district, but feels the majority of people wish to get along together and educate their children to take their place in a changing society.

He emphasized his belief that all the people in the district can be brought together if confidence and a common goal is restored. "When the education of all children is proceeding smoothly — with no preference shown to any group — parents will realize the board is acting in the best interests of the children," he said. "I am confident this will reduce friction and conflict," the candidate concluded.

Drug Suspected In Youth's Death

A Corte Madera youth died yesterday, apparently the victim of an overdose of heroin, Coroner's Investigator Keith Craig reported today.

William Clifford Oltean, 22, of 106 Meadow Valley Road was found unconscious in his bedroom by his parents before being taken to Marin General Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival at about 11 p.m.

Craig said Oltean had a fresh needle mark on his right arm and older needle marks on his left arm.

The body was taken to Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael where an autopsy was to be performed.

Sonoma State Chief Says Campus Issues Not Limited

The problems of American colleges and universities are not much different from the problems of society in general, the acting president of Sonoma State College said yesterday.

Anyone who talks about campus problems is "copping out. The problems belong to all of us," Earl W. Jones said in a luncheon address to the Petaluma Rotary Club.

Jones cited the contention that the basic question in a man's life is "What am I doing here?" The purpose of education, he said, "is to guide the individual to the self-knowledge and ability to find the answer."

When students say that nothing is relevant, he said, they are saying they don't want to answer the question.

But he said that is no different than adults using liquor, sleeping pills, bridge clubs, sports talk and television to entertain themselves to avoid facing the question.

He said men can find a creative, constructive answer to the question, such as the delight he said he gets when he writes a few lines of verse.

Or there is a destructive answer, he added, using Hitler as an example of a man who thought he was better than the creative because he thought he could destroy the creative.

In his new job, Jones said, he is going to do his best" to create a climate where it is possible for the individual to look for the constructive answer."

Jones said he thinks Sonoma State is a "lovely school" with a few problems.

One of the problems, he said, is student unrest, "but students are human and humans are never restful." Another problem is drugs, but drugs are a problem in Petaluma and most other communities as well, he said.

The former executive vice president of San Francisco State College also criticized the press in his talk, but he put the blame for what he said were its failings on society rather than on the press itself.

He blamed the news media for a stereotyped image of students as destructive because of press coverage of what he called "fewer than 1 per cent of students engaged in destructive games."

The news that gets in the newspapers, he said, is the "negative improbable."

He asked his audience which story would appear in the paper if on the same day in the same town, one teen-age boy died of an overdose of drugs and another wrote a symphony.

Both are improbable, considering the millions of teen-agers in the country, but it is the "negative, destructive improbable" that will make the news, he said.

However, it is not the fault of the press, he said, but rather it is the fault of a society that wants to read the bad news and then say "I'd never do a thing like that."

Jones told his audience, "Don't stereotype us. We need your help."

Ranchers Renting Seashore Land Will Lose Rights In 18 Months

Six ranchers presently renting 5,500 acres of Point Reyes National Seashore land for cattle grazing should expect to lose it within 18 months and owners preparing to sell their land to the Seashore will not be allowed to rent it back as in the past.

Park Supt. John L. Sansing said that is now Seashore policy because the April 3 land acquisition appropriation bore a kicker banning renting out future purchases.

The ranger head said it would be inconsistent to allow the present renters to stay, then bar future applicants. The six will be given a "reasonable time" to move their herds, he said, when the land purchases are nearly completed.

He predicted that all land rental agreement will be terminated within 18 months.

The special use permits allow the park to give only 30 days notice, Sansing said.

Sansing said no land owner was promised as a condition of sale that they could lease back the land bought with the $38.3 million authorized April 3.

Leasing had been allowed in the past because the 1962 bill defining the park envisioned private ranching areas within the park boundaries, Sansing said.

In addition, the rationale was that the public could not use that land because private properties cut off access, Sansing said.

Ranchers now renting seashore land are George Gallagher with 1,500 acres near the northern Point Reyes Beach; Leland S. Murphy with 1,600 north of Limantour Spit; dairyman James L. Spaletta, about 1,000 acres near the south Point Reyes Beach; Ralph Beatty, 770 acres near Limantour, and Marvin McDonald and Ernest Ward, 560 acres of the Himes Ranch.

Sansing said the dairy use will definitely be eliminated because it requires fencing out the public, but grazing of cattle might be continued if an area is designated for that purpose in the park master plan.

These proposed grazing areas — if any — will be designated in the plan by spring, Sansing said. There is no guarantee they will be the same lands now leased, he pointed out.

Lawyer To Talk On Bolinas History

History of the Bolinas area will be discussed by Thomas Barfield at the annual public meeting of the Marin County Historical Society at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the San Rafael Improvement Club.

Barfield, an attorney, has been studying the history of the area around Bolinas for many years.

The Board of Directors for the coming year will be elected at the meeting, according to president Frank Galli.

Surplus Office Announces Sale

The Defense Surplus Sales Office has announced sealed bid sales of items including a panel truck, warehouse trailer, stainless steel scrap, light steel scrap, typewriters and denatured alcohol at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Items other than scrap may be seen from next Thursday to Oct. 6, and scrap from Tuesday to Sept. 29, at building 727 at the base, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., weekdays.

Bagley's Transit Bill Push Praised

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, has been defended against a charge from his Democratic challenger that he failed to help save legislation allowing diversion of gasoline taxes to rapid transit.

Bagley's challenger, Joseph A. Forest of Novato, claimed last week that the Legislature had failed to pass such a measure, a claim that turns out to be incorrect on two counts.

MILLS LETTER

According to the author of just such a measure, it not only passed, but did so because of Bagley's support.

Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, in a letter to Bagley last Friday, said that Bagley's intervention "raised it from the dead." The senator, terming his measure "the most historic act of the 1970 Legislature," said he was "very conscious of the fact that it would not have passed without your personal involvement.

"When it appeared dead, and I had given it up, your intervention raised it from the dead. I hope you are as proud of SCA 18 as I am, because you have as much right to be," Mills wrote Bagley.

KEY SUPPORT

Bagley's key support came in convincing Assembly Speaker Bob Monagan, R-Tracy, to bend Assembly rules to allow time to round up the votes needed to pass the measure. Monagan had been about to gavel it to death when Bagley interceded.

Mills' measure will appear on the November general election ballot as Proposition 18. It would allow counties to divert up to 25 per cent of their gas tax revenues to transit with the approval of a majority vote. Gas taxes now are reserved for highway purposes.

Bagley yesterday accused Forest of distorting the record with several other charges that he had a poor voting record on environmental bills.

Forest had charged that Bagley was absent when the Assembly defeated a resolution (AJR 3) asking the federal government to act immediately to halt oil drilling in the Santa Barbara Channel, but Bagley noted that the resolution was killed by the rules committee and never even reached the floor for a vote.

Forest also charged that Bagley missed a vote that killed a bill to limit oil and gas leases within the channel that would destroy esthetic values, but Bagley pointed out that he not only voted for the bill (AB 150), but it was passed by the Legislature.

As for Forest's charge that Bagley missed a vote on AB 1000, Bagley's own tax revision package, Bagley said "obviously I never missed any votes on it — I was the author and carried it on the floor."

Bagley conceded that, as charged by Forest, he had missed a vote on a bill to allow Marin County to enact local logging regulations. But Bagley noted that the bill was signed by the governor after he urged its signature despite opposition from the administration's own Division of Forestry.

"My support of conservation measures has been total," Bagley said.

Woman Leaps To Death From Span

A 41-year-old Oakland woman leaped to her death yesterday from the north end of the Golden Gate Bridge, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The body of Margaret A. Allen was recovered by the U.S. Coast Guard at 12:01 p.m. near the south tower moat.

The patrol received the call of the leap at 11:52 from a woman motorist who said she saw Mrs. Allen climb over the rail and then jump into the thick fog. A black purse containing $19.46 was found nearby, but no note.

Four Hurt In Cape Explosion

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—An explosion near an empty launch pad injured four men today, two of them seriously.

The Air Force said the explosion apparently was touched off when the men were changing a valve on a nitrogen tank near launch Complex 13, from which an Atlas-Agena rocket carrying a spy satellite was recently launched.

The men, employes of Pan American World Airways which does maintenance work at the spaceport under a government contract, were not immediately identified.

One of the injured men was taken to the Cape Canaveral hospital and the other three to the Cape Kennedy dispensary.

Bank Of America Sees Resurgence In 1971

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Bank of America sees 1971 as a year of "restless resurgence" as the nation tries to balance factors of inflation, unemployment and social change.

In the bank's annual economic forecast Thursday, Economist Walter Hoadley said 1970 had been a "year of housecleaning, a healthy correction" and predicted a gradual improvement next year.

Hoadley noted that consumer demand has been rising, along with new housing starts.

And Hoadley suggested that a reduction in the prime rate of interest is probably coming.

He looks for "moderate progress" in reducing inflation next year, but observed that inflation "is apt to be a more serious problem for other industrial countries than for the U.S.

"As a result, the dollar will be strengthened and U.S. exports will increase faster than imports."

During his 14-year career Conrad Nagel played in over 150 movies.

What's so special about Marin Golf and Country Club Estates?

LOTS

Choice, country club lots. Magnificent homesites that spread their oak-studded tapestries along golf course frontages . . . over panoramic view sites . . . spread in spacious beauty between luxurious $40,000 to $150,000 homes. That's what's so special about Marin Golf and Country Club Estates.

Premium, close-in homesites are becoming scarcer and more expensive with each succeeding year. And the foresighted executive — whether he's ready to build or not — would do well to reserve one of these exceptional sites right now. There's no guessing on your investment — no buying into a nebulous future dream. These desirable properties are located in one of Marin's most exclusive living areas . . . a superbly planned, established community with a prestige country club at its hub. A club whose park-like fairways, tennis courts and swimming pools add beauty, value and convenience to the area surrounding your home.

Come out and see this select Marin County spot, so beautifully situated in tranquil green valleys and gently rolling hills — yet only 23 minutes from the Golden Gate Bridge. Come out and see what an investment this country club environment insures. An investment in your family's living . . . maximum appreciation of your land. Exceptional homesites (one quarter to an acre or more) range from $8,500 to $17,500. Both price and financing will be a pleasant surprise. Take a look, too, at the beautiful model homes. You just may want to move in right now!

Attorney For 'Soledad Brothers' Sees San Francisco Fair Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A defense attorney for the "Soledad Brothers" said Thursday his clients would "have the greatest chance of securing a fair trial" in San Francisco.

The prosecution, however, claimed a fair trial here would be impossible because of publicity and political activities surrounding the case.

The three defendants, George Jackson, John Cluchette and Fleeta Drumgo are black inmates at Soledad Prison accused of killing a guard last January.

They obtained a change of venue to San Francisco in June after claiming "undue publicity and hostility" made it impossible to get a fair trial in Monterey County.

Jackson's brother, Jonathan, was killed in the San Rafael shootout last month that took four lives, including that of Superior Court Judge Harold S. Haley. This event caused the Monterey County authorities to seek another change.

Monterey County Disrict Attorney Edward K. Barnes told Superior Court Judge Robert J. Drewes Thursday that he had talked with some respectable members of the San Francisco community who also thought a fair trial couldn't be held here.

Defense attorney John Thorne called Barnes as a witness and asked him to name the people he talked with.

Barnes admitted he had discussed the matter with personnel in the San Francisco district attorney's office.

"I think the defendants have the greatest chance of a fair trial here," Thorne told the judge.

Drewes took the matter under submission.

Forest Appoints Campaign Heads

Joseph A. Forest of Novato, Democratic nominee for State Assembly, has named Mrs. Troy E. Lewis and Robert B. McCreadie, both of Terra Linda, as the co-chairmen of his campaign.

Mrs. Lewis is county chairman of the women's division of the Democratic State Central Cimmittee, and McCreadie is a Novato attorney.

DINING OUT—BILLBOARD STYLE

Many motorists traveling a Detroit freeway had to take a double look yesterday. A Detroit restaurant set up dining facilities on a billboard to promote its nearby ground-level establishment on its 10th anniversary. Steps leading up to a platform beneath the giant billboard enabled customers to sit at table and have dinner and drinks.

75 Offers To Replace Hostages

About 75 persons have volunteered to accompany a Mill Valley psychologist and his wife to the Middle East to trade places with hostages being held in three hijacked planes.

Dr. William H. Pemberton said today that "The response has been overwhelming. Physicians, students, teachers, Quakers, Jews, aCtholics and Protestants have asked to be counted in." Many of them have sent telegrams to President Richard M. Nixon in support of the Pembertons as well, he said.

No official word has come from the White House yet in reply to the offer made Wednesday by the 58-year-old clinical psychologist and his wife, Oma, and they have no plans to charter a plane and fly to Jordan, he said.

"The situation now is a standoff, and the best thing to do would be to freeze it for a long time," he said.

"First we must stop talking about bad and good guys and realize that the guerrillas are striving for something meaningful in life. They want a fair share of the goods and services and their own chunk of earth."

Pemberton said his first aim is "to catch the eye and ear of the decision-makers in the White House." That was the purpose behind the telegrams Wednesday, he said.

To Give Contract

A special meeting of the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District board has been scheduled for 10 a.m. tomorrow at the district office to award a contract of about $4,000 for a treatment plant machin part, board secretary Edwin S. Long has announced.

Ross Council Sets Sessions To Map An Alarm System Ordinance

The Ross Town Council last night agreed to meet with fire and burglar alarm representatives during the week of Sept. 2 to draft standards for a proposed alarm system ordinance.

The issue of alarms has come before the Ross council often during recent months because of the high number of false alarms triggered by private home systems. The measure was originally up for adoption last night, but several alarm system representatives convinced the council it did not know enough about the systems to set up meaningful regulations.

"You're trying to plunge into the business without knowing the technology," Gerald P. Hallett, general manager of American Sentry Systems of San Rafael, told the council. "There are a number of reputable companies now in the business. Let them make a set of standards and work with the council to review all new companies wanting to do business in Ross. Make a service contract mandatory."

Hallett said the town should not get into the alarm business.

Councilman Ralph C. Walker asked what the effect of private home burglar and fire alarm systems tied directly into the police and fire stations would be.

"This would take care of a lot of our problems," replied police chief John F. Harris.

Hallett added that it would be impossible to eliminate completely false alarms, but that the people in the business could iron out many of the technical difficulties. The Ross council plans to adopt an ordinance regulating the installation and maintenance of fire and burglar alarms after its meeting with industry representatives.

The Ross Council also:

POLICE CAR — Awarded a bid for a new police car to Corte Madera Chrysler Plymouth, Inc., for low (and only) bid of $2,641.82.

RONSCAVAGE VARIANCE — Approved a hillside lot application and variance for John A. Ronscavage of Southwood Avenue with the provision that he supply drainage from his property to Ross Creek within one year.

POLICE — Approved for adoption at next town meeting addition to municipal code prohibiting policemen from joining labor unions.

UNDERGROUND UTILITIES — Approved for adoption at next meeting change in municipal code so that town council rather than town engineer would be responsible for granting variances in underground utilities requirements.

ABATEMENT — Gave Tracy Cummings of 23 Oak Way 30 days to dismantle a condemned garage on his property.

ABATEMENT — Directed Joseph E. Tilt of 18 Olive Avenue to appear at the next council meeting and show cause why he has not yet complied with abatement of non-conforming use on his property.

PLAY HOUSE — Directed John M. Pflueger of 29 Redwood Avenue to bring building plans for a two-story play house built without building permit to city hall by Monday noon or face abatement proceedings.

BUILDING RECORD — Approved printed form for an ordinance requiring that all conditions of property be made known to prospective buyers on a [illegible] of Residential Building Record.

USE PERMIT — Approved a use permit to allow Webster Otis of 51 Glenwood Avenue to use a detached dwelling on his property as a guest house.

NEXT MEETING — Next regular meeting of the Ross Town Council for Oct. 8 at 8 p.m. in the town hall.

ABATEMENT — Directed Donald W. Gabor of Upper Road to vacate barn in which he and three other people are living by Oct. 1.

Uncle Sam Prototype Born 204 Years Ago

ARLINGTON, Mass. (UPI)—The 204th birthday of Samuel Wilson, the Arlington resident claimed to be the model for "Uncle Sam," was celebrated today with a parade, antique cars and politicians.

Pedestrian Safety Earns City Awards

Petaluma's pedestrian traffic safety record was honored last night in Sonoma by the American Automobile Association.

At a meeting of the Sonoma County Mayors' and Councilmen's Association, Joseph J. Kirrene, manager of the AAA's Petaluma office, presented a plaque citing Petaluma for its fourth consecutive year without a pedestrian fatality.

Mayor Helen Putnam and acting chief of police Henry Eslick accepted the award for the city.

The cities of Sebastopol and Sonoma also were honored.

Following the awards, state Sen. Randolph Collier, D-First District, and Assemblyman John F. Dunlap, D-Vallejo, discussed State Constitutional Amendment 18 which would allow local governments to use 25 per cent of their gas tax funds for the development of mass transit systems.

Collier spoke against the amendment and Dunlap defended it.

Museum Classes Signing Students

Registration for classes being offered this fall by the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science has begun and will continue until classes are filled, the museum has announced.

About 15 classes are being offered for preschool children through adults. They include nursery nature, falconry, rock polishing, wildlife biology, Mother Miklos's morning manual arts for Marin mothers, Marin ecology and others.

Larkspur Commission Turns Down Joint Recreation Program Offer

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission last night turned down an offer from the Corte Madera Town Council for a joint fall, winter and spring recreation program.

Harlan Barry, recreation director, said the commission listed lack of funds and little public enthusiasm in rejecting the offer.

Barry said such a program would have cost the city about $5,700 which was not budgeted. He explained that recreation reserves were not large enough to cover Larkspur's share of the program.

Corte Madera made the offer earlier this week after evaluating public participation in the joint summer probram with Larkspur. It decided to extend its portion of the program into the winter and expressed hope Larkspur would also.

"In a tight budget year, we just can't do it," Barry commented.

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission also:

STUDY — Set Oct. 14 to continue interviews with park planning firms for development of a long range park master plan. Last night the commission interviewed Berridge, Becker and Julin of San Francisco and Norman Gilroy of Mill Valley, but reached no decision. Two East Bay firms will be interviewed next month.

BICYCLE PATH — Directed its staff to initiate a study on a bicycle path along Magnolia Avenue between the Safeway and Disco stores. The study was requested by Chris Brand, a Redwood High School student, who noted the area's heavy bicycle traffic.

CREEK — Heard a report from the recreation staff that Shulz Investment Company of Greenbrae had turned down a request that it donate a parcel of land adjacent Corte Madera Creek for public access to the creek and as an open area.

GIFT — Accepted a large mosaic by artist Dickens Bascom of Larkspur. The art work is to be hung at Dolliver Park.

Fairfax Board Will Consider Redesign

The Fairfax Design and Review Board will meet tomorrow at 11 a.m. at the city hall. Last night's meeting was canceled for lack of a quorum.

Tomorrow the board will consider a redesign application from Richard Lash for a building located at 55 Broadway.

TV Sets Stolen

A burglar who broke into a storage room at the Sportsman's lodge near Novato on Highway 101 Monday took seven color television sets valued at over $2,000, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

Pizza Hut Building Barriers Are Removed

By WAYNE RATLIFF

After discussion including vague references to a possible law suit and to ethics of previous city actions, the Novato City Council last night removed the last barriers to construction of a controversial Pizza Hut restaurant.

The action came in a special session called by the council at the request of Ben Ostlind, whose plans for the restaurant had long been frustrated by the city.

The council adopted, with changes allowing the construction, the East Grant sub-area of Sedway and Cooke's downtown plan and program and removed a construction freeze placed on Ostlind's property at DeLong and Machin avenues in June.

Only Councilman George C. Quesada, who proposed the construction freeze June 23, dissented, although all five councilmen indicated they did not want the restaurant built on that site.

Other changes to Sedway and Cooke's plan for the East Grant area included keeping Sweetser Avenue between Machin and Reichert avenues open to cars and allowing continued commercial and industrial uses north of Grant Avenue and between Machin and a proposed extension of Reichert avenue on a use permit basis.

Other property on the west side of Machin between DeLong and Grant was set to be left in planned commercial zoning, with prompt review by the planning commission of permitted uses and consideration of amendments to the master plan.

Approval of the sub-area plan with the change to allow the Pizza Hut met with a protest from Ellen Wagner that "we're always at the mercy of the developer. I think that you ought to consider what people want and need . . . we end up with junk all the time.

Councilman Douglas M. Merrill replied that he was against the Pizza Hut but felt there was no way to block it and maintain his integrity.

Councilman Joseph Gargiulo said that he was against building more restaurants like the Pizza Hut or McDonalds, "but as a moral issue, on the basis of the way this has been handled," he proposed adoption of the plan in a form which would allow construction.

Discussion which followed showed other councilmen in general agreement, and Quesada said that since June "somehow, somewhere along the line somebody has gotten to someone . . . there've been a lot of changed minds."

Gargiulo said that he voted for professional and office use for the area on the facts presented him but that he had since found that Ostlind had been given "unfair hurdles, deliberate ones . . . I think that they were wrong."

Councilman J. Wayne Womack said that the democratic process allows legislative bodies, after all facts are available, "to find that they were wrong at the time . . . we did not have all the facts."

Councilman F. Wayne Sartain said that he felt that it would be very difficult, if not impossible to stop the construction.

Sartain then said that he didn't think there would still be basis for a law suit if the council allowed the construction.

The matter of the law suit was a theme that was not developed further. Neither were any of the new "facts," referred to by Womack, discussed at the meeting.

After the vote, Quesada told Ostlind that he should not be surprised "if there is a virtual boycott of the Pizza Hut."

Study Ordered On Tools To Control Excavations

The Novato City Council last night directed Planning Director Brian Mattson to study tools available to the city to control excavations and earth movement in the city.

The action came in consideration of a proposed zoning ordinance to change and clarify the requirement of a use permit to remove natural materials.

The ordinance, which now requires use permits for "commercial excavation of natural materials used for building or construction purposes" is too vague, according to Mattson.

The proposed change would require permits for excavation of more than 750 cubic yards except when the excavation is carried out under development plans or maps approved by the planning commission or a division of land approved by the city staff.

The Novato City Council Also:

PLANNING COMMISSION — Directed the city manager to publicize acceptance of applications for appointment to the planning commission to fill the vacancy of William R. Wilson, whose resignation was accepted Tuesday.

DAMAGE CLAIM — Denied a damage claim by Robert Hiatt for $531 for damage to his pickup camper suffered when it struck a tree limb overhanging a parking space at 1114 Grant Avenue. The claim was referred to the city's insurance carrier.

CLOSED SESSION — Adjourned to a closed session to consider appointments to the citizens beautification committee and plan review board.

Tam Board To Discuss Architect Contracts

The Tamalpais High School District Board will hold a special meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at Redwood High School's facility lounge to discuss architectural contracts with the district's three architectural firms.

The contracts include construction of a $357,500 student center at Tamalpais High School, a $231,000 multipurpose-lecture room at Sir Francis Drake High School; and $277,000 in remodeling at Redwood High School.

Smallman Leaders

Jack G. Nixon, chairman of the campaign of Robert A. Smallman for Municipal Court judge, has appointed Robert Roumiguiere precinct organization chairman.

Larkspur Man Reports Hold-Up

A 55-year-old Larkspur man reported to the sheriff's department that when he stopped at a stop sign at the entrance to Marin City Tuesday about 1 a.m., he was held up by eight or nine men who demanded money.

William R. Norman of 15 Velardo Avenue said that one man pointed a revolver at him while the others hovered around the car. He turned over his wallet which contained $20, sheriff's officers said.

PROJECT MUSTARD

Youth Injects Special Brand Of Spice Into Demo Campaign

By GEORGE NEVIN

A Mill Valley youth, who has decided that the political scene in Marin could use a little spice, has injected some MUSTARD into the campaign.

MUSTARD is an acronym for Marin Unified Students Toward a Reagan Defeat, and the youth, 15-year-old Matthew White, intends to run a low-key effort on the part of Democratic candidates and gubernatorial hopeful Jess Unruh in particular.

"I've been in politics since I was 9," said the blond son of former Mill Valley mayor Dr. Albert E. White. He said his father, active in Democratic Party functions, encouraged him with MUSTARD but did not give him the idea.

Young White operates his group out of the Democratic headquarters in Mill Valley, but so far "we haven't been financed at all. We'd like to keep expenses down because we have no way of getting any money."

He donates his time to MUSTARD, and the only other expenses he anticipates are for printing. "We may be able to get businessmen to donate paper, and I think I know of a duplicating machine we can use," he said. All other expenses probably will come out of his own pocket.

"No big budget, no Peter Behr campaign for me," he said.

REAGAN FOE — Fifteen-year-old Matthew White gets on the phone to advocate a Democrat for governor. A six-year veteran of the campaign trails, he said the last winning candidate he backed was his father, Dr. Albert White, who was elected mayor of Mill Valley in 1964. (Independetn-Jounral Photo)

MUSTARD plans to involve youth, especially students at Tamalpais High School, although White hopes to branch out to other schools later. A junior at Tamalpais, he describes himself as a "radical who wants to achieve change within the system."

Some of the ideas for MUSTARD-sponsored activities include a debate between opposing candidates, round-table discussions among students, an appeal for help from the Mill Valley and Marin County youth commissions, and door-to-door precinct work if the group gathers enough supporters.

"We'd like to use Tam High as our base, but I'm not sure that the administration would let us," he said. "They aren't openly hostile to us, but I have the feeling they'll just try to ignore us quietly."

White said he is disappointed in Gov. Ronald Reagan, especially his attitude toward youth and his hard-line policy toward student protest.

"Reagan has taken a pretty stupid view on student riots. His approach obviously isn't working," he said. "I don't condone violence, but I do understand it. Unruh has different ideas about stopping campus destruction."

These ideas, White said, include understanding the causes of disorder and treating them, not sending in troops to attack the mere symptoms.

He feels that the Republicans have "too many vested interests. They're more concerned about protecting their money than helping other people.

"The rich don't notice that there's something wrong with the system. It's the poor people who want change," he said.

Admitting that "politics is my consuming interest," White said that he always wonders "what the motivations of politicians are. If we can discover their motives we can understand them a lot more."

In the event that none of his candidates wins — and they include Joseph Forrest for the Assembly, Michael Peevey for the state senator and William Bennett for the state Board of Equalization as well as Unruh — White doesn't plan to abandon politics.

"I can accept defeat," he said. "In fact, I've never played on a winning baseball team, I always voted for the school candidate who lost and the last winning candidate I worked for was my father when he was elected to the city council in 1964. Defeat and I are good friends."

14-Year-Old Georgian Is Miss American Teen-Ager

FORT LEE, N.J. (UPI)— Kimberley Dianne Graham of Morrow, Ga., is the new Miss American Teen-Ager, and along with her crown early today she received a shiny new car-which she'll have to wait two years to drive.

The 14-year-old ninth grader at Babb Junior High school also won an estimated $20,000 in trips and prizes, but under Georgia law she'll have to be 16 before she get's to drive her new car. She says she'll let her mother have it for the time being.

Kimberley, who has green eyes and black hair, was chosen from 51 finalists at Palisades Amusement Park in a contest which began with 250,000 hopefuls from across the nation. Miss American Teen-ager is chosen from girls between the ages of 13 and 17.

The winner is a student of ballet who enjoys music and has won awards in dancing back in Georgia. An excellent student, Kimberley has also won prizes at state 4-H exhibitions and science fairs.

The winner receives a chance to appear in a bit part on ABC-TV's "General Hospital" television series, a roundingtrip with her parents to Hollywood, and thousands of dollars in gifts, clothing, contracts, plus the car.

Spray Protectors To Be Required

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Drivers who fear that moment of blindness when a curtain of water hits their windshield while passing on a rainy highway may get some help from the National Highway Safety Bureau.

The bureau proposed Thursday all trucks, buses, cars and other highway vehicles be equipped with spray protectors behind their rear wheels as of Jan. 1, 1972.

The bureau will accept comments on the proposal until Dec. 3, after which it will decide whether to put it into effect.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazine and the Parents' Magazine. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael Library.

FAMILY

"Hello Dolly" — Adaptation of Broadway hit. Barbra Streisand stars as a conniving matchmaker, in the 1900's, who has her eyes on wealthy, crusty Walter Matthau. There are lavish sets and costumes and much singing for Streisand fans.

"Journey to the Far Side of the Sun" — British science fiction set 100 years in the future tells of a space trip to a planet that is a mirror image of earth. Special effects and photography are excellent.

"Jungle Book" — Kipling's tale of an East Indian boy reared in the jungle by a family of wolves is brought to life in a full-length animated cartoon by Disney. A delight for the young at heart.

"Love Bug" — A little car with human feelings becomes the devoted friend of a discouraged racing car driver. Their adventures are a delight.

"Out-of-Towners" — Very broad satire of hazards of New York life and misadventures of a small city businessman who brings his wife along for a job interview. Hilarious comedy.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Airport" — Gripping story, during a paralyzing blizzard, of the workings of a large airport. A large jet is stuck, blocking a runway that is desperately needed to land a disabled plane. Outstanding star-studded cast. Buildup is so intense that it may be too exciting for younger children.

"Darling Lili" — Combination comic romance and espionage story of World War I with Julie Andrews as an English music hall star, who is also a German spy. Romance is predictable and pace of film slow moving but the songs are memorable.

"Five Man Army' — A professional thief recruits four bandits during the 1914 Revolution in old Mexico to steal a train that is transporting a half million dollars. Plot is treated in such a farcical manner that the violence and brutal action don't seem real. Photography is excellent and ending a complete surprise.

"Kelly's Heros" — A World War II satirical melodrama about a group of misfits who rob a German bank of 16 million in gold bullion. The violence is well laced with comedy and humor and several subplots give large cast parts to play.

"Norwood" — A Texas ex-marine, after duty in Vietnam, goes to New York in hopes of starting a career as a country and western singer. His encounters with several odd people leaves him a wiser man. Well-written script with same kind of humor as in True Grit.

"Paint Your Wagon" — A lusty, irreverent script is the frame work for a musical set in a mining camp during Gold Rush days. Elaborately mounted broad comedy, raucous and at times tasteless, it is not suitable for young children.

"Patton" — An unusually well-made film with a brilliant characterization by George C. Scott. There is very strong dialogue.

"Sterile Cuckoo" — A kooky college girl and a boy who is square and serious. Their love affair and first sex experience are told with simplicity and insight. Acting is excellent.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Last Grenade" — British melodrama seems contrived and lacks excitement. A group of mercenaries are betrayed by one of their own men and they stalk the traitor through the jungles seeking revenge. Excessive use of blood and gore is unnecessary and repulsive. Love story is so corny it is laughable.

"Two Miles for Sister Sara" — A prostitute masquerading as a nun and an American mercenary meet in the badlands during the time when Mexican guerillas were attempting to chase the French out of their country. Plot is unconveing and language is foul and dialogue dull and acting below par.

"The Virgin and the Gypsy" — D.H. Lawrences story of a free-spirited girl in the 1920's who tries to escape the confines of her family. A handsome gypsy becomes the object of her erotic fantasies. Although there is nudity, it is handled tastefully and the photography is lyrical.

"Woodstock Festival" — All aspects of the three days of this happening held in August 1969 are recorded in a three-hour documentary with a half million young people involved. Color photography, sound, creative editing are outstanding. Because of actions, the nudity and obscene language parents should decide since film is restricted.

ADULTS ONLY

"Honeymoon Killers" — This sick, amateurish attempt to make a film based upon an actual case fails miserably. A couple in the lonely heart racket get involved in murder. Acting and the dialogue hit an all time low.

"M-A-S-H" — Hilarious, subtle anti-war comedy of three army surgeons who develop outlandish life-style to survive the gore that passes before their eyes. Sex, nudity and profanity.

Course For Teachers On Problem Children

A class for teachers seeking insight into dealing with learning difficulties and emotional or mental distress in children has been scheduled at the Community Mental Health Center at Marin General Hospital for 15 Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning Sept. 23.

Ambulance Collections Plan Backed

The Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council has endorsed a recommendation that Marin County act as a collection agency for the county's ambulance company.

The recommendation was made Wednesday night by the council's ambulance subcommittee as part of a slate of changes to Marin's ambulance contract.

The recommendation, according to Michael Ingerman, council secretary, are expected to be considered Tuesday by the board of supervisors.

Ingerman said the company is now paid a flat rate of $14.95 by the county for every unpaid bill incurred under the county contract. The company must then try to collect the balance, and pay back the county if successful.

He explained that the recommendation would shift the burden of collecting onto the county, but an as yet unspecified flat rate would remain.

Other recommendations include the establishment of an ambulance driver and attendant certification program, a guaranteed minimum of $1,000 per month of county business, creation of a "stretcher-rate" to encourage the ambulance company to carry more than one passenger per vehicle, thus reducing the number of ambulances needed during an emergency, a reimbursement to the company for "dry-runs" to be based on mileage and base cost, and an option for the county to either cancel the contract or withhold funds for contract violations by the ambulance company.

Book Sale To Benefit Marin Free Library

A two-day book sale to benefit the Marin County Free Library opened today at the Cooperative Shopping Center, 71 Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera.

The sale, which will run through 5 p.m. tomorrow, includes about 10,000 books in all categories, according to the Friends of the Marin County Library which is sponsoring the event.

'Stalag 17' To Open With Benefit Show

The Novato Community Players' production of Stalag 17, directed by Paul Terry, will open today with curtain time 8:30 p.m. at the Novato Community House.

A drama with comedy touches, Stalag 17 is a play about life in a World War II German prison camp.

"Stalag 17 is not a message play. It is simply a production that, when ended, leaves the audience very happy to be alive," Terry said.

The show will also play tomorrow, Sunday and Sept. 18 and 19, with two productions' revenue donated to local service organizations.

Opening night will be a benefit show, sponsored by the Novato Civic Foundation, to raise funds to improve Novato's Pioneer Memorial Park. Tickets for that performance only are available from Lorene Bunker, 26 Truman Drive, Novato, from any member of the civic foundation or at the door.

Our Lady of Loretto Council, Knights of Columbus Lodge No. 3950, has taken over the Sept. 19 performance. Tickets are available from Gino R. Westcott, 341 San Luis Way, Novato.

Champagen and soft drinks will be available at all performances, Terry said, and hors d'oeuvres will be served for the audience, cast and staff following the opening night performance.

Written by Donald Bevan and Edmund Trzcinski, Stalag 17 was first produced May 8, 1951 by Jose Ferrer.

Albert Richter is producer and Edward Kinchla Jr., who was a prisoner in Stalag Luft III during World War II is technical advisor for the play.

The cast includes Michael Parker, who recently moved to San Francisco from Novato, as Sefton; Stanley Buchanan as Price, the security man; Donald Leaf as tSosh; Donald McGillis as Harry Shapiro; John Bernardi as Hoffy; Joseph Jacob as corporal Schultz; Michael Jones as Horney and Roy Mathias as Reed.

Newcomers in the cast include Craig Waller as Herb, Wilson Clymer as Duke, Albert Wright as Marko, Reed Griffin as Dunbar, Rue Le Mar as the gestapo captain, Alan Marney of San Rafael as the Geneva man and Thomas Meins and William Tomsky as German guards.

The holwer monkey gives a roaring cry that can be heard several miles in the jungle, says World Book Encyclopedia.

Bolinas-Stinson Beach Vote On School Bonds Tuesday

For the third time in three years residents of the Bolinas-Stinson School District will go to the polls Tuesday to decide the fate of a bond issue which would provide funds for a one-campus school in Bolinas.

Twice in 1967 and 1968 voters have narrowly rejected similar bond issues and overcrowded conditions at Bolinas School have now reached the critical stage, according to the district superintendent and several teachers.

Supt. Lester M. Horning explained that a May arson fire heavily damaged Stinson School and made it unusable for this year. Consequently, he said, 185 youngsters are crowded into Bolinas School this fall. Last year the school housed 110 students.

Because of severe overcrowding — which could affect the quality of education in the district — and because the amount being asked is less than in the past, Horning is hopeful the bond issue will be passed this time around.

"I have had good feelings from the people I have talked with," the superintendent said, but added soberly: "Of course people who oppose it may not be communicating with me."

He said the district is asking for $210,000 which would go to purchase 2.3 acres of property adjacent to the present school site and for remodeling of the old Bolinas School buildings and some new construction. In past elections, the district asked for $275,000 and $350,000.

Horning said the money would be used to relocate four portable classrooms now at Bolinas School and provide more work space between the portables. In addition, he said it would pay for construction of a new classroom and a multi-purpose room, plus some expansion of existing play fields.

If passed, the bond issue would raise the district's total tax rate by 16.5 cents, from $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.465, Horning said. "This means that a person who owns a $25,000 home will pay about $9.20 cents a year to finance these needed school additions," he added.

The superintendent said that, with all the district's students at Bolinas School this year, the situation is "very cramped, both inside and outside. According to Horning "this fact makes it very difficult to plan an optimum educational program."

Several district teachers concurred and expressed their own concerns about over crowding. "It makes education difficult," Mrs. Nancy Sullivan said. "The kids will be fine until winter because we are holding some classes outdoors now, but this cannot continue once the rainy season begins. The need is desperate," she emphasized.

Teacher Linda O'Neil said the lack of proper buildings is "inhibiting our creative potential and the children are getting cheated." According to William Niman, the buildings "simply are not adequate; a number were designed as temporary buildings and now they seem to have become permanent."

Superintendent Horning urged voters to look to the future in making their decision. "The area is growing somewhat and the problem will become more intense as time goes on," he said. "And the longer we wait to build, the more the construction will cost."

Atlhough the California Supreme Court has ruled that the requirement for two-thirds approval of bond issues is contrary to the 14th amendment of the Constitution, the district will make no attempt to sell the bonds if it does not receive two-thirds approval Tuesday.

Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney has advised school officials the state court decision cannot be regarded as final, since the issue is before the U.S. Supreme Court. Consequently, the statuary provision for two-thirds approval still applies and a majority is still not accepted by the state's bond attorneys which must certify the bonds.

Decision On Park, Rec Center Bond Plan Delayed

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission last night postponed until Oct. 8 the question of whether to place a proposed recreation center bond issue on a future ballot.

No discussion on the matter was held last night because of the lateness of the hour.

Recreation department director Andrew J. Snyder also told the commission that beginning this fall there would be no more free after school programs because the city schools had withdrawn their $25,000 support of the recreation program. Instead, said Snyder, minimum fees would be charged for the classes in arts and crafts, baton twirling, dance and guitar.

Youth Suspected In Burglary

Novato police said Reginald Bruce Johnson of 1541 Hill Road was arrested about noon at the police station after being quizzed about some incidents. He was booked into Marin County jail in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear in municipal court today.

Police said Johnson allegedly twice took auto parts from the 1290 Lynwood Drive home of an acquaintance, 16-year-old Donald Clark in mid-August. The grand theft count arose from the theft of a ring from the same home, police said.

Police could give no information about when two alleged rapes occurred, but indicated the victims were acquaintances of Johnson.

Date Corrected

Ferry service between Sausalito and San Francisco, until resumed last month by the Golden Gate Bridge District, previously was discontinued in 1941, not in 1940 as reported incorrectly yesterday in the Independent-Journal.

Marin Dining And Wining

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Escalope De Veau Is A Secret Specialty At Le Chalet Basque

By and large, the Marin restaurant business drops off slightly during the middle of summer.

Home barbecues are partly responsible for the midyear dropoff. During balmy weather this American pastime has a bigger following than any single restaurant. And the fans keep the coals glowing as long as the mercury is comfortable.

The rise and fall of customers is not uniform in all restaurants however. The popular places still hold up at ebbtide, attracting a fair share of customers throughout the week and year. Weekend traffic may be especially busy.

One of these busier places is Le Chalet Basque in Santa Venetia. It may fool you. For a time only a few tables are occupied. Then voila — the next time you look around — most of them are filled. Incidentally, when this happens, note that the spirits of the diners seem to lift and there is more gaiety.

For something different at Le Chalet Basque, try the escalope de veau. It's not on the regular menu, but you can ask for it. Escalope de veau is the French equivalent of what the Italians call veal scallopini.

The difference between the two is about the same difference that exists generally between French and Italian cooking. The Italians like a robust flavor. The French lean toward a certain sublety in the sauce. Your preference for one or the other may be a matter of whether you're hot or cool, tired or sparkling. In any event I'm sure you'll enjoy Le Chalet Basque's escalope de veau.

ZIM'S in Kentfield — and Corte Madera, too — now has a new assortment of desserts besides its traditional apple pie. Eclairs, Napoleons, tarts, cakes and other pies have popped up on the menu.

LUNCHEON SERVICE at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross will resume next Tuesday, when the Pathfinders reopen their season in the tearoom overlooking the garden and creek area.

Two luncheon seatings at noon and 1 p.m. will feature cool salads and hot breads, home-made dessert and beverage at $2.

Club groups should book space in advance at the Garden Center office. Special party arrangements for other days (besides Tuesdays and Thursdays) or evening can be arranged by calling Mrs. Theodore Martin at 240 Forbes Avenue, San Rafael.

The Pathfinders will continue volunteer service in staffing the Garden Path Gift Shop and operating guided tours of the center grounds on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

SENOR ALFREDO'S MEXICAN RESTAURANT in San Anselmo has added taquitos filled with carne asada.

Al Barthel's recipe calls for the meat filling to be steamed and shredded and then the entire taquito is fried and covered with guacamole sauce. He serves them at 45 cents each — or a plate of three of them with beans for $1.95.

IN THESE DAYS, if a man tells his wife he's going to a symposium for the evening she'll either let him go without a murmur and probably admire his cultural inclinations — or look at him with suspicion.

In ancient Rome he'd have been lucky to get out of the house with his toga in one piece. To the Romans a symposium meant one thing — a real dinger of a drinking party.

After it was all over the proper hangover cure was considered to be cabbage, either raw or cooked.

Co-owners Gordon Jones and Dick Templeton of Rubini's in Fairfax are doing a big outside catering job for KSFO disc jockeys Terry McGovern of Sausalito and Carter B. Smith of Tiburon.

The latter two are taking 125 single men and an equal number of single women who have lived for six months or less in the Bay Area for an all day cruise on San Francisco Bay. What else may happen insofar as matchmaking is concerned is in the hands of fate and persaps in the cooperative frame of mind engendered by the 250 lunches Gordon and Dick will prepare.

FRITS VERBURG, who owned once the former L'Europe Restaurant on the San Rafael Miracle Mile, and later became the chef at The Rafters (Edgewater Inn Restaurant) in Corte Madera, has a new post in San Francisco.

He is chef at 56 Gold Street, which was recently purchased by Don Banks, former owner of Houndstooth Inn in San Rafael. Lunch is served daily except Saturday. Dinners are from 6 to 11 p.m.

YOU'LL NEVER BE a really good judge of wines until you can remember each wine you tasted. It isn't easy, especially if you have been sampling several wines that are similar.

You should use three of your senses to help you remember - sight, smell and taste.

Hold the wine to the light, in an untinted, unadorned glass. Examine its color and clarity.

Smell the wine's aroma and bouquet.

Sip and hold it in your mouth for a brief moment. After you swallow it, does it have an aftertaste?

If you are sampling more than one wine, clear your palate between tastings with bread and water.

And if you still don't remember — start all over again.

PETE CLUTE of San Anselmo, co-owner of Earthquake McGoon's in San Francisco is looking all over for washboards for his band.

It seems that these old corrugated scrubbers are hard to come by — particularly the ones that scrub in the key of C.

If you have one, or even an A-flat scrubber, it will get you free admission into Pete's place and a vote of thanks from Turk Murphy and his jazz band.

The Louisiana Purchase from France was consummated April 30, 1803.

Union Leader Files Libel Suit Over Mafia Linking

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A teamsters union official filed a $600,000 libel suit Thursday charging a Look Magazine article incorrectly linked him with the mafia.

The same article is the basis for a $12 million libel action filed by Mayor Joseph Alioto. That suit is pending.

Jack Goldberger, the union official, said the article suggested he "met with members of the mafia or cosa nostra for the purpose of obtaining control of the first San Francisco Bank."

The suit also says the article last September libeled him by identifying him as "the west coast teamster official who had meetings with the most influential active members of the mafia on the West Coast."

Goldberger charged the Magazine's "wanton and reckless disregard for the truth" damages his personal, social and business standing and reputation.

Also named as defendants were the article's coauthors, Richard Carlson and Lance Brisson.

Judge Bruce Thompson, in the Alioto action, denied a motion by the magazine to rule that there is no evidence in the article published with "reckless disregard for the truth."

The federal court judge was acting in a pretrial move. Jurors were unable to reach a decision on all points in the first trial of Alioto's suit.

State Funds Assured For North Campus; Master Plan Approved

State matching funds for construction of the College of Marin's north bay campus was assured yesterday by action in Sacramento, Supt.-President John A. Grasham announced last night at a special meeting of the community college district trustees.

The Coordinating Council for Higher Education, meeting in Sacramento, unanimously approved a master plan for a 5,000-student campus on 333 acres at the intersection of San Jose Boulevard and Sunset Boulevard in Novato.

Approval by the coordinating council was needed for the college to qualify for state matching funds for construction on the campus.

The policy of the Coordinating Council for Higher Education has been that a community college campus should be planned for a capacity of 10,000 students. Grasham said the big question had been whether the council would approve a plan calling for a capacity of 5,000 students.

With the last state hurdle overcome, the next step is passage of a $16.9 million bond issue on the November ballot, said Grasham. The money will be used for construction of the North Marin campus and completion of buildings on the present 77-acre campus in Kentfield. If the bond issue is approved, the state will provide $8.26 million in matching funds, Fleming reported.

The Marin Community College District board also:

RAPID TRANSIT — Heard Golden Gate Bridge District engineers Robert E. Shields and Y. T. Sasaki discuss four alternate routes under study for rapid transit from San Francisco through Marin. One of the routes, of special interest to the college, would bring an elevated structure from Mill Valley, Corte Madera, Larkspur, past the College of Marin and on to San Anselmo and the Civic Center. Shields said public hearings will be held before a route is decided.

ARTS BUILDING — Set another meeting tentatively for Oct. 8 to get cost figures from architect Joseph Feil on these two possibilities: 1. Accommodate art facilities in the existing art building next to the fine arts building and put sculpture in another building and an outdoor court. 2. Leaving all art facilities in the present building but improving the interior and adding outdoor courts with covered areas.

A Second Ferry Looms For Runs To Sausalito

A second ferryboat soon may be plying the waters between Sausalito and San Francisco.

The prospect of a second vessel was raised today when Golden Gate Bridge District directors learned that a luxurious new ferry may be available for at least a six-month charter. Directors promptly voted unanimously to have the district's staff investigate such a charter.

The vessel is the $2.5 million Avalon, designed by the bridge district's naval architect, Philip F. Spaulding of Seattle.

The Avalon, a 165-foot, 500-passenger craft, is being used in a cruise service for tourists from San Pedro. It was intended to have been used between San Pedro and Catalina Island, but operators of the Avalon have been unable to get a license for that service.

The bridge district may be able to charter the Avalon until the Catalina license is approved, now expected next spring, according to Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis.

The vessel is powered by gas turbines and cruises at about 20 knots. The district's ferryboat, the Golden Gate, cruises at about 15 knots.

Leonoudakis said that a six-month charter would give the district valuable experience with gas turbines, as well as provide a back-up vessel in case the Golden Gate conked out again.

The suggestion that the Avalon be leased was made by L. E. Castner of Sonoma County, who rode on it last week. Castner has been sharply critical of the single ferryboat operation, arguing that a back-up vessel was needed.

No cost estimate was available for the charter.

Mustang Stolen

While he was out of the city on business yesterday, someone took his 1965 bronze Ford Mustang, license NKU 390, and $465 in business and household items from his home at 236 Center Street, San Rafael, Larry Leon Russell, reported to police.

IF YOU SEE A BIG LIZARD DON'T PANIC

If you see a yard-long lizard running around in Mill Valley, the Edward Faber family would very much appreicate it if you'd let them know.

Chances aer it's the golden tegu that disappeared from the Faber home at 145 Marlin Avenue last night.

The South American jungle animal is frightening to behold but quite harmless, Phyllis Faber said. "In fact, it's very shy. It would retreat very quickly if threatened," she said.

Pedro (that's what they call it) is about three feet long, black with white splotches. It probably got out an open door last night as the Fabers, just arrived from Connecticut, moved into their new home.

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The office of the secretary of state today announced issuance of a natary public commission to Floris M. Mickley of 11 Lillian Lane, San Rafael.

Boy, 9, Is Found Dead In West Marin

Sean Joseph Rector of Fallon died from a shot fired into his ear, Keith Craig, coroner's investigator said today.

The boy, who lived with his divorced father, Robert Rector, and another man, Gerald Wiebe, had walked to a grocery store in Fallon with the men about 5 p.m., Craig said. After being bought a treat, he told them he would go home while his father kept a doctor's appointment.

At home, the boy apparently used a chair to climb up to the top shelf of a dining room cupboard, where he took out a .22-caliber pistol and shells kept there by his father.

Craig theorized the child sat on the front steps shot at cans in the front yard and then, for some reason, pointed the gun into his ear and fired it.

The father said that the child was happy and "had no problems" and had not been despondent.

Three other children in the family live with the boy's mother, Susan, in Upland, San Bernardino County, Craig said.

The boy's body was found by two young men, Greg DeCaro of Fallon and William Rossi of Isla Vista, who had gone to the Rector home to ask permission to shoot .22-caliber pistols on the property.

Funeral arrangements were pending at the Redwood Chapel in Novato.

Miskimen Still Holds Council, Board Seats

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in its front page report on Marin's representative to the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District Board in reporting John A. Miskiman had resigned from both the board and the San Rafael City Council.

Councilman Miskiman last spring presented his resignation to the city council but later rescinded it and continues to serve.

12 Apply For Rights Position

Twelve applications were submitted by yesterday's deadline for the $1,000 per month job of Director of the Marin Human Rights Department.

County personnel director Maren Rinne said her staff will review the applications, and if enough are qualified, an oral board will be set up to interview the qualified candidates.

A screening committee of the human rights commission will then make a recommendation for appointment by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The position of human rights director has been vacant since Austin J. Thompson quit under fire last June.

New Height Limit For Ferry Building Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Planning Commission adopted a 550-foot height limit Thursday for new building between the Ferry Building and the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

The move was sought to encourage U.S. Steel Corp. to build a 40-story office building and a 1,000-room hotel in that area.

Super Turf Builder

Do something for your environment this weekend!

It's simple. All you do is fill a spreader with Scotts new SUPER TURF BUILDER and take a stroll over your lawn. Super Turf Builder provides twice as much greening power as Scotts famous Turf Builder. It goes right to work on grass or dichondra—makes them green up, thicken up and stay that way longer.

Right now is a great time to spread new Super Turf Builder too. Not only because it will help your lawn "bounce back" from the ravages of summer, but also because it's on special sale now. So this weekend why not join the movement to better the environment? Right in your own front yard.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

If At First You Do Succeed, Try A Second Good Play

In most hands of any difficulty at all you can assure your contract by making just one intelligent play. In the rare hand you may have to look for a second good play after the first has succeeded. Don't begrudge the effort: if at first you do succeed, try , try again.

LEAD TO DUMMY

West leads the three of hearts, and dummy's queen is covered by the king. You win with the ace and see the danger of leading a club from your own hand.

East would be glad to capture a club honor with hie ace. He would return a heart to clear that suit. Then the bad club break would limit you to eight tricks: two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs. Whenever you led a spade, the defenders would take the ace of spades and the rest of the hearts to defeat the contract.

The safe plan is to lead the low diamond to dummy's ten at the second trick in order to lead a low club from the dummy. If East plays the ace of clubs, you can play low and take four club tricks later. You can run 10 tricks before the opponents know what hit them.

If West had the ace of clubs, he would capture the queen but could not safely resume the attack on hearts. You could develop a spade trick before the opponents could get five defensive tricks.

NEXT STEP

When the queen of clubs wins, you cannot afford to lead another club. Enter dummy with the queen of diamonds to lead a low spade. If East steps up with the ace, you are sure of the two spade tricks you need. If East plays low, your queen will win; and then you can resume the clubs to develop your ninth trick.

Even if West had the ace of spades, and captured your queen of spades, he could not make a damaging attack. You would have time to get your club tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ K 10 5 3
♠ — Q
♦ Q 10 5
♣ K J 9 5 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

The hand is not quite worth an opening bid. You have 11 points in high cards and two points for the singleton, but should deduct one or two points since a singleton queen is simply not worth two points in high cards and another two points for shortness.

Branson School Opening Is Set

Katharine Branson School in Ross will start its 51st year Wednesday with an opening assembly at 8:30 a.m. for alumnae, parents and friends.

Students representing 14 states and several foreign countries will attend the girls' school this year, Headmaster H. Leonard Richardson has reported.

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, Sept. 11, the 254th day of 1970 with 111 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1941 all members of President John Tyler's cabinet resigned except Secretary of tSate Daniel Webster. They were protesting the veto of a banking bill.

In 1940 in the early days of World War II, Buckingham Palace in London was damaged by German bombers.

In 1963 all 81 aboard an Indian airlines Viscount died when the plane crashed near New Delhi.

A thought for the day: Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "Life is not so short but that there is always time for courtesy."

Immigration Head Giving Up Post

Cecil W. Fullilove of Greenbrae, will retire on Oct. 31 as district director of immigration in San Francisco, a position he has held since 1963.

Fullilove, 51, started his career with the Immigration Service in 1941 as a border patrolman at El Paso, Tex.

After his retirement, he will take a position of general manager of a San Francisco realty investment company. He resides at 1 La Cuesta Drive.

UCCESSFUL INVESTING

Switch To Growth Fund Not A Benefit

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own 1,430 shares of Massachusetts Investors Trust as a result of a $15,000 investment in 1958. Because the fund is large it doesn't seem to make much head-way. I like mutual funds and hesitate to move into another company altogether. What do you think of switching to Massachusetts Investors Growth Fund? — A.W.

A. The $15,000 which you invested twelve years ago has a net asset value of $17,500 on today's market. Apparently you have taken all distributions in cash through the years rather than reinvesting in shares. The switch to Massachusetts Growth may not be as advantageous as you imagine, if past performance is any indication. A comparison of a $10,000 investment made in 1960, with all distributions taken in cash, shows a value 10 years later approximately [illegible]0 per cent greater for Massachusetts Growth Fund. However, dividends and capital gains distributions would have made up one-third of the difference in value at the end of the decade. Furthermore the drop in net asset value in the first seven months of this year would also reduce the disparity, since your shares have declined 17.5 per cent compared with a 26.5 per cent decline for Massachusetts Growth. In the most recent twelve months you have received about $280 more in dividend income and $300 more from capital gains distributions than if you had owned Massachusetts Growth.

Q. I understand that General Foods has bought Viviane Woodward which is growing fast. Do you think I should buy in light of this? — S.G.

A. This development is only one of several reasons for purchasing this quality growth issue. Viviane Woodward, a door-to-door cosmetics firm, had sales last year of $7.3 million, less than one-half of 1 per cent of General Foods. More important, however, is the company's high — over 12 per cent — profit margin. This, combined with General Food's aggressive merchandising methods — distributors have been increased by 50 per cent so far this year — could add to the long-range growth potential in these shares.

NEW TORONADO — For 1971, the wheelbase on Oldsmobile's front-drive Toronado is 122 inches — three inches longer than previous models. It is a roomier car — particularly in front and rear seat shoulder room where measurements are increased over five inches. Cars will be sold in Marin County at Scripture Oldsmobile, Inc., San Rafael.

DODGE NEW COMPACT — This little Demon is in the Dodge compact famly for 1971. Smaller than its 111-inch wheelbase Dart "big brother," it will be available in two series — a standard two-door and a performance version, the Demon 340 shown above. Cars will be on sale in Marin at Marin Dodge, San Rafael and Nave Dodge, Novato.

Fiat-Citroen Link To Challenge VW

BONN, GERMANY (GF) — Can Volkswagen of West Germany keep its position as Europe's biggest auto manufacturer in view of plans for a closer link-up between Fiat of Italy and France's Citroen? The question is heard here frequently nowadays.

In 1969, Fiat and Citroen together produced 1,965,000 passenger cars and trucks, some 60,000 more than Volkswagen in the same period.

In terms of these figures at least, a Fiat-Citroen grouping could replace VW as the world's third biggest auto maker after General Motors and Ford.

In Germany itself, VW should stay at the top for the foreseeable future. Last year, the company increased sales by 19 per cent to 3.8 billion dollars. This year sales are expected to climb to 4.3 billion dollars.

Fidelity Savings Head Office Relocating In San Francisco

The head office of Fidelity Savings and Loan Association, third largest savings and loan company in the state will be moved next week from Berkeley to San Francisco.

The association will be at 260 California Street in a 12-story building, which Fidelity owns. A Fidelity savings office occupies the ground floor.

There are 15 Fidelity branches in Northern California, including offices in San Rafael and Mill Valley. The company has assets in excess of $400 million.

GLOBE MINERALS, INC., San Francisco has elected Allyn W. Falls as chairman, president and chief operating officer. He succeeds Al T. Hays, who will head a new subsidiary in natural resources development. Falls has served in executive capacities with Singer, Inc., Friden, Inc. and Forbes Market Research, Inc.

PACIFIC LIGHTING CORP., Los Angeles has made its fifth acquistion in less than a year — a group of real estate service companies in Honolulu. These are Hawaii Shopping Center Corp., Hawaii Management Corp., Hawaii Real Property Corp. and Don R. Cowell and Associates, Inc. Acquired for 95,700 shares of Pacific Lighting common stock, the four companies will be operated in conjunction with Blackfield Hawaii Corp., acquired by Pacific Lighting last November.

U.S. NATURAL RESOURCES INC., Menlo Park has concluded its mergers with Lassen National Park Co. and Mt. McKinley National Park Co. USNR also owns a controlling 38 per cent interest in Yosemite Park and Curry Co.

INTERSIL, INC., Cupertino has appointed James F. Riley president. He has been president of Signetics, Sunnyvale (a subsidiary of Corning Glass Works) for the past six years.

JOHN BREUNER CO., Oakland has reported net income of $293,408 on sales of $11,284,742 for the three months ended July 31. This compares with net income of $321,748 on sales of $10,814,723 for the second quarter last year, which included an extraordinary item of $106,073. Net income for the second quarter of 1970 was 27 cents a share, compared with 20 cents before last year's extraordinary item.

ALLIED SUPERMARKETS, Detroit has realigned its top management, with Thomas McMasters, chairman of the executive committee, named chairman of the board and chief executive officer. Former chairman Charles E. Jolitz is now vice chairman. Revenol Duryea continues as president and chief operating officer. Allied operates 396 supermarkets in 31 states under several different names. Sales in fiscal 1970 were almost $1 billion.

THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, Newfoundland has signed a $155 million contract for construction of a huge Newfoundland Refining Co., Ltd. crude oil refinery to be constructed 90 miles west of St. John's . Construction is expected to start within 60 days, with the refinery operating with in 24 months. Newfoundland Refining is owned by Shaheen Natural Resources.

NUCLEAR ENGINEERING CO., Walnut Creek directors have announced a 10-per cent stock dividend payable Dec. 1.

FAIRCHILD CAMERA AND INSTRUMENT CO. is reorganizing its executive staff, including a reshuffling of the management of its semiconductor division, headquartered in Mountain View. Under the changes, the semiconductor division is placed under four operating heads who report directly to C. Lester Hogan, president and chief executive officer. F. Stocks Rise During Mixed Turnover

Shortly before the final bell, the Dow Jones Industrial Average was up 1.09 at 761.84. Of the 1,554 issues on the tape, advances topped declines, 771 to 479.

Turnover around 11 3-4-million shares compared with 11,900,000 shares Thursday.

Demand for stocks was restrained by normal profit taking following the sharp mid-August rise and by a number of news factors, including the threat of strikes in the automotive and rail industries at midnight Monday and concern over the airline hijackings in the Middle East.

At the close, trading was mixed. DuPont closed at 122 up 1-4 General Electric 80 1-4 up 1-4; General Motors 72 1-8 up 1-4; IBM 268 3-4 up 1-2; Southern Pacific 29 7-8 off 3-8; Standard Oil of New Jersey 64 3-4 off 1-2; and U.S. Steel 31 5-8 off 1-4.

One analyst said belief that a cut in the prime bank lending rate is close at hand helped divert traders' attention from an otherwise unfriendly news environment.

Auto stocks generally moved narrowly, while a few point-sized gainers were noted in the oils and electronics. Airlines and chemicals showed scattered strength.

Among the most active issues were Federal National Mortgage (Fannie Mae), Marathon Oil and Natomas. Marathon traded a block of 170,200 shares at 30, off 3-4.

Packing Resumed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Universal Container Corp. announced resumption of operations at the Texas Meat Packers Inc. livestock slaughtering facility in Lubbock, Tex. Activities at the facility were suspended on July 22 because of economic conditions. Texas Meat Packers is a subsidiary of Universal Container.

Construction Of Shopping Area Planned

Construction on a major shopping center in the central business area of Petaluma is expected to get under way next spring.

Walter Kiechhefer of Ignacio, developer of the Pacheco Plaza Shopping Center in the community, said he has completed acquisition of approximately seven acres on East Washington Street, near Redwood and Levee Streets, Petaluma and is going ahead with his architectural plans and leasing for 95,000 square feet under roof to be completed by Christmas of 1971.

Kieckhefer said he plans on biulding a large continuous structure to contain a major supermarket, a large drug store and a number of "shoppers' goods" stores. There would also be an additional freestanding building to house a bank and he said a savings and loan company possibly could be among the tenants. The remaining ground would be used for common ground and parking. Architectural plans are now being prepared by Mitsuru Tada of San Francisco.

Agency Questions Lee's Purchase

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The Missouri Public Service Commission has rejected a plea by Lee National Corp. to dismiss proceedings initiated by the commission inquiring into the firm's right to acquire and own over 10 per cent of the stock of Kansas City Southern Industries, Inc. Kansas City Southern disclosed the action.

The public agency, which opens a formal hearing Oct. 2, wants to know whether Lee National's purchase of more than 20 pre cent of the outstanding shares of Kansas City Southern violates a regulation requiring a company to obtain the commission's approval before acquiring or holding more than 10 per cent of the stock.

Two-Thirds 'Yes' Needed In Bond Elections Tuesday

Voters in two Marin school districts and one southern Sonoma district will ballot Tuesday on bond issues.

Only one of the elections — that in Bolinas-Stinson School District — involves a new bond issue. The others — in Mill Valley and Old Adobe districts — are on increasing the interest rate on previously approved issues from 5 per cent to 7 per cent.

The elections are being held at a time when the requirement for approval of bond issues is in considerable doubt. The California Supreme Court has held that requiring two-thirds favorable vote is unconstitutional. However, the matter is before the U.S. Supreme Court, and its ruling is not expected for several months, since it will not go into session until next month and is to hear cases involving school desegregation, the 18-year-old vote, and the death penalty before considering the two-thirds bond approval matter.

Because the state court's decision has been challenged, school districts have been advised by county counsels to proceed on the assumption that two-thirds approval still is required.

THE ISSUE in Bolinas-Stinson involves enlarging the Bolinas School property by one-quarter acre and building a new school there to replace the present Bolinas School and the abandoned Stinson Beach School. The district has been working toward this end for several years, but has failed to pass bond issues for the purpose.

The Bolinas-Stinson district undeniably needs new and better school facilities. Whether the issue is approved must hinge on whether the people of the district desire a single school. If they do, they should vote "yes" to make an adequate single school possible.

THE ISSUE BEFORE voters in the Mill Valley district in Marin and the Old Adobe district in the Petaluma area is very simple.

Neither case involves adding or relocating any facility not already approved in previous elections. It is simply a matter of making the bonds saleable so the money can be raised to complete projects already approved.

When the bond market early this year reached the point where school bonds no longer are saleable at 5 per cent interest, the state legislature raised the permissible rate to 7 per cent. However, a limit of 5 per cent was included in bond proposals at previous elections. Therefore, the districts must go back to the voters to get approval to sell the bonds at higher interest.

Even those voters who opposed the original plans for which the Mill Valley and Old Adobe bonds were authorized have little reason to balk at the interest increase. The issues were approved, the building programs have been started, and it would be impractical to abandon them now.

CORRECTION: In Tuesday's editorial, the projected speed of the SST (Super-sonic transport) was given as 800 miles per hour. This should have read 1,800 miles per hour. This would be 400 miles per hour greater than the speed made in a flight test by the French-British Concorde.

New Book Tells Full Story Of California Political History

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Every so often comes a book on California which has unlimited value as a reference volume, as well as being filled with interest and written readably.

Such is "The Rumble of California Politics, 1848-1970," published by John Wiley & Sons, Inc., New York, and written by a group of politicians and professors, as well as one newspaperman who had much to do with co-ordination of the work.

This newspaperman was Earl G. Waters, founder and former editor and manager of Western News Service, the predecessor of Capitol News Service. The other general editors were Royce D. Delmatier, chairman of the department of political science, and Clarence F. McIntosh, professor of history, both of Chico State College.

BOTH WATERS and Delmatier were state employees when they decided to write a book about California politics. Waters was chief of the division of investigation of the Department of Professional and Vocational Standards, and Delmatier headed one of the departments.

Both had their troubles when the Republicans took over from the Democrats and Ronald Reagan became governor.

The personal connection of the two with California politics, however, has no influence on the content of the book, which is a highly factual chronicle of events from 1848, the beginning, to 1970, by no means the end.

PERHAPS the book is ill-named, being called "the rumble" of California politics. As a matter of fact, the book is more a living history than a "rumble," beginning with the Indians and ending with the Republicans, who were in full power in 1970.

Probably in no book on California politics is there so much of the drama of life among the high and mighty rulers who made California history.

Not only are the chiefs dealt with in the book, but aside of those who played secondary roles make up a good part of the action. Thus names which might have been forgotten in the long and sometimes ponderous history of California are brought back to life.

Also, the age of "panaceas," including EPIC and "30 Dollars Every Thursday," is dealt with in detailed manner. This was a highly important era in California history, as it depicted in a measure how foolish people can get when they try to get something for nothing.

All in all, this is a book not only worth reading, but also worth possessing, as it is bound to settle many an argument over what happened when in California politics. The editors have done their work well, and the state is fortunate in having such an accurate chronicle available.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

In Nancy Milford's "Zelda," the fascinating story of the Scott Fitzgeralds' madcap but ultimately disastrous careers, she tells how one day, traveling by train through Europe, the beautiful, irresponsible Zelda suddenly clutched her husband's arm and exclaimed, "Good God, Scott! We forgot the baby!"

A confirmed bachelor ran into an old pal who had deserted the ranks of the unmarried two months earlier and inquired, "Well, Dick, how's married life?"

"Wonderful!" enthused Dick. "You're a sucker not to try it. Every evening I come home to a house that's shiny and clean. My paper and slippers are laid out for me, the TV is turned to my favorite program, and the dinner that's served me — well, it's perfect."

The bachelor must have looked a bit dubious, because Bridegroom Dick hastened to add, "Maybe I forgot one detail: we're living with my mother."

(Frank Interlandi, who draws "Cynic's Corner," has suffered a heart attack. It is not known when he will be able to return to the drawing board.)

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Sept. 11, 1960

Bob Hope, 18-year-old Mill Valley resident, won the 50th running of the Dipsea Handicap Race in 47 minutes, 41 seconds.

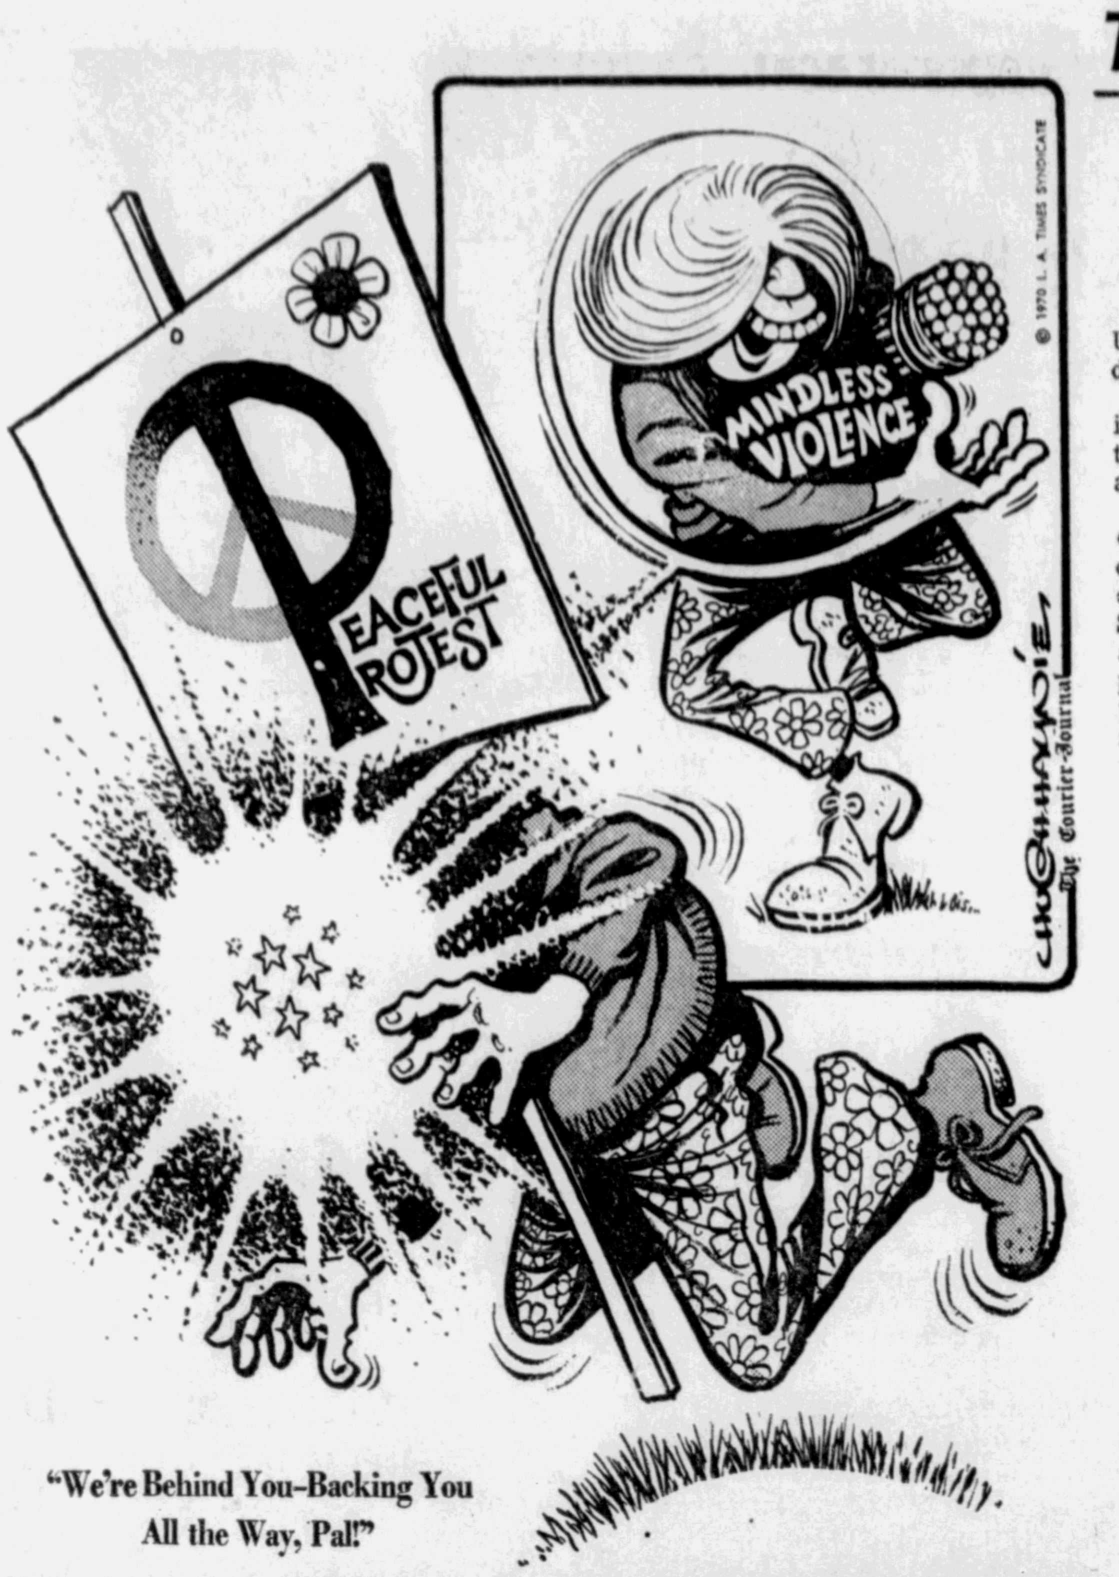
The Marin County Planning Commission approved overall rezoning of the Bolinas Mesa to "upgrade" its residential aspects.

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 11, 1950

Marin County supervisors asked the district attorney's office to draw up a loyalty oath for county employees.

Larkspur and Corte Madera city councils talked about agreeing on boundary lines between the two cities, but the session ended when tempers flared.



"We're Behind You–Backing You All the Way, Pal!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Plague Of Noisy, Reckless Drivers

Noisiest city in Marin County? Beautiful, tranquil Mill Valley is getting to be just that. They are the new breed of screwball drivers, who now flagrantly disregard all noise abatement laws. They drive recklessly with open cut-outs blasting, night or day.

Carmelita Avenue is a prime example of it. One dare not open their bedroom windows. The din emitted from these racy cars and motorcycles (makes it) impossible to get restful sleep, and it is getting consistently worse.

There are no traffic caution signs nor cross-walks for the adult pedestrian or their children who go to and from school . .

Our worthy mayor and members of our city council must be alerted to the dangers of this new crop of reckless drivers now taking over our narrow streets . . .

Our city traffic control is inadequate to handle this ever-growing menancing situation. We need more traffic officers.

Should Not Have To Plead For Pay

It is too bad the sheriff's department had to buy a full page ad Aug. 28. in the I.-J. appealing to the citizens of Marin to help them by writing their supervisors telling them how they feel about a raise of 15 per cent and other well deserved benefits.

I am not alone I am sure in writing my supervisor, nor perhaps in wondering at the irony of things: Alan Bruce was appointed by the supervisors and then he turns around and usurps them of all their power. So how much good our appeals to the supervisors will do remains to be seen.

Bruce has always been so generous with his own raises I am surprised he would stoop to dicker with the infinitesimal 15 per cent raise asked by our safety employees. God knows they are the most important people in their valuable service to this or any community.

Harmless Trap For Yellow Jackets

I would like to share with your readers a method I have devised for killing yellow jackets. It uses no poisons, costs next to nothing, and, while it doesn't snag every one of the pests, we have found it wonderfully effective in controlling the adults that roam over the lawn.

Take a broad, shallow pan — a pie plate, an old TV dinner plate, or even the dog's dish — and put one-half inch to three-quarters inch of water in it. Put in a few drops of ordinary detergent, and mix gently. Then put in a few scraps of raw or cooked meat, the right size to barely be above the level of the water in the pan. Tie up the dog(s), place the pan on the grass in the sun, and come back later to count the drowned yellow jackets!

WASHINGTON WINDOW

That Dependency Ratio Is Sneaking Up On You

By LOUIS CASSELS, UPI Senior Editor

But if you're a middle age, middle income American, it's time you got acquainted with it. It's putting a financial squeeze on you.

Dependency ratio is a term used by economists to denote the relationship between the number of people of working age, and the number who are too young or too old to work.

ONE WAY or another — directly through private support or indirectly through funds which the government takes in through taxation and dispenses through aid programs—the working age population picks up the tab for the maintenance of the non-working population.

If the working age population grows faster than the non-working population, the dependency ratio declines, which reduces the burden of support carried by people in their productive years. But when the non-working age groups grow larger relative to the working age group, the dependency ratio rises and there is increased financial pressure on those who draw paychecks.

IF YOU'VE GOT all that clear in your mind, you're ready for the bad news revealed by a study condusted for the Senate's special committee on aging.

During the past generation, there has been a sharp rise in the dependency ratio. And the trend is still upward.

As recently as 1950, there were two people in the so-called productive ages of 18 through 64 for every one child under 18.

Because of a big jump in the child population, resulting from high birth rates in the 1945-1960 era, the ratio is now about 3 to 2, instead of 2 to 1.

Moreover, economists now recognize that it's unrealistic to use age 18 as the dividing line between non-productive and productive years. More and more young people are going to college, or into the armed services, or otherwise remaining out of the civilian labor force beyond 18.

MEANWHILE, the number of non-productive persons also is growing at the other end of the age scale. In 1940, there were 11 people aged 65 or older for every 100 in the productive 18-64 age bracket. Today, the ration is 17 over 65 for every 100 in the 18-64 group.

And it is becoming increasingly doubtful that 65 is a realistic age to mark the beginning of retirement. In recent years, nearly half of all the men starting to receive Social Security benefits have been under the age of 65. If this trend toward earlier retirement continues, there'll soon be 28 non-productive older people for every 100 in the working age population.

Taking both trends together — the increasing number of young people who haven't started to work and the increasing number of older people who've stopped work — the United States seems to be heading toward a 1 to 1 dependency ratio.

That means that for every person of working age (whether or not actually employed), there'll be one who is considered too young or too old to work.

WITH GROWING automation and rising industrial productivity, that may be an economically feasible and socially desirable arrangement. Certainly, the prospect does not call for rushing into rash "remedies" such as discouraging college attendance or postponing the age of eligibility for social security benefits.

But it's a long-term factor which needs to be understood, pondered and taken into account in both social and personal planning.

THE DRUMMONDS

Two Proposed New Constitutions –Both Worthy Of Examination

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Two new U.S. constitutions are being drafted.

One is radical and democratic. The other is drastic and totalitarian. Both should be examined.

One draft comes from the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, a nonprofit educational organization at Santa Barbara. Its principal author, aided by some 150 experts, is Rexford G. Tugwell, a political scientist who was considered quite a far-out national planner in the early New Deal.

It is thoughtful, preserves the democratic process, reduces the states from 50 to 20, strengthens the presidency, weakens the judiciary, and creates a more powerful national government.

It is destructive, destroys the democratic process, proposes to come to power by gunfire and to retain power by putting arms into the hands of "the people" — the people who would want to keep such a government in power.

The Panther draft is not yet in final form, but its whole thrust is Marxist in ways which horrify Marx and dictatorial in ways which would gladden Hitler.

It can be all to the good that both proposed constitutions come along at the same time. The Panthers' constitution makes the Tugwell constitution seem modest and moderate.

CONSIDER BOTH:

— The Tugwell constitution because our present institutions are not responding adequately to the stressful problems of today's society. It may be that it is the politicians and not the institutions that often are stuck and stagnant, but it won't hurt to look at both.

— The Panthers' constitution deserves consideration because it is a precise and timely warning of what the most militant, violent-minded group in the United States is prepared to do to impose its will.

WE CAN UNDERSTAND some of the motivation of the Panthers.

They feel that because our democratic government has been horribly unfair to blacks in the past, the only way to end unfairness is to end democratic government. They see the remaining consequences of discrimination, not the tremendous progress which has been made in civil rights laws and equal rights actions during the past two decades.

The speeches delivered and the proposals made at the recent Philadelphia convention of the Black Panther party show that its leaders reject majority rule, reject persuasion and popular elections as the means of peaceful change. They call for Viet Cong-style guerrilla warfare in America as the next stage in their projected revolution. Their motto: Shoot the police, shoot the authorities, shoot the opposition.

THE FULL POWER of the law must be brought to bear against the Panthers' resort to violence. Their ideas will stand or fall in the arena of free speech where the rights of all to speak out should be protected. However, society can and must protect itself, and it is time to appreciate more fully the personal peril in which the police are operating and to give them the support they need.

But if the public focuses its hostility primarily at the Panthers and others who share their purposes, we will be hitting only at the lesser danger. The extremists won't have either a case or a following if the nation acts responsively and responsibly to redress just grievances and to demonstrate that democratic government can do its job.

The violence-prone extremists don't want reform. They hope that the democratic government won't respond to what needs to be done because they hope that lethargic government will win them converts.

As democratic government transacts the public business effectively and humanely, the violent extremists will have little to feed their cause.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

'Don't Blame The Criminal, It's All Your Own Fault'

(Reprinted from Kitsap County Herald, Poulsbo, Wash.)

The voice on the radio carries the kind of low-budget sincerity that goes with free public service announcements.

The speaker wants me to lock my car.

If you leave your keys in the car, he says, some kid may steal it and get himself arrested and thrown in jail. And it will be all your fault.

Then there is a little 15-second testimonial in which a tough-sounding criminal type explains that he would be a respectable citizen today if somebody hadn't tempted him by leaving a car where he could steal it. That car, it develops, carried him into a life of crime.

By now the announcer is almost sobbing.

THIS LITTLE spot announcement made me realize I wearing out my credentials as a do-gooder.

Good boy? If he is a good boy, why is he stealing my car?

Lock him up, officer. My conscience is clear.

Once the public service guys have abolished car thefts by their appeals, perhaps they will turn to new fields.

Don't walk in the city at night. You may tempt some good boy to clobber you over the head and steal your billfold.

Don't leave your rural mailbox out there by the road. You might encourage some good boy to become a vandal by knocking it down.

Never leave anything of value in your home. You might be responsible for a whole bunch of good boys organizing a burglary ring.

THINKING ABOUT IT, there's almost no limit to the number of mean tricks people play on good boys — and on adults, too.

Don't leave your groceries out there on the open shelves, merchant. You may be encouraging some nice middle-aged housewife to try her hand at shoplifting.

If this public service thing really works, somebody should try directing it toward the good boys instead of their potential victims.

"Listen, you punks," the announcer can say, "don't steal cars. Instead grow up and go into politics. It pays better."

Short Respite In Sausalito Between School Board Campaigns

Sausalito residents who are hoping for some kind of stability in the membership of the Sausalito School District Board after next week's election had best not hold their breaths.

Two seats, those formerly occupied by trustees C. Gerald Clear and James E. Muldoon (who resigned this summer) are up for grabs in Tuesday's election.

The two new board members, who will be chosen from four candidates, will join trustees Nathaniel Johnson, Delta Christ and Jerry L. Whitcomb. Johnson is the only remaining member of the former board. Mrs. Christ and Whitcomb were elected in June in a successful recall of trustees David E. Freedheim and Martha Freebairn-Smith.

"It's getting to the point that I almost don't care who is elected, just so long as we can have a full board and get on with business," one Sausalito woman said last week.

BUT THE WOMAN, and many other residents of the district, may not realize that two board seats will be up for election again in less than seven months and the entire campaign hoopla will begin again.

As simply as possible the situation is this: Mrs. Christ ran for Mrs. Freebairn-Smith's seat in June. Since Mrs. Freebairn-Smith's term was due to expire in April of next year, Mrs. Christ's term will expire at that time.

Since Whitcomb replaced Freedheim, who was elected in 1969, his term of office will run until 1973. The person who receives the most votes Tuesday will be given Clear's unexpired term which will also run until 1973. But the other winner Tuesday will fill out Muldoon's term, which is also up in April of 1971.

This year's flurry of recalls and resignations will mean there could be two entirely new board members again next April. And, since campaigns tend to start about three months before the big day, politicking could begin again as early as January.

All of which will make the district's fervent hope of "de-politicizing" during the next year hard to realize.

IF - WE - ONLY - KNEW - then - what - we - know - now - department: The City of Sausalito (thanks to voter approval of a recent bond issue) plans to purchase six waterfront lots for the princely sum of $560,000.

Even though all of the land but approximately two acres is under water, the city is getting a pretty fair deal, at least if one considers current prices in Southern Marin's boom town.

But in 1945 — not all that long ago — the city council of the day had a chance to purchase all the waterfront land between the old Purity stores building (adjacent to Princess Park) and the old San Francisco Yacht Club.

The asking price of $6,000 (with terms of $1,000 down and $1,000 a year) included the attractive yacht club building which now houses the Ondine and Trident restaurants.

The offer — at which the council turned up its collective nose — was made in a letter to Councilman Randolph Petterson from William A. La Violette, then staff commodore of the club.

This frustrating piece of Sausalito history came to light recently when Capt. Ralph K. Pedersen of the Sausalito Fire Department was going through some old letters which belonged to Petterson, the captain's uncle.

Clipper Yacht Land Switch To Be Studied

Clipper Yacht Co. may drop its plan for a yacht harbor in Strawberry Cove if the county will allow it to use county underwater property for expansion of the present Clipper Yacht Harbor at Gate 5 in Sausalito.

This possibility will be discussed Monday morning by the Marin County Planning Commission. The all-day meeting will start at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell said a land swap has been suggested by Clifford M. Pederson, owner of Clipper Yacht Co., and by developer Paul J. Broman of Peacock Gap.

The county now owns about six acres of land within clipper's breakwaters. This could be swapped for part of the 20 acres owned by Clipper in Strawberry Cove, on the Bay side of Seminary Drive. Clipper has been trying to install a yacht harbor, restaurant and apartments at Strawberry Cove.

Broman, developer of the Japanese Trade Center in San Francisco, has purchased Leonard B. Fleischman's property on the northeast side of Strawberry Cove and wants to include the adjacent land owned by Clipper for joint development.

Marin County Planning commissioners will also discuss the 186-page housing report prepared by the county planning staff. The report warns of a housing crisis that is squeezing all but the wealthy out of Marin County.

Other items on the commission agenda include:

LAND DIVISION — Requests for lot splits by Laura Mackin, who has 18,650 square feet at the corner of Rydal Avenue and Melrose Avenue, Homestead Valley; and Ethel Steiner, who owns 16,000 square feet on Bolinas Mesa on the east side of Juniper Road between Alder and Larch roads.

STREET ABANDONMENT — Developers of Ocean Marin, north of Dillon Beach, want four roads within the subdivision abandoned by the county and turned back to a private corporation so that the subdivision will remain rural and vandals and trespassers can be controlled.

MOTEL — Donald R. Telford, who owns 33,000 square feet at 6 Thomas Drive on the east side of Highway 101, North of Alto, will ask for rezoning for a motel.

HOUSEBOATS — Commissioners will continue discussion of Donlan J. Arques's application for docks and berths for 225 houseboats at Gate 6, and George Kappas' request for 72 more berths just to the north. This is in the houseboat area at Waldo Point in Richardson Bay.

Pedestrian, Driver Hurt In Wrecks

A pedestrian and the driver of a car were to see their own doctors for injuries received in two accidents, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Elvira Salazar Bailey, 23, of San Francisco, received a minor scrape on her right elbow and complained of back pain, according to police.

She was crossing Lincoln Avenue at Third Street at 3 p.m. Tuesday, and collided with a car going south on Lincoln and turning onto Third, police reported. Driver of the car was Stanley Shrout, 33, of Clovis, Fresno County.

May Francis Farrell, 60, of 25 Nova Vista, San Anselmo, received minor injuries to her right ankle and right arm in a two-car accident at 1:15 a.m. Wednesday at Fourth and H Streets, police reported.

The Farrell car was going south on H Street when it collided with a car going east on Fourth Street. It was driven by Stephen Darol Williamson, 18, of 49 Terry Circle, Novato. Williamson was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Tunney Center

Cleaver Unsure Where Angela Is

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Eldridge Cleaver, Black Panther Party leader who fled to Algeria, says he does not know the whereabouts of Angela Davis.

In a long-distance talk Thursday with the San Francisco Chronicle, he called the hijacking of our aircraft by Palestinian guerrillas "a truly revolutionary act."

Miss Davis, a negro militant, disappeared as she was charged in the killing of a Marin County judge during an unsuccessful courtroom escape attempt. Police say she bought the guns that were smuggled into the court.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Let's Apply A Little Logic As To Who Pays For Insurance

Fusselman

The front-page story in the Tuesday I-J, "Supervisors Reject Two-Man Patrol Plea," startled me no end. Judging from the phone calls, I wasn't the only one alarmed.

The vote was Gnoss and Barr, aye — McInnis, Wornum and Arrigoni, no. The noes each gave their reasons. Most of you must have read the article.

The sheriff asked for five new deputies so as to have two-man patrol shift. Since the sad and terrible Aug. 7 shootout, he has been operating that service by working men overtime.

Those voting against the request all admitted the need, but pointed to the dwindling county reserve which they said must be protected.

Of course there was the long-time objection of city officials to pay for services in the unincorporated areas. John Barrows, assistant to the administrator, as always threw roofing nails in the path.

WHAT FOLLOWS is an attempt to cause some logical thinking about the attitude toward the unincorporated areas. This attitude is about as ancient as the fixations of the Middle East. The present officials are merely carrying on the rituals they inherited. Perhaps some day it will change. I hope so. It's time we realize that we are one people, with overriding, interlocking needs and obligations.

Of course no one should have to pay for public services that in no way benefit him whatever. However, there must be a determination as to whether or not there is any degree of benefit involved.

Suppose we consider a few situations in this determination.

SHOULD COUPLES who have no children be taxed for schools? Should families who are never involved in court cases, civil or criminal, pay taxes to maintain the courts? This "maintain" in the broad sense would include the cost of construction of a Hall of Justice, any bond interest that may be outstanding.

Naturally when one says "courts" there is the inclusion of the judges' salaries and those of the attendants. The district attorney and staff must be included. The jails must be considered a part of the overall activity.

Should property owners who have not achieved their citizenship, pay for election expenses? They can't vote.

Should residents of the cities pay for the activities of the board of supervisors and their satellites? They have no jurisdiction within city boundaries. The budget cost is $1,317,599.

Should the residents of the cities pay construction costs and maintenance of the elegant quarters housing this group?

Should the people in West Marin, who had the National Seashore thrust upon them, bear the responsibility of maintaining law and order and the protection of the thousands who are attracted?

ISN'T IT A FACT that many hundreds, perhaps thousands who are attending are residents of the cities of Marin and their relatives and friends? Is it or is it not fair that these city groups pay for the standby service which they might need desperately one day?

Isn't it a fact that in central, northern and southern Marin, boundaries are so intermingled that sheriff patrol cars are constantly traversing the city streets and are available as backup for the local police departments?

My friends, I know about these things. When I was mayor of San Anselmo I proposed and worked for the establishment of the first police radio system in the county. I believe it was the first, for a small city, in the state. About 1950, while I was supervisor, I proposed a sheriff's roving patrol. It was opposed by one element of the board and it took three years before I could get it going.

WHY DO WE ALL carry insurance? The answer is simple. We carry it for the day we hope will never come. The same is true of the sheriff's roving patrol.

When we listen to the newscasts and read the stories daily, it would seem to me that the supervisors should be more concerned with safety and protection of the individual than nursing the reserve for other contingencies such as putting on a big show for the opening of the auditorium. If necessary, that and other things could wait a year without disaster.

From the very beginning I sat and listened to the administrator try to ding the activity of the sheriff's department. It always puzzled me.

VW Will Offer Economy Model

DETROIT (UPI)—Volkswagen is increasing its standard VW price to $1,899 in 1971 models but will market a stripped-down $1,790 model to undercut new American subcompacts, the Detroit News reported Thursday.

Automotive writer Robert W. Irvin said the stripped-down model would undercut all domestic subcompacts unveiled to stop foreign inroads, particularly by Volkswagen, into the U.S. market.

The standard VW model would undercut Ford's Pinto, which goes on sale today, by $20, and Chevrolet's Vega, which went on sale Thursday, by $129.

MRS. ROBERT CAMPBELL

Knitting, Creative Stitchery Teacher

By DOROTHY NEWELL

For the first time a course in knitting and creative stitchery will be offered at College of Marin.

It all began eight years ago when Mrs. Sylvia Campbell of Novato began a knitting class at the Novato High School adult education evening program. Her creative stitchery classes were started six years ago.

Mrs. Campbell was the first accredited teacher in Northern California to teach the adult program at the evening high school. This was when recently retired Robert McKeay was the principal, and the knitting classes became one of the most popular.

Last month, Sylvia Campbell's ideas were listed along with other teachers throughout the country in a teachers knitting exchange bulletin sent to teachers from the "Popular Needlework Magazine," and it outlines her course in brief.

Sylvia said "This was the most satisfactory class I have ever taught."

Her classes involve 12 three-hour sessions, and her first class consists of "show and tell" demonstration of various handcrafts that can be considered, showing all the handwork she is prepared to teach. Final choice is given the class members, and last year her class decided on crochet, latchet hook, rugs and embroidery.

According to Peggy Chester, columnist with the "Popular Needlework Magazine," "This gal (Mrs. Campbell) has some marvelous ideas, and her students are extremely fortunate to have her services available to them."

Many of the crochet patterns of doilies are being revived that were used during grandmother's day as table covers.

As a child, Mrs. Campbell spent some time in a convent and was taught crocheting and embroidering by the nuns. By the time she was married to her husband, Robert, she had quite a stock of pillow cases and towels, she said.

However, it was her husband's mother, the late Mrs. Alice Campbell, who had no daughters, who taught her how to knit. She learned quickly she said and had a knit wardrobe within a year.

"Knitting is really my thing," she said.

She now knits professionally, and her hands are never idle when she sits down. She knits while riding in the car, in movies, while reading and while visiting with guests.

She and her husband have been married 16 years, and they have three children. Cheryl, 13, now also knits professionally, Laurie, 11, doesn't care much about knitting but loves to study "bugs," and Andrew, 5 years old, likes to embroider and spells words out. His mother says she doesn't believe embroidering is feminine.

"There are more men designers than women in this field, over one-half the proof readers are men, and almost all sales are handled by men, she said.

"My own husband is interested in the creative field, and his help in invaluable in design and picture framing."

Mrs. Campbell says she stresses to her students and her friends, "If it's worth making, it's worth using."

With her classes in her home every day, the Creative Needle craft Studio, a licensed business, the University of California graduate keeps a busy schedule.

Her classes will begin at Novato High School, Monday from 7 to 10 p.m. and every Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. for a 12 week session. College of Marin class will begin on Sept. 23 and run every Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m.

This busy woman not only finds time for the classes but also runs a well organized home.

"I'm regimented," she said, "but I couldn't do it without the help of my family."

She bakes bread twice a week and cans several hundred quarts of fruits and vegetables from their garden.

"I hope I'm never too busy to be an 'ordinary housewife,'" she said.

"I can't really take credit for everything," she said, "as both of the girls help with cooking and canning."

As a family group, they all enjoy 4-H work and playing musical instruments. "And square dancing is 'our own thing'," she said, as "his and her" pleasure.

The creative woman says her first interest has been music. She sang for a number of years with the Novato Choraliers and the Winifred Baker Chorale.

Her teaching of creative needlecrafts, she said, is not a business but a way to stimulate the students to paint with yarn.

Mrs. Campbell's needlecraft art can be seen at the Novato General Hospital, where they are on display.

(I-J photos by Alfred Arn)

"KNITTING is really my thing," says Mrs. Campbell as she models the knit pants she designed with the vest now so popular. She also made the white knit suit with gold sequins knitted into the fabric, embroidered the stitching on the square dance dress and gave color to the plain black dress with stitchery.

THE CREATIVE and talented Mrs. Robert Campbell of Novato displays some of the needlecraft in the living room of the home. Mrs. Campbell will be teaching classes at the Novato Adult High School evening program and for the first time, at College of Marin. The large afghan with the American eagle motif was designed esecially for her husband. The picture on the wall with the rope frame was inspired by a trip to the beach. It has a sentimental value for Mrs. Campbell and is the only piece of her needlework she will not sell.

Couple Wed Twice On The Same Day

By MOLLY MARIN

Penelope Ann Worth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Worth of Stamford, Conn., formerly of Larkspur, was married to Robert James Genise twice on July 25.

The first ceremony was at 8 a.m., in a chapel at John F. Kennery International Airport in New York.

Following the ceremony the couple and the bride's parents flew to California for 2 p.m. wedding rites at St. Catherine's Church in Burlingame.

This second ceremony was followed by a reception at the Villa Hotel in San Mateo and the couple left for a wedding trip to Hawaii. They are now living in Stamford.

Penelope attended Redwood High School and was graduated from Sacred Heart Academy in Stamford. She is a graduate of Briarcliff College in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. and has a master's degree from Manhattanville College in Puchase, N.Y.

Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence Genise Jr. of Greenwich, is a graduate of St. Mary's High School in Greenwich and New York University and is studying for a master's degree in business administration at the University of Connecticut.

ACCIDENTALLY ABANDONED by her husband and son at a gas station in Sonoma, wearing only her bikini bathing suit, Mrs. Larry Brink of Mill Valley can enjoy the joke now that it's over. They had stopped for gas, Leatha got out of the car, and Larry and Kevin drove off without noticing she was gone. She was stranded for two hours until her men noticed she was missing.

The family was returning after a four-day cruise on their "Brink's Brig III" power boat at the Delta Yacht Club in Sonoma.

They leave for Tahoe this week to stay at the Castle Lodge as guests of the American Motors Company. They will also spend a few days at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Irenaeus Tucker. His practice is in Mill Valley.

BOX HOLDERS for the 1970 San Francisco opera season are Mmes. and Messrs. Rudolph J. Drewes and William Cavalier Jr. of Ross. Verdi's "Tosca" will open the season next Friday night.

Lamborn-Hermann Rite Is Held In Kentfield

A ceremony in the garden of the Kentfield home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hermann united in marriage their daughter Anne Gabrielle Hermann and Richard Lamborn of Sunnyvale. A reception followed, also in the garden.

Anne was attended by her sisters, Kit as maid of honor and Robin as bridesmaid. Norman Vollert was best man, the bride's brother, Mike Hermann of Kentfield, ushered.

The bride was graduated from Redwood High School, attended the University of Madrid in Spain and was graduated from the University of California at Davis. She was in the Peace Corps and spent two years in the Indian village of Calderas in Guatemala. Anne teaches foreign languages, guitar and art at Scott's Valley School, near Santa Cruz. Mrs. John Hermann of Kentfield is her grandmother.

Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lamborn of Erie, Pa. He was graduated from the University of Ohio and is the plant controller for Fairchild Corp. in Sunnyvale. Anne Baker of Milwaukee, Wis., is his sister.

The couple are living in Sunnyvale following a wedding trip to the California gold country.

Martha Martin Places Fifth In Adams Cup Race

Flying the burgee of San Francisco Yacht Club in Belvedere, Martha McDougle Martin placed fifth in the Adams Cup Races held Aug. 31 through Sept. 3 in Victoria, British Columbia.

Winner of the highest woman's sailing championship in North America was Jan O'Malley of Mantoloking Yacht Club in New Jersey.

TO PUBLISH ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING STORIES IN THE I-J

Forms for engagement and wedding story information to be printed in the Independent-Journal are available from the I-J offices in San Rafael, Novato, Mill Valley and Southern Sonoma.

Wedding forms should be returned promptly to the I-J office in your area and information will be printed immediately after the wedding. Photographers should be urged to submit a print of the wedding picture promptly. Color photographs cannot be used.

The Independent-Journal does not print wedding stories or photographs received more than seven days after the wedding.

An engagement form may be accompanied by a professional black and white photograph, which may be picked up at the I-J office after publication. Snapshots, polaroid or color pictures are not suitable.

HELEN HELP US!

What To Do With Pitchmen Who Say They Are Taking A Survey

DEAR HELEN:

We recently moved to this city, and I wish someone had warned us about the salesmen and women that come flocking to our door.

At least five different pitchmen have used the same tactic: They say they are "taking a survey," and please would I answer a few questions? Of course it's more comfortable to sit down, so they get inside. And then I discover they're selling encyclopedias, magazines, etc.

I realize people must earn a living, but I wish they would be honest about it. What to do? — ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED:

Get the names of the companies the sales people represent and send in complaints. If enough do this, they'll ditch the pitch. — H.

P.S. A "No solicitors" sign on your door also helps.

DEAR HELEN:

This is for "Stutterer" and millions of other stutterers:

You don't stutter when you sing because you use the lower part of the larynx. So practice talking deep down in the throat, with sentences using many "Ms" and Ws" and other consonants, especially those you stumble on most often.

Have air in your lungs before speaking, talk slowly, form your words before you speak, as your mind is apt to run ahead of your ability to enunciate. Practice before a mirror in a closed room where no one will hear you. Reading a book out loud helps. Every time you speak, think, "Deep down in the throat!"

One summer I was sent to a boys' camp. Riding from the train to the camp I met a new group of friends with whom I could relax. I lost my stutter for the entire summer. The people you associate with — and what they expect of you — has a psychological effect.

Sometimes becoming aware of your own worth or getting very involved in what you're doing will cure that stutter.

At any rate, give yourself ten minutes' practice every day, and you can help yourself much more than can all those expensive stuttering courses. — FRED

DEAR HELEN:

I am a middle-aged widow and lucky, I suppose, to have dates.

However, my present gentleman friend puzzles me. We get along beautifully until he realizes he is spending money. He never leaves me without crying over the money he has frittered away. It isn't that much, frankly. When he parts with a dollar, he holds a requiem over it.

I like his company, but this obsession about money bores me. Should I drop a hint? — IN A QUANDARY

DEAR IN:

Why not? But don't expect a drastic change. (And don't "think marriage" unless there is.) — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Signe Seastrom, John Lando Wed In Ross Church Rite

Signe Seastrom and John Stephen Lando were married Saturday at St. John's Episcopal Church in Ross. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Edwin Seastrom of San Anselmo and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Remo S. Lando of Greagle.

The bride's twin sister, Karen Seastrom of San Anselmo served as maid of honor. Bert Lando, the bridegroom's brother was best man and ushers were Ken Porter of San Luis Obispo, Steve Warner of Fairfax and Jeff Tether.

Signe, a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, College of Marin and San Jose State, is employed by Security Pacific National Bank in San Jose. Mrs. Eugene Toulouse of San Rafael is also her sister, and Mrs. Charles W. Goodwin Jr. of Hillsborough is her grandmother.

John is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and the College of Marin. Barre Lando of Washington is his other brother.

Babies' Cribs, Nursery Items May Not Be As Safe As They Look

NEW YORK (UPI)—Safe as in a baby's crib, 'tis said.

But a lot of persons interested in baby welfare are taking another long look at the crib and other nursery items to check just how safe—or how dangerous—they are.

One case history: An eight-month-old girl, smaller than average, cried out in pain at a time she was supposed to be napping in her crib. Hurrying to the room, her mother found her outside the crib hanging by her head and one shoulder, fortunately not seriously hurt. But the wee one had managed to wriggle her legs and torso between slats of the crib's side. The manufacturer should have placed the bars closer together.

"If a baby's body can slip through the spindles of a crib, there's danger of strangulation," says the National Safety Council. The head, you see, is non-compressible, so in such instances baby is left hanging.

Examination of hundred of case histories has led to the conclusion that improper design of infant furniture—cribs, playpens, high chairs and dressing tables especially—plays a key role in thousands of serious accidents babies suffer each year. So reports the safety council, which finds that cribs play a key role in infant falls.

And of all crib complaints, the most frequent seems to be the ease with which a child can hook his toes into some type of horizontal member and boost himself over the top. Infants, it seems, just naturally like to climb.

What can a parent do, while the industry works toward safety standards and safer models? The safety council suggests, among other measures, don't depend on dressing table straps. always keep one hand on baby—pick him up and take him with you if the phone rings.

Never leave baby unattended—on a bed, couch or dressing table. Avoid shallow carriages. Use plastic infant seats only in the playpen or on the floor. Don't use an infant seat in a playpen after baby can stand.

Latch the crib side to prevent it from falling, if there's any danger of an older child being able to release the rail from outside the crib.

Male Domain, The Barber Shop, Is Best Place For Natural Haircuts

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

A hail of hearty male laughter flooded from the open door as we approached the barbershop. Once my daughters and I were inside the all male group became politely, nay, painfully silent.

Perhaps we were in the wrong shop? No, the sign on the wall advertised natural trims and cuts for women. We sat down to wait our turn.

In one corner a little boy of about 3 sat watching his father in the barber's chair. Obviously, accompanying his dad to the barbershop was a big deal — a real man-to-man activity. In any case, even the boy looked at us with some puzzlement.

THE SHOP was very tastefully appointed — unlike what I remembered seeing years ago when I would peep in the windows while my brother got a haircut. There were no nude calendars or risque post cards.

What with the present-day unisex look for blacks — the natural hair for men and women — I suppose it is natural that women should go to the shops that specializes in this style. Many of the beauty salons do not. Still, as I sat there, I was reminded of the women's liberation movement. And, indeed, it would appear that we females have invaded one of the males' last strongholds — the barbershop.

Yes, that place where, reportedly, men use obscenities and speak of female conquests; where they solve political and racial problems and determine who will win the World Series — all by themselves, without female intervention.

Honestly, I felt kind of sorry for the guys. But my sorrow was short-lived and I was able to quickly rationalize our presence in this domain. After all, the male stylists do an expert job on getting a natural "together." They just have a certain touch. A Sister leaves the shop looking like a million dollars.

Not only that, it was sheer delight to watch a black male come into the barbershop shaggy (and believe me, a shaggy natural is shag with a capital S) and be transformed into a neatly trimmed, scented and sprayed, exquisite-looking Adonis. And talk about vanity — they walked in 6 feet tall and walked out 7 foot 7!

WHILE WE were in the shop, several women did come in for haircuts, but basically the environment was male. And, as a member of the majority sex, it was nice to be in the minority for a change. Hmmmm, and they did such a good job on the "moss" that, of course, we'll have to go back.

Polyester

The polyesters are noted for their wash-and-wear qualities. This fiber has the best wrinkle-resistance and recovery of all the fibers used in clothing. Like nylon, the polyesters are sometimes not as cooling to wear as cotton because of their nonabsorbent properties.

Gates To Brookside School Tot Lot To Open Sunday Afternoon

The Brookside School Tot Lot will officially open its gates Sunday at 3 p.m. with a ribbon-cutting by the San Anselmo City Councilmen. The program will also include a welcome for Kenneth Lowry, a new school superintendent and community singing.

The Tot Lot is the first public playground in the city designed specifically for pre-school children and the first such playground to be located on elementary school property. It is felt that familiarity with the school in children's younger years will make for a smooth transition into kindergarten when they become school age.

The Tot Lot was funded partially by the school district and partially by personal donations from Councilmen Woodrow Capurro, James Anderson, James Reed, Lewis Stewart and Warren Perry. Several local merchants donated building materials. The playground was designed by parents in the community and built by them in three weekends. In addition to the conventional slide, swings, sandbox and igloo-climbers the parents constructed an original climber and tunnel-box.

The opening day is being planned by Brookside School Parent-Teacher Association Mmes. Fred Faulkner, Richard Metz, Leonard Sesky, Robert Maddux and Graham Franks.

THE SISTERHOOD of St. Nicholas Russian Orthodox Church in San Anselmo will have a rummage sale on Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church, 105 Ross Avenue, San Anselmo. Also on sale will be piroushki coffee and Russian pastries made by the members of the church sisterhood. Mrs. Eugene Y. Orloff is sisterhood president.

Also on the schedule at the church are classes in Russian language, beginning on Monday. Classes will be held for beginners, taught by Mrs. S. Rojdestvensky, and for advanced students taught by the pastor's wife, Mrs. Boris Symeonoff. The classes are open to children and teen-agers, and are schelduled Mondays from 4 to 6:30 p.m. Father Symeonoff also will give classes on Russian history and religion during those hours.

PRESS GUIDE IS AVAILABLE

A guide for press chairmen of organization interested in getting news to the Marin Women's Section of the Independent-Journal is available at the San Rafael main office and the Novato, Mill Valley and Southern Sonoma I-J offices.

The booklet, "Getting News Into Your Newspaper," is issued as a service of the Independent-Journal Women's Section to assist press chairmen for women's organizations.

The booklets at the San Rafael office may be obtained from the switchboard on the main floor.

Cheryl Levine Wed At Rodef Sholom

Debby Levine of San Anselmo was her sister's honor attendant and Jackie Calder of San Rafael and Chris Davis of Ukiah were the bridesmaids.

A reception followed at the temple.

The newlyweds will make their home in San Pablo on their return from a wedding trip to San Diego and Mexico.

Cheryl, who is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Moosa of San Anselmo, is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and Sonoma State College. She is employed with the Bank of California.

Mrs. Frank Zuckerman of San Francisco is her grandmother.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Helko Elsinga of Deventer, the Netherlands, and he has a brother, Neils, in the Netherlands.

Ichor is a graduate of Deventer High School and is a senior at the University of California.

TV Project Teaches English To Children

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (UPI) —Subliminal education is just one facet of a unique television project initiated by the Bowling Green University television station this summer to teach English to Spanish-speaking children of migrant farm workers.

The project, by WBGU-TV, an educational television station, is aimed at teaching the children numbers, letters, basic English, grooming and health habits through puppets, cartoons and such programs as "Sesame Street."

The program teaches children who know no English various inflections and a few simple phrases. Children who do well with the language benefit by hearing the correct pronunciation as well as the "rhythm" of the language.

All the children benefit from the program by hearing Spanish spoken correctly. Many of the youngsters may never have heard even their native language in its correct form, officials of the project said.

"Sesame Street" was designed originally for pre-school children in disadvantaged homes. The coordinator of the university television station, Burt Benefiel, suggested the show be run as "background noise" during playtime to act as subliminal education.

Another program used by WBGSU-TV in the project is called "Cover To Cover". It presents, in brief forms, novels and classics, introducing the youngsters to good books.

ABORTION REFORM

Patricia Maginnis Leads Fight

(UPI) — A 41-year-old Sausalito woman, educated in parochial schools in Oklahoma, seems an unlikely nomineee as the Carrie Nation of the movement for unrestricted abortion.

But Patricia Theresa Jean Maginnis comes as close as anyone. She has been in and out of jail, has had three abortions, two self-induced, and estimates she has helped over 15,000 other women secure abortions.

For many women, a stay behind bars epitomizes disgrace. But for Miss Maginnis the arrest marked the start of a series of court cases — none of which have been resolved — and an assault on the medical profession and abortion laws.

SHE WAS jailed after their counseling classes led to 1,200 abortions in only six months.

Since that initial arrest three years ago, Miss Maginnis has stopped lecturing women on how to abort. But she continues the crusade against abortion restricting laws.

"The issue is simple," Miss Maginnis says. "Either women have the right to control their reproductive system or they don't."

The answer, she believes, rests within the judicial system and not in the hands of government.

"We're counting on the courts in the country to bail us out," she says. "The medical profession is not prepared to give abortions and the politicians are not eager to pass laws making abortions legal for every woman.

"OUR FIGHT will not end until all women have the right to receive abortions at any time and for any reason.

"The public has largely been left in the dark concerning the endless double-talk of lawmaking authorities and law enforcement personnel.

"No other medical concern of womankind has been more brutally degraded by sectarian beliefs and laws than abortion. No other women's right has suffered more at the whim of clergy and politicians than this issue."

"We believe our fight is one for civil rights, just like the blacks waged a few years ago. And it was the courts that eventually gave them their rights, not laws. We believe the courts will do the same for us."

She points to the recent California State Supreme Court decision that the killing of a fetus at any time is not murder because a fetus is not a human being.

THERE ARE two other California cases which Miss Maginnis believes will bear heavily upon liberalizing abortion laws in the nation.

The first is the case of Los Angeles physician John Gwynne who was arrested five times within six months for performing abortions. His case is expected to go to the United States Supreme Court where a landmark decision is expected.

Miss Maginnis says if the courts rule in behalf of the two defendants, the barriers restricting abortions will go down once and for all.

Miss Maginnis maintains that the crux of the fight is for women's rights.

"WOMEN CAN'T show they are responsible about reproduction until they have the choice in not continuing a pregnancy. Most states require that the pregnant women be in danger of death from a pregnancy in order to qualify for legal medical care for abortion," she said.

"This shows that women are not emancipated. It's an insidious society which sets up social control over our private lives."

Man Made Fibers

Of the manmade fibers, acetate has a silk-like quality. Because it doesn't absorb moisture readily, it is a quick-drying fiber. However, acetate is one of the weakest manmades, so careful hand washing of acetate garments is recommended. Dry cleaning is even better.

Yes, Casa Marinwood Townhouses are selling fast! But there still are excellent homes available in this 109-unit, early California community.

CHILDREN WELCOME/FANTASTIC FAMILY BUY

Casa Marinwood is the place in sunny and warm Marin where the family can put it all together! This quiet, walled-in community is near an excellent school system, has its own recreational complex, including a large, heated pool, sauna baths, exercise gyms and lodge—and is surrounded by a lush green park-like area set against a gorgeous tree-covered hill and bordered by a fresh-water creek. Great for kids of any age.

TOWNHOUSES TERRIFIC!

Just look at the features that come with your Casa Marinwood Townhouses:

- Authentic Early California Mission tile roofs.
- Fenced-in outdoor patios.
- Large balconies and sun decks.
- Two-car garages with extra storage space.
- Early California tile entries and fireplace hearths.
- Wrought iron stair railings.
- Unusual lighting fixtures of carved wood and wrought iron.
- Fireplaces with log-lighter jets.
- Built-in wet bar, with stainless steel sink, hot and cold water (most units).
- Antiqued interior doors.
- Appliances: refrigerator, dishwasher, combination oven and range, garbage disposal.
- Wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes.
- Cable television
- Large, modern closets.
- Professional maintenance includes outside painting, gardening, recreational area, streets and sidewalks.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Cholesterol Still Unproved As Sole Hardener Of Arteries

Van Dellen

The cholesterol controversy which has gone on for more than a decade, is far from settled. Sill lacking is definitive proof that the fatlike substance is the sole cause of hardening of the arteries or that reducing the level will prevent heart attacks and stroke. We know that atherosclerosis ensues when cholesterol is added to the diet of laboratory animals and chicks. In addition, 80 per cent of persons who develop heart attacks due to coronary atherosclerosis have a high cholesterol level.

The controversial nature of the problem is evident from several articles and comments that appeared in a recent issue of Medical Counterpoint. One author believes there is a definite correlation between diet, cholesterol, and hardened arteries. In his opinion, man should have remained a vegetarian and consumed cereals, tubers, shoots, fruits, berries and vegetables.

AN EQUALLY astute physician gave his reasons why he believed that certain carbohydrates were responsible for atherosclerosis. He recommended a diet restricting all sugars and sugar-containing foods, such as fruits and fruit juices. Starchy foods were allowable, but he suggested fewer saturated fats and oils (butter and coconut oil). Alcohol (a carbohydrate) was taboo.

Under Clinical Comments, reference was made to the high incidence of atherosclerosis among people who eat refined white sugar. Still another author consider the hydrostatic force of the flow of blood to be responsible for the location of the hardening process. Parts of the artery where the flow was rapid and forceful were more susceptible to hardening. This was how he explained the more extensive atherosclerosis where the vessel branches or curves.

DR. W. RABB, University of Vermont, pointed out that the heart muscle could degenerate even though the coronary vessels were normal. In his opinion, chemical and hormonal changes, triggered by daily stresses, could affect the oxygen needs of the heart muscle. This leads to a local loss of potassium in the heart muscle, leading to degeneration of the organ, angina, irregularities of the pulse, and sudden death.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

DISCONTINUING DRUGS

Mrs. L.T. writes: My 13-year-old has epilepsy. However, since taking Dilantin he has not had a convulsion for three years. Our physician recommends stopping the drug and seeing what happens. What is your opinion?

REPLY

Follow your physician's advice. Many doctors gradually withdraw the medication after a child has gone two to three years without a seizure provided the brain wave tracing (electroencephalogram) is normal. Adults usually continue anticonvulsant drugs throughout life.

ACUTE HEPATITIS

H.C. writes: What is acute hepatitis?

REPLY

An infection of the liver which is manifested by fever, lack of appetite, weakness, and indigestion. The skin and the whites of the eyes may turn yellow. A virus is the most common cause.

NASAL MASSAGE

REPLY

No. The old proboscis cannot be molded like putty. If you are not satisfied with what nature gave you, consult a plastic surgeon.

Today's Health Hint— Be sure the brakes in the car are checked regularly.

Judge, Militants Try Ending School Strikes

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A Philadelphia judge, using the law, and an East St. Louis, Ill., black militant organization, using street tactics, each are trying to solve teacher strikes.

Other teacher striges continued around the nation today.

Teachers in Hammond, Ind., and three Connecticut cities stayed off the job in defiance of court orders. Nine teachers were arrested while picketing in Toledo, Ohio.

Meanwhile, one of two Michigan school districts which fired striking teachers reached a contract settlement late Thursday and rescinded the dismissals.

A Philadelphia Common Pleas Court judge Thursday ordered striking teachers back to work immediately. He then postponed the order pending a hearing Monday.

School officials said two days of preparations were necessary before the city's 290,000 pupils could be brought back to the classroom, postponing any possibility of reopening until at least next Thursday.

The union is demanding a starting minimum salary of $8,500, $400 more than the school board has offered.

In East St. Louis, Ill., where the start of school has been delayed two weeks, members of the Black Egyptians chanted, "negotiate negotiate, negotiate," and said they would keep school board members in their offices until they resumed talks. They later let the members leave after 4 1-2 hours.

Defense minister Frank Smith said the Egyptians would reopen the schools themselves if the board did not.

The teachers demanded inclusion in their contract of three clauses the board said have been ruled illegal.

In Michigan, the Vassar Board of Education and the Vassar Education Association issued a joint statement late Thursday saying the 75 striking teachers there had been reinstated following the reaching of a contract agreement and would report for orientation today. Classes were set to open Monday for the 2,113 students in the Vassar school district.

The Michigan Education Association said it expected 178 teachers who had been fired from their jobs in the Westwood school district also would be reinstated when agreement was reached ending a walkout there which has affected 5,125 students.

Also in Michigan, agreement was reached early today on a new contract between the New Haven Education Association and local school officials, ending a two-week strike by 69 teachers which kept 1,739 students out of school. New Haven teachers plan to vote on the tentative settlement today. Classes were to resume Monday.

The settlements by New Haven instructors and by teachers in the Vassar district left 15 other Michigan school districts and almost 4,400 striking teachers in the Wolverine state without contracts.

About 91,000 pupils were still out of their classrooms in Michigan today.

Hammond, Ind., teachers defied a court order prohibiting continuation of their strike. The Hammond Teachers Association said "hundreds" of the teachers marched on the school administration offices Thursday as 24,000 students remained on an unscheduled vacation.

Teachers in New Haven, West Haven and Milford, Conn., also defied court orders Thursday. In other parts of the state, schools were closed in contract disputes at Stamford and Bristol, Middletown schools were dismissed early and schools were only partially staffed at New London and Somers.

Nine Toledo, Ohio, teachers were arrested while picketing a school bus garage Thursday as most of the city's 2,500 teachers stayed off the job. School officials estimated about 80 per cent of Toledo's students attended classes despite the strike.

Delmar, N.Y., members of the Bethlehem Central Teachers Association promised to strike today. Teachers already have walked off the job in Niagara, Suffolk, Westchester and Putnam counties in New York.

Ann McGirty operated the first spinning wheel in the West at Fort Harrod, Ky.

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Strong support for greatly increased taxes to fight air pollution has been found in a poll by Stanford University students. (Another pollution control story, page 1.)

Curiously, however, only 40 per cent of those polled said they would be willing to give up burning trash in backyard incinerators. The poll was conducted months after all such backyard burning was banned by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

This general ignorance of the law apparently was related to another finding of the poll — only 10.7 per cent could name the district.

Results of the poll were released yesterday by the students as part of a 380-page report they did on their nine-month study of air pollution.

They made 1,436 man-on-the-street interviews in 17 communities around the Bay Area late last spring, and found that 96 per cent felt air pollution was a "very serious" or "somewhat serious" problem. Of the persons sampled, 88 per cent believed that the air pollution problem is growing worse — a suspicion documented by the students' report.

A large majority, 69.4 per cent, said they would be willing to foot the bill for cleaner air, and gave an average figure of nearly $5 a month as the price they would be willing to pay. In contrast, the present, budget of the district amounts to less than 10 cents a month per household.

Asked to suggest solutions to air pollution, most persons called for tougher regulations on polluters and for stricter enforcement of such laws. Only about 15 per cent, however, suggested curtailing automobile traffic. Most of these favored more development of rapid transit systems.

The student researchers concluded that most of the public is extremely poorly informed, both about details of pollution and of the available political mechanisms for generating corrective action. They urged a massive public education to promote solutions to air pollution.

Race Conflict Halted At School In Mobile

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

White students and blacks scuffled at a desegregated high school in Mobile, Ala., Thursday, but police moved in quickly to break it up.

"It had all the making of a pretty good free-for-all," said one policeman.

A white youth wearing a football jersey said the incident started when a black student jumped a white student and a white football coach chased him. "Then a group of blacks started chasing the coach," the youth said. "They all ganged up on us and started hitting us. We didn't strike back." A black student said some 15 Negroes and several whites were involved in the scuffle. "Nothing really started it," he said. "We just started jumping on whites."

Seven patrol cars and a paddy wagon rushed to Murphy High School, which has an enrollment of 1,283 blacks and 844 whites, but no arrests were made and no injuries were reported.

At Charlotte, N.C., the final grades opened today in the district's alternating schedule aimed at getting maximum usage of a limited number of school buses. The school system, North Carolina's largest, has begun a desegregation program requiring the busing of 20,000 of its 83,000 students.

Also in North Caroolina, the Lumbee Indians gave up their defiance of a federal desegregation order and agreed to send their children to public schools. About 500 Indian children had been appearing daily at Indian schools in the Lumberton area, but their parents said they would fight the desegregation order in the courts.

North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott Thursday called for "reason and restraint" in the new school term of total integration in order to "make the transition as smooth as possible."

Officials at Jackson, Miss., said Thursday enrollment in city elementary schools totaled 15,965, a drop of 3,969 from last year. A recent survey showed that 12,000 children had registered in 21 private schools in Jackson, compared with 7,000 last year.

Six Coffees Set For Smallman

Six coffees for Robert A. Smallman of Kentfield, candidate for Marin Municipal Court judge, will be held today through Wednesday.

The coffees will be held at 8 p.m. today at the Larkspur home of Joseph Warner, 6 Tamalpais Drive; at 2 p.m. on Monday at the Novato home of James Smith, 36 Los Alondras Court; at 8 p.m. on Monday at the Novato home of Peter Rohrer, 772 St. Francis Avenue, at 8 p.m. on Tuesday at the San Rafael home of Frank Peebles, 35 Maywood Way, at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday at the Larkspur home of Jack Van Wart, 131 Elm Avenue, and at 8 p.m. on Wednesday at the San Rafael home of Ervin Tipton, 25 Sunset Way.

Watson Denied Extradition Stay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black today denied a stay of the extradition of Charles D. Watson, one of four persons indicted in the Tate-Labianca murders, from Texas to California.

He took the action without comment.

Watson, 24, a former high school honor student and star athlete, was accused of carrying out most of the killings under the direction of cult leader, Charles Manson, with the aid of three young women members of the nomad group.

The goldeneye duck is commonly called the "whistler" because of the whirring noise made by its wings.

I-J Praised For Coverage Of Pollution

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Independent-Journal was one of two Bay Area newspapers commended yesterday for new coverage of air pollution after a nine-month study by 70 Stanford University students.

The I-J and the San Jose Mercury were singled out for their assignment of reporters to cover the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District on a regular basis. Both have been covering the district consistently for several years, the students' report noted.

The rest of the news media in the Bay Area generally were critizcized by the students for ignoring air pollution, and for burying what little news they carried.

Their report said that "the I-J also has given BAAPCD top priority and has taken editorial stands on the issues."

Ballet Canceled After Defection

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Soviet Moiseyev ballet company canceled its farewell performance in Mexico Thursday night following the defection of two male dancers.

The performance at the palace of fine arts was scheduled as a gala windup of the company's month-long tour of Mexico. Its next stop is Cuba.

Giennadi Simonovich Vostrikov, 22, appeared Thursday at the interior department with a Mexican girl identified only as Cristina and asked for political asylum, officials said.

Last week in Guadlajara, 300 miles west of Mexico City, Aleksander Silippov defected from the company and asked for asylum two days later. He emerged from hiding this week in the company of Brazilian singer Lucy Tristao.

Pleads Innocent To Manslaughter Counts

Lionel Raymond Hall, 25, of Cotati pleaded innocent yesterday to two counts of manslaughter and one of felony drunk driving following arraignment in Marin Superior Court.

The charges against Hall arose from an April 13 one-vehicle accident north of Novato in which two passengers in Hall's pickup truck were killed.

Charges Of Sinatra Assault Are Dropped

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Charges of assault with a deadly weapon have been dropped against a casino executive who had a gun-waving altercation with Frank Sinatra.

Sanford Waterman, executive vice president and casino manager of Caesars Palace, had been booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon Sunday after he allegedly waved a gun at Sinatra in a confrontation over the entertainer's gambling credit.

As a result of the fight, Sinatra left town and canceled his engagement at the $25 million gambling resort.

"My reports indicated Waterman still had finger marks on his throat where Sinatra grabbed him," said District Attorney George Franklin. "There seems to be reasonable grounds for making the assumption that Sinatra was the aggressor all the way."

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Gene Kelly Shows His Smooth Ability

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The television networks, using this week to warm up viewers for the new season that starts Sunday, offered a number of specials Thursday night. They included an amiable variety show with Gene Kelly, a quietly intelligent documentary on Eskimos and a rather awkward contemporary musical hour called "America," inexplicably hosted by good old Glenn Ford.

Kelly's contribution was as host of an ABC-TV hour called "Changing Scene," which apparently is the first of four such fast-paced musical-comedy shows with a sort of modern minstrel tone. And the opener was, if not quite in the class of those great Kelly movie musicals, at least a lively surprise—one of the few recent variety outings to combine new and old sounds with good taste and some style.

There are few performers, of course, who can bring such instant amiability to a show as can Kelly, one of Hollywood's genuine gentlemen. And his top-name guests Thursday—James Garner, Arte Johnson and Barbara Eden—are all very pleasant performers themselves. So the mood was set in part by the simple process of casting, not to mention the handiwork of producer-director Robert Scheerer.

As with other recent variety shows, this one also was influenced by "Laugh-In." But it had its own touch, as well as an exceedingly nice and talented group of young singers and dancers who kept the hour happily swift and lightheaded. The skits, by the way, included a musical version of "Hamlet," with Johnson as the great Dane.

"America," meanwhile, was a CBS-TV special that was shot around the nation and offered pop singers with lyrics that purportedly were relevant to the state of the country. But Mr. Ford, alas, got stuck with the written narrative, which tried so hard to be hip in talking about America, and came out instead like a Madison Avenue pamphlet.

As you may have noticed recently, by the way, it now is very fashionable to show the positive side of America on video, so there were lots of positive comments about the nation. Hollywood is adaptable. You name it, we've got it.

Well, anyway, NBC-TV's contribution Thursday night was an hour called "The Ice People," and its study of Eskimos as they are compelled to enter the world of the 20th Century white man—in jobs, housing, education, transportation and culture—was compassionate. A people, a minority, that has not the funds or the muscle to maintain its cultural heritage in the midst of the majority is a basically sad story, and the hour told it well, and with point.

The Channel Swim: Orson Welles, for the second time this summer, will be the only guest on Dick Cavett's 90-minute late-night ABC-TV series Monday . . . Cavitt's show will be cut to 45 minutes for 13 Mondays starting Sept. 21 because of ABC-TV's weekly, prime time, pro football games.

George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," which was set in Charleston, S.C., finally had its first production there this summer, and CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" reports on the event in its season premiere Tuesday . . . The same broadcast offers a rundown on cable television and its possible expansion into a two-way home communications center.

Members of the Associated Business Girls of California will be guests and Kathy Garcia of Turlock, grand president, will be the speaker.

Graduating will be Kathy Acheson of Pacific Palisades, Los Angeles County; David Arocho, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Leanna Deeds, Eugene, Ore.; Bertha Fine, Los Angeles; Francine Finn, Watsonville, Santa Cuz County.

Ray Irwin, Minneapolis, Minn.; Barbara Johnson, Seattle, Wash.; Melinda St. Hilaire, Sepulveda, Los Angeles County; Joanne Unrein, Denver, Colo.; William Van Atta, Weston, Ore.

Theodore Wever, Tucson, Ariz.; Marjorie Yager, San Bernardino; and John Sheldon and Virginia Smith, both of Long Beach, Los Angeles County.

4-H Club members will present dogs they have raised for a year, and there will be a kennel tour and obedience demonstration.

Southern Marin Horseman's Show Will Be Held

The Southern Marin Horseman's Association's 11th Annual Junior and Open Horse Show will be held tomorrow and Sunday at the arena on Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue, according to manager Bruce Bartlett.

The Saturday program will involve western division competition, with a halter class beginning at 8:30 a.m. Other events, including open, bareback, trail and equitation will continue through the afternoon.

The English division competition will be held Sunday, with jumping classes beginning at 8:30 a.m. and equitation continuing through the afternoon.

Food, drink, seating and ample parking will be available for spectators, Bartlett said.

Coming this Saturday in Marin Magazine

With Marin County's thousands of public school students having just returned to their classrooms this week, the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine salutes that occasion tomorrow with a history of the public schools of the county, written by Florence Donnelly, the late historian of the I-J, prior to her death. It is a fascinating insight into an era when public education had a very different look and meaning than it has today.

Skilled artisans from throughout the Bay Area are demonstrating crafts, many of them centuries old, at the Renaissance Pleasure Faire and Ha' Penny Market on North San Pedro Road these September weekends. None is more interesting than the craft practices by David Adams — the making of leaded stain glass windows. How he goes about it, and why he took up this old art, make up a featured story in tomorrow's weekend supplement.

JIM GILMARTIN

Proud Pop Ready For TV Watching

Just for kicks I invited San Anselman Bob Alvarado to a golf match tomorrow at 3 p.m.

"You kiddin'?!" he screamed.

You see, Mr. Alvarado will have things other than golf on his mind tomorrow. A team of wild horses couldn't drag him away from his television set which will be tuned to Channel 7.

Mr. Alvarado's No. 1 son, Don, will be with the Stanford University varsity football squad in War Memorial Stadium, Little Rock, Ark. to do battle with the Arkansas Razorbacks. As it isn't often one's son has the opportunity to appear on national television, in living color yet, one wouldn't want to miss it, would one? Golf indeed !!!

Mr. Alvarado, however, doesn't expect to see much of his boy. "Just for No. 85," he suggests rather modestly,"he'll be on the bench. Oh, maybe he'll get in for a play or two if he's lucky, but Stanford has to go with its first string in this game."

Second String Wide Receiver

Well, maybe the first stringer ahead of Alvarado will stub his toe. Who knows?

Actually, Don Alvarado might feel fortunate even to warm the bench because last week he suffered his first injury in seven years of football. It happened in a non-contract drill when he was contacted, suffering a hip pointer.

Don missed last Saturday's important scrimmage, but latest from Palo Alto is that he will be available for duty tomorrow on Little Rock's Astro-Turf.

"We were afraid that because he missed Saturday's scrimmage he'd lose his second string status," said father Bob, "but on Monday he was still listed as second team. Don says his hip hurts, but it will be better by Saturday. He's been applying crushed ice to the injury an hour at a time, two or three times a day."

Flashy Offense Vs. Rugged Defense

The 1970 national television collegiate football inaugural could be one of the best attractions of the season for it pits two of the country's most exciting teams in their first time ever football meeting. Statistics from last year indicate the old immovable object of Arkansas versus Stanford's irresistible force.

Arkansas in 1969 led the nation in defense against scoring, yielding 7.6 points per game. Stanford, you will recall, scored an average of 34.9 points per game. The Injuns throw the ball around like a hot potato.

Many of the stars who contributed to those fine records will return. While its defense won most of the honors last year, it must re memembered that Arkansas had a flashy offense built around busy quarterback Bill Montgomery, sensational wide receiver Chuck Dicus and slashing back Bill Burnett, all back this season.

But, of course, Stanford has Heisman Trophy candidate Jim Plunkett, the incomparable quarterback with the laser passing accuracy, along with All-American candidates Bob Moore at tight end and John Sande at center.

Maybe '70 Will Be Stanford's Year

Only a few points and some incredibly bad luck kept Stanford from an undefeated record last year. Maybe 1970 will be it.

Anyway, we'll learn a lot tomorrow over the video. Let us hope Mr. Plunkett has Mr. Alvarado available to catch a couple of tosses.

And, with such an attractive game opening the collegiate season, with a local angle yet, my adrenalin is fairly flowing. I am ready to position my rotund posterior in front of my Big TV from now until Super Bowl time in January. Do not disturb.

(I wonder if they have plugs and antennae in the Oakland Coliseum so I can see Terry Bradshaw and the Pittsburgh Steelers against the Raiders tomorrow night, all the while suffering along with the 49ers against the Rams in L.A. over the coaxial.)

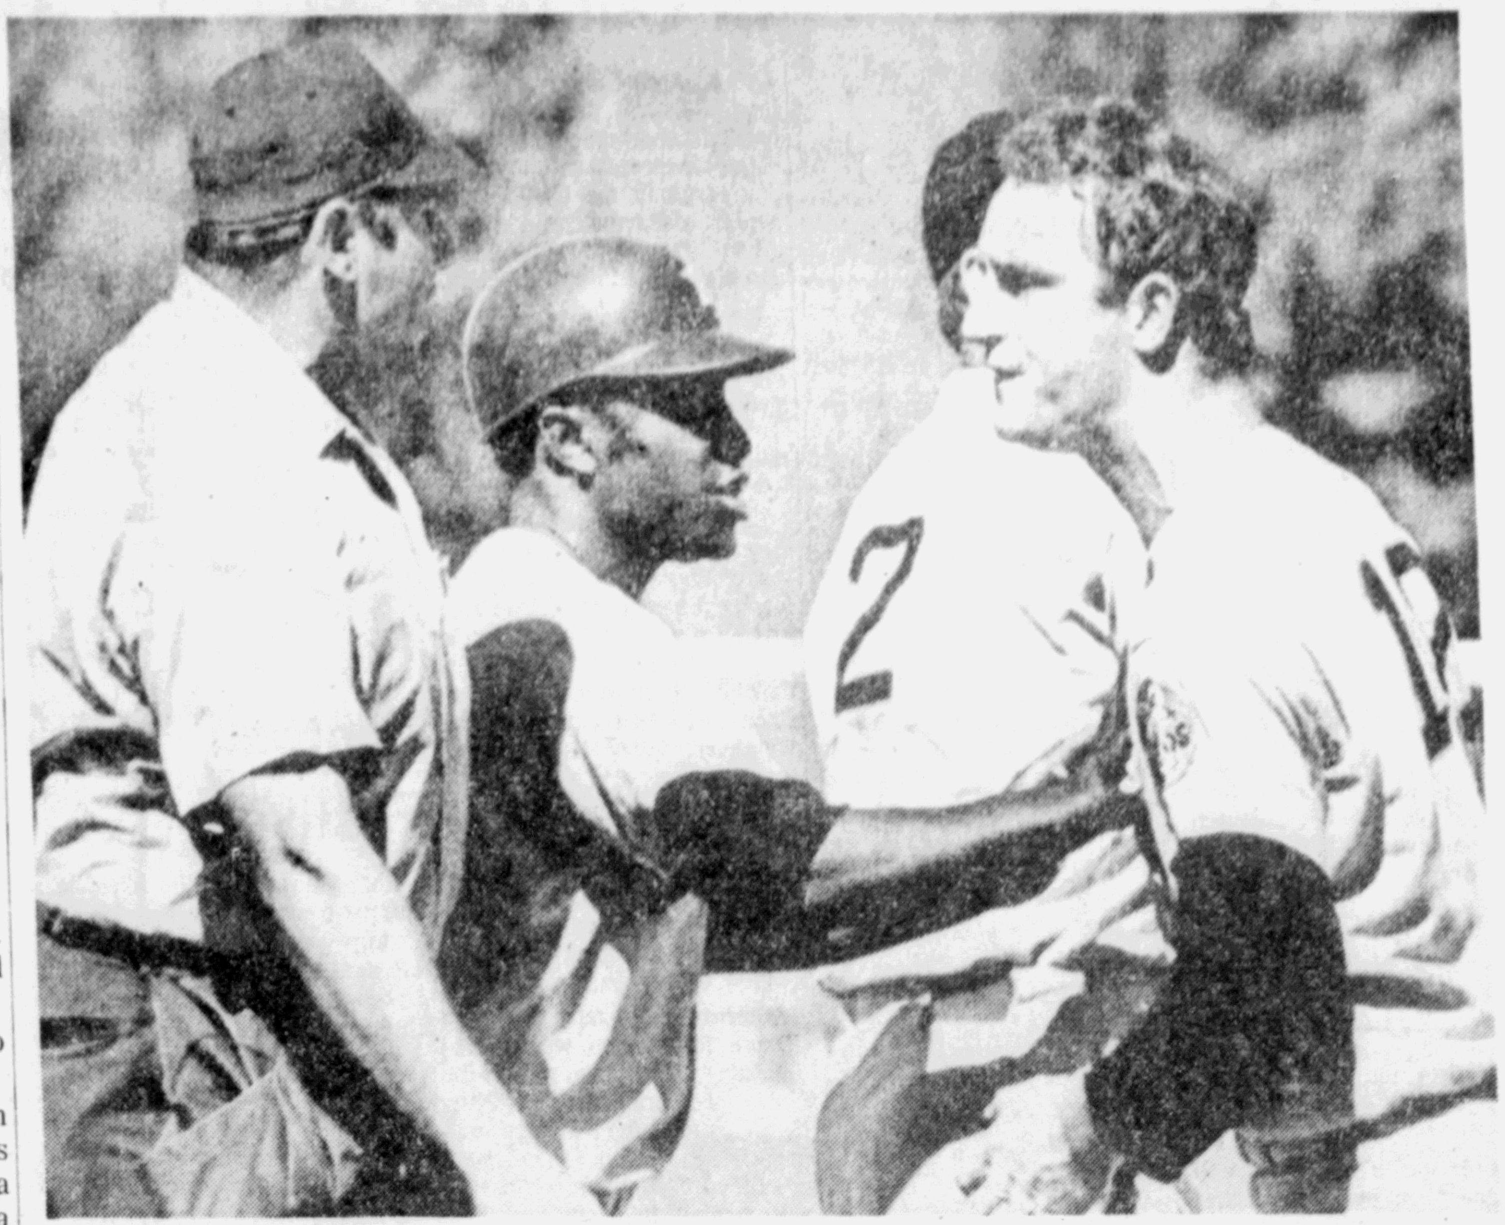
Perry Boys Make Baseball History



CANDLESTICK CAPERS — Umpires were busy at Candlestick Park yesterday when San Francisco walloped Houston Astros, 11-0 on pitcher Gaylord Perry's 20th victory of the season. Above, Umpire, Dick Stello is about to eject Houston's Doug Rader who complained about being called out at home plate in seventh inning. Teammate Joe Morgan vainly tried to calm down Rader. Below, umpire Augie Donatelli checks Perry's pitching hand for any foreign substance. The Astros complained that Perry's pitches were doing strange things. After thorough examination, Donatelli came up — uh — empty handed. High and dry.

TWINS SWEEP

A's Hopes Arc Jolted

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The suspense, whatever there was of it, has ended. The Oakland A's have proven they are not a championship team.

The A's came into Minnesota a few nights ago riding an eight-game win streak. Hoping to climb closer to first place in the American League West, they instead dropped three straight games and now stand a big 8½ games behind the pace-setting Twins.

SEGUI TONIGHT

Minnesota beat Oakland 6-1 and 7-2 Thursday night following a 3-1 decision Wednesday night. Oakland tries to regain some dignity tonight when Diego Segui 10-10 pitches in the opener of a four-game series against Wally Bunker 1-9 of Kansas City.

The A's took it on the chin in Minnesota when the Twins came up with a four-run rally in each contest.

Charlie Manuel drove in two runs with a bases loaded single after Tony Oliva and Brant Alyea had driven in single runs earlier in the third inning of the opener against A's starter and loser Jim Hunter (16-13).

Terra Linda Prep Gridders In Debut

Terra Linda's Trojans, heavier and with more depth than last year when they were voted 10th best high school team in Northern California, kick off the 1970 football season tonight at Foothill Junior College in Los Altos against the Palo Alto Vikings.

This will be one of three preseason games the Trojans will play prior to the start of the Marin County Athletic League season Oct. 3 against Drake. Their schedule includes tough Riordan of San Franicesco next Saturday night and Hogan of Vallejo Sept. 26, both games to be played in San Rafael. If the Blue and Gold expect to improve their state rating in 1970, they will have to beat some good out-of-league clubs.

Don Lucas, who has led the Trojans to three successive MCAL championships, calls Palo Alto "a pretty sound football team fundamentally," but feels his team has the edge.

"We'll beat them in the line," he said today, although he noted the Viking backfield is equal to or better than Terra Linda's.

Defensively the Trojans will have Lahaye and Umphreys at ends, Little and Ed Alves at tackles, Cupples at middle guard, linebackers Meier and Larry Kerr, monsterman Larry Mandin, halfbacks bowman and Kevin Purcell and Buckley at safety.

All MCAL teams except Terra Linda open with games next week. On Friday Drake will be at Petaluma at 8 p.m. and San Marin meets Encinal in Alameda at 3:30 p.m. Saturday games include Montgomery at Novato at 1 p.m., Redwood against Sacred Heart at Washington High School in San Francisco at 2 p.m., and Tamalpais at Salesian in Richmond at 8 p.m.

Good Idea, But Rozelle Says Nope

Halas said Thursday that he would bet $15,000 at 220-1 odds being quoted by Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder against the Bears winning the National Football League's Central Division title. The 75-year-old Halas said he would donate the money, which would have amounted to $3 million, if he won, to cancer research.

However, Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle has rejected the idea. "It would be wonderful if such a sum of money could go to these funds," Rozelle said. "But such a wager cannot be permitted. I appreciate George Halas' sentiments and his confidence in the Bears."

49ers To Be Healthy For Tomorrow's Game

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Riddled for weeks with injuries, the San Francisco 49ers may finally be at full strength Saturday night against the Los Angeles Rams.

Defensive lineman Charlie Krueger missed practice Thursday with a pulled thigh muscle. He may recover in time to play in the preseason contest at Los Angeles.

With Thomas, Willard and Cunningham back at full strength, offensive backfield coach Ed Hughes says the Forty Niners' reluctant running attack may finally generate some steam.

"We have good running backs and we should be much better than we've shown so far," Hughes said. "We feel we can make yardage against the Rams, based on last year. But if we lose yardage or get penalized the Rams will make it tough."

Giants To Open Dodgers Series

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sept. 10, 1970 is a day Gaylord Pery will never forget, and neither will baseball since it wll be properly recorded somewhere in the sport's record books always to be printed to.

For on that date Perry helped set an all-time record. By himself he won his 20th game of 1970 on a four-hit shutcut over the Houston Astros as the San Francisco Giants scored an easy 11-0 victory.

A FIRST

The significance of the feat was that with Jim Perry winning 22 games for the Minnesota Twins, it became the first time in big league history that brothers had won 20 or more games in the same season.

"Will I remember this day?" Gaylord asked.

"You bet your life I will," he answered himself. "It's something I can tell my grandchildren about one day. Winning this 20th one gives me a good feeling, one of pride, as I'm sure my brother feels."

Gaylord hasn't talked to brother Jim, who is older by a couple of years, since he won his 20th for the Twins on Sept 1.

CALLED

"We don't talk much during the season," Gaylord said of Jim, "but I called him when he won his 20th. That's quite an accomplishment."

Did Gaylord expect Jim to call him now that he has his 20th?

"Oh, I'm sure he will," Gaylord replied. "He's a little busy now trying to help his team win a pennant, but he'll call. I'm sure he's as happy about this record as I am, and it sure as heck took the two of us to set it."

Only once before in baseball history have two brothers won 20 games—in different seasons, though. That was way back in 1916-17 when Harry and Stanley Coveleski turned the trick.

ALMOST

The Perry boys just missed setting their record a year ago. Jim did his job winning 20, but Gaylord won "only" 19, which was a source of disappointment to him. "I really wanted it last year," Gaylord said. "I did nothing all winter long but think about the record and what our chances were of setting it. I'll say this, along about the middle of the season when I wasn't pitching very well I thought we would not get it after all."

The Perry boys set another record this year when they both were named to pitch in the All-Star game. Never before have brothers been named to either the same or opposite team.

LUCK

Perry said he didn't have his good fast ball or his hard slider against the Astros but had a lot of luck with his breaking pitches, primarily a changeup curve, which is a new pitch this year for the durable righthander who is one of the hardest working pitchers in baseball.

"That just goes to show you that luck plays a big part in winning," Gaylord said. "If had better stuff in games which I've lost. It helped, too, in this one to get all those runs."

Willie Mays, Willie McCovey, Hal Lanier and Bobby Bonds were the teammates who struck the big blows.

Mays, on a tear of late, lashed his 27th homer, a towering shot far over the leftfield fence with one on. He

Petaluma Vs. Reno In Opener

The Petaluma High School Trojans, with three new coaches and only five returning lettermen, start their 1970 football season tomorrow night against a team they know virtually nothing about.

Head coach Howard Cadenhead will be playing things by ear when his North Bay I League team meets a squad from Reno, Nev., at Durst Field in Petaluma beginning at 8 o'clock.

SURPRISES

The Trojans, who finished last season with a record of three wins and six losses, will be, Cadenhead says, "an inexperienced team, but one which may surprise a lot of people." The experience consists of center Jerry Tenenbau, quarterback Dan Hart, End Don Billings, defensive lineman Chuck Kendricks and linebacker Chuck Holmes.

Cadenhead will be joined by Frank St. Peter, who will be in charge of the varsity backfield; junior varsity coach Larry Lethrop; and assistant John Pappas. Myron Ringstad and Tony Kehl will be returning as assistants.

Hart, who backed up all NBL I star Fred Klemenok last year, is but one of three candidates for the signal-calling job. Junior Ken Griffith and Jim Sampietro have shown promise in practice sessions to date.

BUILDING YEAR

Under Cadenhead the Trojans have yet to have a winning season (his first year, 1968, they were 9-9), and this year it seems will be another building effort. Newcomers who may help include ends Chris Court and Kevin Gillmore, lineman Mark Ross and running back Bob Gillis.

The Trojans will confront Marin County Athletic League teams two successive weeks to wrap up the preseason when they host Drake next Friday night and Novato Sept. 25.

The first NBL game for the Trojans will be Oct. 2, when they host Vallejo.

Story About Lombardi, The Basketball Coach

Vince Lombardi was buried Monday. He will be best remembered as the football coach who reorganizd the down-and-out Green Bay Packers into champions. The stories about Lombardi's success at Green Bay were told and re-told. They were all football stories.

This is a story about Lombardi, the basketball coach. Bobby Riedel told it in Atlanta during the last baseball trip there by the Giants this season.

RIEDEL, NOW a distributing executive with an Atlanta firm, played high school basketball at St. Cecilia's in Englewood, N.J., 25 years ago. Lombardi was the only male teacher in the small school and coached all sports in addition to teaching Chemistry, Physics and Latin.

"He was incredible," said Riedel, a basketball player of more than ordinary ability. "He really didn't know too much about basketball but, being a perfectionist, he would write letters to Clair Bee and Joe Lapchick, then coaches of New York college teams, asking about certain situations.

"THEY WOULD write him back and we would practice those letters all week long. We won the New Jersey State Catholic basketball title in 1945. He was proud of what he did with St. Cecilia's basketball team.

"He couldn't stand losing then just as he couldn't tolerate it later at Green Bay. He'd go crazy at times. You never were good enough for him. He'd scream at you, grab you and shake you, and rap you behind the head with his knuckles."

RIEDEL RECALLED one game he never will forget. St. Cecilia's was playing Xavier in New York City. Xavier was a basketball powerhouse. At one stage of the game, Riedel was out of position when an orange hit him in the back of the head.

"Lombardi had thrown it," Riedel said. "He was standing there screaming 'Dammit, Riedel, where are you supposed to be?' "

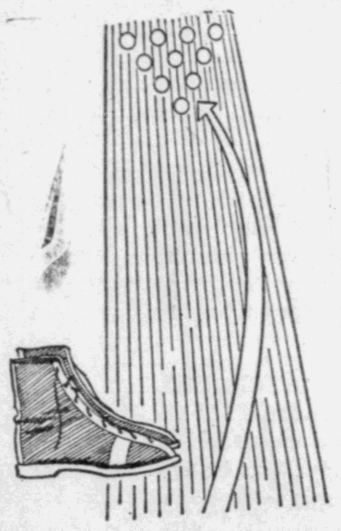
By halftime Xavier had all but blown Lombardi's team off the court and he was in a rage in the locker room when Father Moore, pastor of St. Cecilia's, came in and said: "Vince, after all they're only boys."

"THAT MAY be, Father," Lombardi replied, "but you never saw Christ himself get crucified like we did out there in the first half."

Lombardi, a devout man who went to church daily, was incredible.

"I never met a man like him," said Riedel, "but he was the finest teacher I ever had and one of the finest men I ever knew."

BOWLING TIPS



The wide curve and high-buckled shoes are both in the same class ... out of date. The big curve simply will not bore into the pins deeply enough to produce the maximum score. A ball tha comes into the 1-3 pocket at less of an angle is more likely to be more powerful.

Police Softball At Albert Park

Action in the second annual Marin County Peace Officers Softball Tournament returns to San Rafael's Albert Park this weekend.

Marin County peace officers will take on Santa Clara Sheriff's team in a battle of unbeatens at 3 p.m. tomorrow. Other games will be Daly City vs. San Jose at 1 p.m. and Modesto vs. Napa at 11 a.m.

California Highway Patrolman Dan George pitched Marin to two victories in the opening weekend of the tourney, a 3-0 no-hitter against Berkeley Police Saturday and a 7-1 two-hitter against Napa Police Sunday.

Admission to games is free.

GIANTS

also singled and doubled in four at-bats. That gave the superstar three homers, seven RBIs and six hits in nine at-bats in the last two games.

BIG START

The Giants put the game away in the first, rocking Wade Blasingame (3-2) for four hits and four runs. Lanier's two-run single was the big blow. Mays hit his homer in the fifth for a 6-0 lead and the Giants put it away with five runs in the eighth. A double by McCovey, a single by Alan Gallagher and Bonds' base clearing double did the most damage.

The Giants, who have posted the best record in the National League (33-24) since the All-Star break, open a three-game weekend series against Los Angeles tonight with second place their immediate goal.

Juan Marichal will pitch for the Giants and Joe Moeller or Don Sutton for the Dodgers.

Toughies For USC, Stanford

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The strengths of the top two teams in the Pacific-8 Conference may be given severe pressure this weekend during the opening round of 1970 football action.

The University of Southern California, a supreme defensive force, must prove itself Saturday against explosive Alabama. Stanford University, among college football's most devastating offensive teams, faces the challenge Saturday evening of an Arkansas defense which was the stingiest in the nation last season.

ON ROAD

Both the Trojans and Indians will be playing away from home while a promising University of California squad travels to Oregon, inexperienced UCLA goes to Oregon State and Washington State journeys to Kansas. Washington draws a bye.

Southern Cal, champion of the Pac-8 four years in succession, must contain Alabama quarterback Scott Hunter. The muscular dropback passer already has surpassed 13 school records previously held by Joe Namath, Ken Stabler, Steve Sloan and others.

A beefy, quick and seasoned defensive front four of Charlie Weaver, Tody Smith, John Vella and Scott Weber will try to put the pressure on Hunter. USC quarterback Jimmy Jones and will lead an assault on Alabama's leaky defense.

STINGY

Jim Plunkett, Stanford's potential Heisman Trophy winner, must diagnose an Arkansas defensive unit which allowed merely 7.6 points per game in 1969.

Seals Open Training Camp

OSHAWA, Ont. (UPI) — The Oakland Seals opened training camp today, hoping to improve a mediocre fourth place finish in the National Hockey League West last season.

"It's going to be a wide open camp," Seals coach Fred Glover said Thursday. "There will be a lot of young guys battling to make the club. Of the 60 in camp, 31 are first year pros or younger."

ATHLETICS

struckout 10, scattered seven hits and raised his record to 8-6.

Another lefthander, veteran Jim Kaat, allowed seven hits and two runs through seven innings of the nightcap. Joe Rudi, who hit safely three times against Hall in the opener, singled twice for two runs batted in against Kaat.

Leading 2-1, the Twins put the second game away with four runs in the fifth. Productive singles by Alyea, Paul Ratliff and Frank Quilici highlighted the outburst. A's starter John Odom (8-6) brought on the damage with his own wildness.

SECOND YEAR

Oakland has failed for the second year in a row to overhaul the first place Twins. Each year, the Twins themselves drove the decisive nail into the Oakland coffin by refusing to lose crucial games to the A's.

Minnesota, a truly clutch ballclub, had preceded the victories over Oakland with three straight wins several days earlier against California to also knock the Angels out of contention.

Cal Grid Captains

BERKELEY (UPI) — Coach Ray Willsey has appointed linebacker Phil Croyle and offensive tackle Bob Richards as captains of the 1970 University of California football team.

Bradshaw, Steelers In Oakland

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, muddled by an unusual shortage of personnel, complete preseason play Saturday night in the Coliseum against dangerous rookie quarterback Terry Bradshaw and the surprising Pittsburgh Steelers.

In an effort to protect injured players, the Raiders waived several healthy men earlier this week. As a result, Oakland will face the Steelers without its top field goal kicker and with as few as 38 able bodies.

Placekicker and reserve quarterback George Blanda, guard Wayne Hawkins and defensive lineman Al Dotson were waived along with several other to protect injured players Dan Conners, Pete Banaszak, Fred Biletnikoff, Rod Sherman, Carl Weathers, Marv Hubbard and Ray Chester.

Blanda is a sure bet to be reactivated in time for Oakland's season opener Sept. 20 at Cincinnati. Punter Mike Eischeid, however, will have to handle the placekicking chores against Pittsburgh.

Veteran free agent tight end Jacque MacKinnon was signed Thursday. If he is not put on the active list prior to the Pittsburgh game, the Raiders will have to go with a second year pro Lloyd Edwards at tight end, with rookie fullback Ted Koy providing backup help.

Russia, Japan Head Weightlifting Field

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Russia and Japan lead 32 countries into the 1970 World eWightlifting Championships which begin here Saturday.

The Soviets will have three defending champions from the 1969 meet at Warsaw, Poland, while the Japanese will be represented by two 1969 winners.

Guy Rodgers Bows Out

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Guy Rodgers, who earned the nickname "Magic Man" by being one of the best ball handlers and playmakers in National Basketball Association history, announced his retirement yesterday.

Rodgers, a 12-year veteran who turned 35 Sept. 1, played pro ball for Philadelphia, San Francisco, Chicago, Cincinnati and Milwaukee, which obtained him in the expansion draft of 1968. He played college ball at Temple University, where he was an all-American.

Rodgers holds the single season record for assists in the NBA with 908, and ranks behind Oscar Robertson and Bob Cousy for career assists with 6,907.

Baseball

MILWAUKEE — The Boston Red Sox have obtained pitcher Bob Bolin from the Milwaukee Brewers in exchange for cash and a minor league player to be named later. Bolin, who played until last year with the San Francisco Giants, was used by the Brewers mainly in relief.

Football

WASHINGTON — The Washington Redskins have acquired Roy Schmidt, a 248-pound guard in his fourth pro year, from the Atlanta Falcons.

Golf

OCEAN SHORES, Wash. — Little Jan Ferraris shot the only sub-par score in a field of 60 yesterday to take the first round lead by a stroke in the $40,000 Wendell-West Golf Tournament.

Miss Ferraris combined a good putting game and a fine club selection to card a one-under-par 71 over the 6,021 Ocean Shores course.

General

SAN FRANCISCO — A three-man committee will begin screening applicants soon for the post of Pacific-Eight Conference executive officer. Thomas J. Hamilton, the first and only executive director of the conference, announced yesterday he will retire next June.

The committee will be headed by Washington State Athletic Director Stan Bates and will include Southern California Athletic Director Jess Hill and California professor Robley Williams.

Pop Warner Football Festival

Six games are on the schedule this weekend when Marin County youngsters compete in the annual Pop Warner Football Festival on the Marin Catholic High School field in Kentfield.

There will be three varisty games and three junior varsity (boys under 105 pounds) games.

Tomorrow it will be Tamalpais vs. Drake at noon, the varsity game followed by a 2 o'clock junior varsity game. There will be a junior varsity game between San Marin and Petaluma at 3:45 p.m.

Sunday it will be San Rafael vs. Novato at noon, the junior varsity game at 2 p.m. Then it will be Terra Linda vs. Redwood, 3:45 p.m., followed by the jayvee game at 5:45 p.m.

ASEBALL ROUNDUP

Cool Hand Luke Wins For Bucs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Pittsburgh Pirates have eir own Cool Hand Luke and ey are mighty thankful.

Luke Walker began the ason with a lifetime major ague won-lost record of 4-10 it his current 1970 mark of 12- is one of the main reasons hy the Pirates are tied for the ational League's East Division ad with only 19 games emaining.

A record of 12-6 hardly makes alker a candidate for the Cy oung Award but it does give im the best mark among the irates' current rag-tag crop of tarters. Only Dock Ellis with a 2-9 record has won as many ames for Pittsburgh and Ellis currently sidelined with a ore right elbow.

12TH WIN

Walker posted his 12th riumph, a personal high for im in pro ball, Thursday night is he stopped St. Louis on two its in the Pirates' 2-0 victory ver the Cardinals which kept ittsburgh tied for first place vith the New York Mets and ne game ahead of the Chicago ubs.

The only other season Walker von as many as 12 games was n 1965 with Asheville of the outhern League. "Maybe I'll break my own record the next time out," Walker joked after beating the Cards. "My fastball is the best it's ever been and it makes the curve better.

The Pirates knew they had to win to remain tied for first since the Mets had beaten Philadelphia 3-2 in 14 innings in the afternoon while the Cubs defeated Montreal 9-3, also in a day contest. Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco shut out Houston 11-0, San Diego shaded Atlanta 3-2 and Cincinnati routed Los Angeles 13-4.

A.L. SCORES

In the American League, Minnesota swept a doubleheader from Oakland 6-1 and 7-2, Kansas City beat Milwaukee twice 10-2 and 2-0, Boston walloped Detroit 14-0, Cleveland whipped Washington 13-4 and Baltimore edged New York 2-1. Chicago and California were not scheduled.

Willie Stargell backed Walker's pitching with his 28th homer and Bob Robertson scored Al Oliver with a sacrifcie fly for the Pirate runs. Only one Cardinal got as far as third base against Walker who pitched out of his most serious jam when he retired Richie Allen with two runners on base in the seventh inning.

HERBEL'S WIN

Cleon Jones' triple scored Tommie Agee with one out in the 14th inning to help the Mets past the Phils. Bud Harrelson's steal of home and Art Shamsky's RBI single gave the Mets two runs in the third but the Phils tied it in the sixth on Johnny Briggs' eighth homer with a man on base. Ron Herbel, who pitched the final inning for the Mets, got the win and Hoerner took the loss.

Ernie Banks batted in four runs with a three-run homer and a single to lead Chicago over Montreal. Banks' homer was his 12th and snapped a 2-2 tie in the fourth. Milt Pappas, with seventh inning relief help from Juan Pizarro, won his 12th game. Rusty Staub slammed his 30th homer for the Expos.

FIRST HOMER

Al Ferrera's two-run double highlighted a three-run fifth inning that gave San Diego its win over Atlanta. Southpaw Dave Roberts, who had lost 10 straight games, gained his sixth victory with relief help from Gary Ross. Atlanta's two runs came on Oscar Brown's first major league home run in the third inning.

Johnny Bench ripped his 44th homer and Lee May chipped in with his 31st, a grand slammer, in Cincinnati's rout of Los Angeles. The Reds collected 19 hits, including eight for extra bases, as they widened their lead in the West Division to 14 games over the second place Dodgers. Jim McGlothlin, who gained credit for his 13th victory, had to leave the game in the seventh inning when his right arm stiffened up.

'Series' To Start Oct. 10

NEW YORK (UPI)—The World Series will open on Oct. 10 at the home park of the National League pennant winner.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Thursday that the first two games of the series will be played on Oct. 10 and 11 in the National League Park with the next three games to be held Oct. 13, 14, 15 in the home of the American League champion.

If sixth and seventh games are necessary, they will be held in the National League city on Oct. 17 and 18.

The league championship series will each open on Saturday, Oct. 3.

U.S. OPEN TENNIS

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., is the lone American man remaining in the U.S. Open Tennis championships. Today, his sister Nancy will try to bring the family name into the finals of the Women's division.

Nancy faces a formidable task. In her semifinal match, she opposes Margaret Court, the Australian great who has her sights firmly set on becoming only the second woman to register the Grand Slam of Australia, France, Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

IN 1969

Nancy last met Margaret in the 1969 final here, and was brushed aside, 6-2, 6-2. If Margaret can repeat that triumph, she need only defeat the winner of today's other semi involving Rosemary Casals of San Francisco and Virginia Wade of England.

Nancy's brother came through on Thursday against fellow American Dennis Ralston, winning 7-6, 6-3, 6-4. Americans who challenged the Australian contingent went down to defeat. Arthur Ashe of Gum Springs, Va., rallied too late to upset second seeded John Newcombe, who used the sudden death weapon in a 6-1, 7-6, 5-7, 7-6 victory.

Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calfi. could do nothing with third seeded Ken Rosewall, going out meekly when his service deserted him, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

WORKOUT

A third Australian, fourth seeded Tony Roche had a satisfying workout in eliminating Brian Fairlie of New Zealand, 6-3, 7-5, 7-6. Tony said he didn't mind meeting Richey in Saturday's semifinal. Cliff lost to Tony in their only 1970 encounter, in the Philadelphia indoor event in February.

The Newcombe-Rosewall semifinal will be a replay of this year's Wimbledon final, in which Newcombe won the first five-setter there in 21 years. It will also be a replay of the Welsh Open final, in which Rosewall was the winner in their last encounter.

Ralston Runs Indians Through Final Drills

Ralston drilled his squad on short yardage and goal line work Wednesday in a thorough practice during which the entire game plan was reviewed.

FISH AND GAME

Marin Has Lost Some Prime Deer Area; Why?

By AL GIDDINGS

When I took those stripers to Sacramento last week for pollution tests, I was momentarily cornered by Wally Mac Gregor, the big game official of the Department of Fish and Game.

He asked about the drop from the 393 bucks taken last year in Marin as compared to the 250 bucks taken to date this year. I don't think the answers are too hard to figure out. The loss of about 40,000 acres to the National Seashore at Pt. Reyes has removed the most prime deer hunting area in the county from all hunting efforts. Last year, traveling through a small section of the 8,000 acre Bear Valley Ranch, I counted 60 deer in a two mile stretch with 20 of these 60 deer all legal bucks. One was a four pointer, both sides with eye guards; another was a huge three pointer; and the forked horns were generally older heavy horned bucks, larger than the usual two-year-old forks generally seen in Marin. The take of bucks from the Palamarin Ranch, The Bolema Club, the Bear Valley Ranch, the Murphy Ranch and the others now in the seashore probably was close to 300 animals.

Losing these hunting areas certainly has a lowering effect on the overall count. Secondly the fog of this season has been a real problem. And thirdly, I'm sure there are a number of ranchers who are waiting for the game wardens or some validating officer to come by.

Other than those reasons, I don't think we are having any deer shortage. I'm sure it's not that hunters are saving their tags to go north in the late season; there have always been plenty of tags for local bucks. In our family, the kids still have their "B" tags, and about six friends are in the same fix. It's been tough filling out with the darned fog almost every morning and evening.

Somehow, I feel it's a shame that some hunting hasn't been permitted in some parts of the National Seashore, especially on those ranches that have been bought, then leased back to the rancher, with no trespassing permitted except by the rancher, but no hunting! Why? The deer herd will build up for perhaps a 10 year period, then an extensive die off will occur with a waste of thousands of pounds of prime venison. There would be no danger as the public is not permitted access to the ranches leased back to the rancher. It will be this way, possibly for years, until the day the government can build proper access roads and facilities. So really, nothing has been changed, except ownership, but the hunting has been stopped!

Originally, at the meetings I attended when the Seashore was in the making, it was broached, discussed, and promised that hunting would be permitted wherever feasible! What better time than now, while the public is still excluded from the ranches that are being solely used by the ranchers doing their ranching, but being unable to hunt, though no danger exists.

SEPT. 11, 1935

HELEN JACOBS OF CALIFORNIA BECAME THE LAST TO WIN THE U.S. NATIONAL WOMEN'S TENNIS SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP FOUR CONSECUTIVE YEARS WHEN SHE DEFEATED SARAH PALFREY FABYAN, 6-2, 6-4.

Endurance Race At Point Reyes

Fifty miles of rough riding is in store for Northern California horsemen tomorrow in the Point Reyes endurance race beginning at 6 a.m. at Five Brook Stables, Point Reyes Station.

Among the contestants are a pair of talented Novato riders, Don Brown and his ranch hand, Gerald Russell, 19. Brown, a stables owner, set a record of three hours and nine minutes last July in San Pablo during a 50-mile endurance victory and Russell has been a consistent finisher among the top 10 in various endurance races.

Sad Tune At Tam: Where Have The Gridders Gone?

(Seventh in a series on Marin County high school football prospects.)

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley, which has been leading the way in the Marin County student revolution of the last few years, can as a direct result add a new verse to the folk song, "Where have all the flowers gone?"

Head football coach Mike Davlin could have lamented on the first day of practice, "Where have all the players gone?"

He must have felt like a general in the army of Gran Fenwick when he first gazed upon all 27 candidates for the varsity team and 16 for the junior varsity. That's a pitiful turnout.

No doubt about it, apathy has hit Tam's athletic program. Once the titans of Marin County football, the Indians have been hurt tremendously recently by lack of interest in football by both players and student fans.

This was to be a banner year for the Red and Blue, as 18 players from last year were slated to return.

SEVEN MISSING

Only 11 of those have shown up, however, and now it appears that the team will have about as much depth as Tiny Tim's voice. Davlin says that if the Indians don't suffer any serious injuries, "we'll give everybody trouble." But if they do, it could mean another year like 1969, when they won only two of nine games.

What makes it all most unfortunate is the fact that this season the Indians possess some of the finest backs they've ever had, plus a couple of all-league caliber linemen — as solid a core as can be found in the Marin County Athletic League. But the stars are no good without a supporting cast.

At the top of the Tam list is Clifford Hall, who could become the league's best halfback in this, his junior year. Last season he established himself as one of the premier defensive backs in the league, and was without a doubt his team's finest player.

RUSHING LEADER

Bill Washington, another halfback, promises to be among the league leaders in rushing. A senior, he has gained 20 pounds from last year and tips the scales at close to 200.

The other outstanding back on the Indian roster is Mark Costello, a senior fullback whose exceptional blocking and inside running make him invaluable to Davlin's plans for a strong ground game.

Quarterback is the only mystery position on the team. Three veterans of varsity competition — senior Mike Brennan and juniors Pat Lucey and Mark Dawson — are in the running for the job, and Davlin says he might platoon them. All three perform adequately on the ground, but less than spectacularly through the air.

If a Tam quarterback does develop into a good passer, he will not want for receivers. All-league candidate Paul Ringleman at one end and junior Greg Biber, up from the j.v.s, at the other are potentially as good a tandem as the league can offer. Ringleman has been especially impressive in practice. Davlin says he has "really come on this year."

FEW LINEMEN

As far as linemen go, the Indians are hurting, except at tackle, where senior Bill Rudolph should perform both offensively and defensively in all-league fashion. The rest of the line is the weakest part of the team, although veteran seniors Mike Johnson at guard and Jim Nelson at center should provide some stability, and junior tackle Terry Rutledge could help.

Lettermen Richard Brown and Leon Howard, a pair of seniors, will work with Hall and possibly Washington to give Tam a defensive secondary second to nobody in the MCAL. There may even by some depth in that department with the addition of sophomore halfback Tom Collins, who Davlin says has looked "real good in early drills."

The Indians have the quality. Whether Davlin can use it to fashion a winner with the fewest players of any team in the league will be one of the most interesting stories of the 1970 season.

[illegible] opens its schedule Saturday, Sept. 19 against Salesian High at Richmond, 8 p.m.

Two Cal Gridders On Injured List

BERKELEY (UPI) —Running back Steve Kemnitzer and defensive tackle Mike Doak, both reserves, may be withheld from the University of California's season opener Saturday night at Oregon.

COME TO DE LONG CHEVROLET AND DRIVE THE LITTLE CAR THAT BEGS TO BE DRIVEN.

Well, we want you to forget it all.

Forget that the Vega comes in four models: coupe, sedan, wagon and panel truck. Forget that it gets around 25 miles to the gallon. Forget that even the standard sedan comes with a 90-horsepower overhead-cam aluminum alloy engine, front disc brakes and front bucket seats.

Forget all that and just take Vega for a test drive. That, all by itself, will convince you.

Vega's tight, maneuverable. It's downright fun.

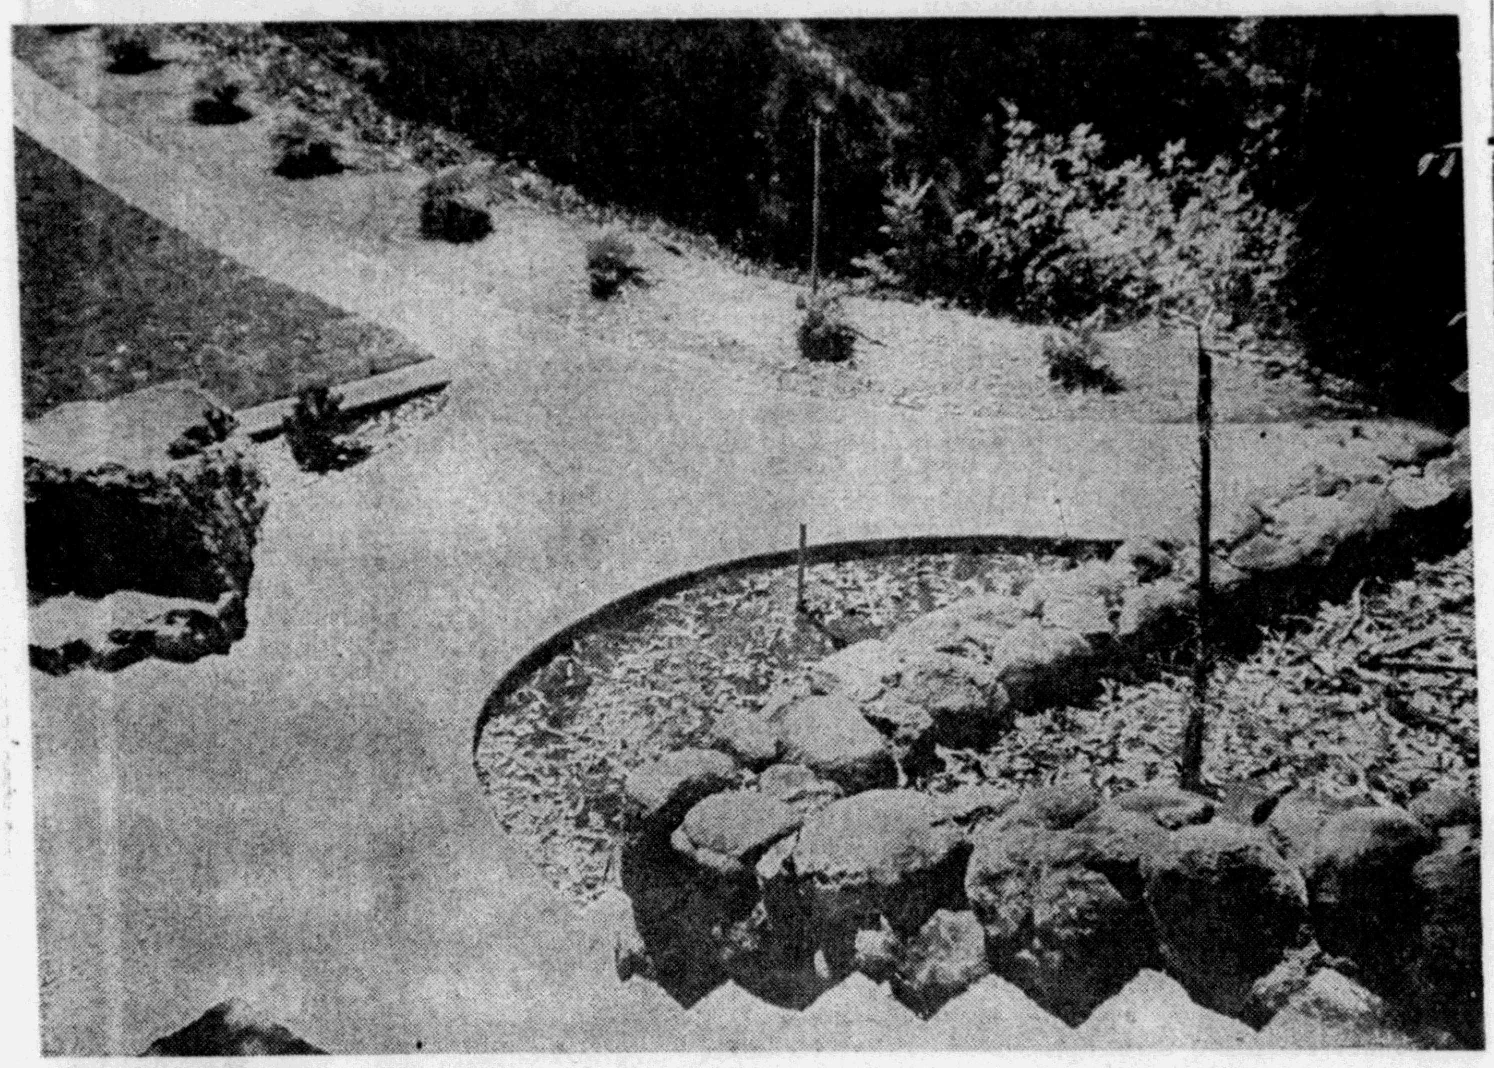
LANDSCAPING FOR COMPLICATED TOPOGRAPHY

Sidney M. Lewin and Associates in designing garden areas for the E.A. Farnworth home in San Rafael were faced with many existing trees, verying levels and little access to the rear of the house for equipment. All trees were saved and the natural grades at their bases allowed to remain. Large stones were set into the concrete paving.

MAIN GARDEN LEVEL — Concrete borders all grass areas of the Farnworth residence for easy maintenance. Main garden is connected to the house level by steps 15 feet wide. (Jim Martin photos).



ORGANIC DESIGN — Paving at the Farnworth residence was exposed aggregate. Sonoma field stones were used for low walls by the Lewin landscape architects to maintain a natural appearance.

More To A Window Than Meets Eye

Considering the fact that windows make up from 30 to 70 per cent of the average home exterior, it's clear that windows deserve attention in any modernization project.

Unlike the windows of yesteryear, which were made by hand and varied with the carpenter's ability, today's windows are precision - engineered for good fit, long-life, low-maintenance and high-style — as well as ventilation and visibility. Also important to homeowners is the ready availability of quality units, such as windows of ponderosa pine, in stock sizes at local lumber dealers.

Durability — Factory — treatment of sash and frame with a chemical preservative gives high resistance to weather abuse. Under normal conditions, windows will last for the life of the house.

Weatherstripping — Tight weatherstripping is factory-applied to protect against air infiltration and help cut heat loss.

Insulating Glass — Once a custom feature, insulating glass (two panes of glass sealed at the edges to form an insulating layer of air between) is now obtainable in all styles. Tests show that insulating glass in weatherstripped wood sash offers maximum protection against heat loss and condensation. This means more home comfort and lower heating and cooling bills.

New Hardware — Modern balancing mechanisms and smooth-working metal and vinyl hardware have replaced the old hard-to-operate sash weights and cords.

Washing Ease—Most wood window styles are available with pivot or lift-out sash which allows safe and easy cleaning of both sides of the glass from inside the house. Other easy-clean features: insulating glass, which eliminates storm sash and cuts window washing chores by half; removable grilles, which snap in over the inside glass surface to give windows a handsome divided-light appearance, snap out to simplify window cleaning.

Design Variety — Beauty and style are essentials of modern windows. A wide design choice — including casements, fixed-sash, awnings, hoppers, double-hungs, sliders, bows and bays — allows easy selection of the right style to suit each room.

On the patio, planning shouldn't end with the choice of flagstones and all the usual exterior accessories. With proper planning, you can have a patio the family can enjoy year-round.

A patio can — and should — be an actual house extension. This means it should visually expand the home interior; provide an attractive "framed" view from indoors that can easily become the focal point of any room; and by creating the aura of outdoors make the home interior more pleasant.

The key to indoor - outdoor patio planning is the doors and windows in the wall between. Gliding glass doors are popular patio entries for good reason. They have large glass areas (for good views), and the better quality ones operate easily.

With extensive patios and wide walls, it's possible to open more than one room or a whole side of the house to the outdoors. Use patio doors in a series, or patio doors with adjacent wide-visibility windows. These might include a series of casements, casements flanking fixed sash, gliding windows or stacked awning windows. In at least one type of patio door, insulating glass made from two sheets of tempered safety glass is standard. The line also includes casement, awning and fixed-sash windows and features rigid vinyl cladding over a preservative-treated wood core. The units don't need painting and won't pit, rust or corrode.

A New Trend: Tub Seats For Showers

Among the strong trends in bathrooms are seats in tubs so the bather can shower sitting down.

One reason for this is the growing number of senior citizens who enjoy taking a shower sitting down simply because they enjoy it.

Major improvements in shower equipment have contributed to this trend. Old-fashioned showers had virtually no volume control. The mixing of hot and cold water to attain the desired temperature was done manually. Thus, during sudden pressure drops in the piping system due to water usage elsewhere in the home or even in the neighborhood, the flow of either hot or cold water could be affected — and the bather was likely to be doused with a sudden surge of icy cold or near-scalding water.

Today's equipment makes showering a safe and pleasant experience. Showerheads come equipped with as many as eight spray settings, from fine, needle and coarse to a full flow. You can get swivel arms that enable family members of various heights to shower either standing up or sitting. There are thermostatic controls that keep temperatures constant, regardless of pressure changes, once the desired temperature has been set.

It's recommended that the controls be installed near the front of the tub or shower stall, so the bather can make the necessary adjustment before entering. Then he can relax in the comfortable knowledge that the temperature will remain the same until he's through bathing.

When having a house built to order, arrange your financing so that the builder can be paid as he completes various stages of the job, a method which most builders insist on.

STEEL JOIST SYSTEM — Perimeter and center support jack saddles carry floor joists for homes at Rancho Verde. The new system is claimed to be 40-per cent faster to install and more economical than other methods of foundation and floor framing. The system is being used by Boise Cascade Building Co. which is developing the Petaluma Area. The development will include 400 homes with three to four bedrooms.

Rancho Verde Development May Help Curb High Building Costs

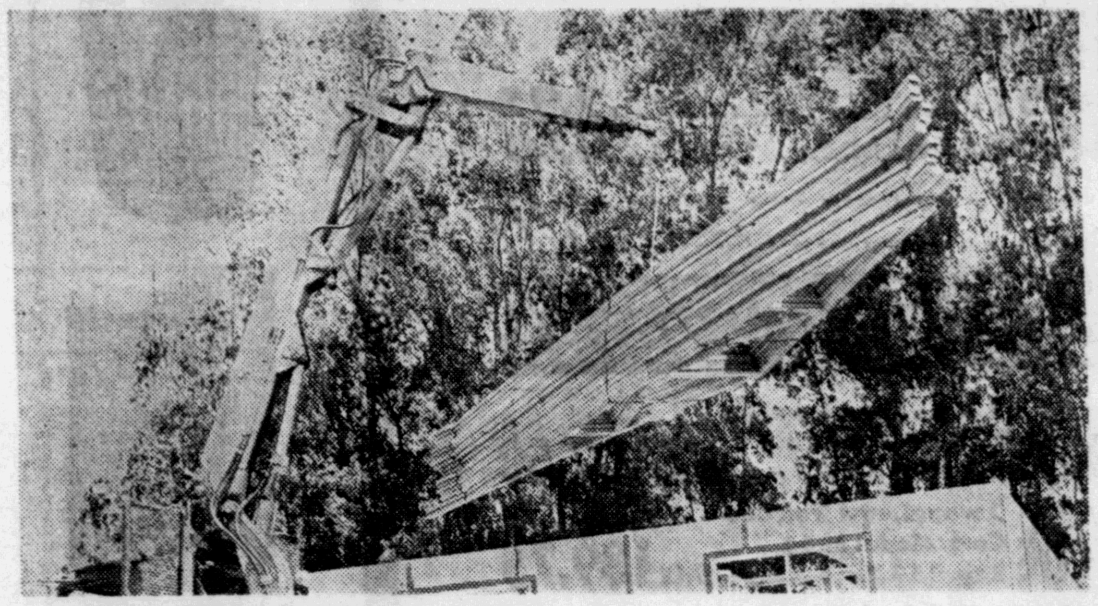
The opening of the Boise Cascade Building Co. Rancho Verde development in Petaluma may prove to be an important step in the spiraling costs of home ownership, according to regional manager for Boise Cascade, Frank R. Parks.

Rancho Verde is the result of community planning and development research with building product supplier Idaco Lumber Co., a Boise Cascade subsidiary, and United States Steel Co., which has produced a new steel perimeter foundation and floor framing system, as collaborators.

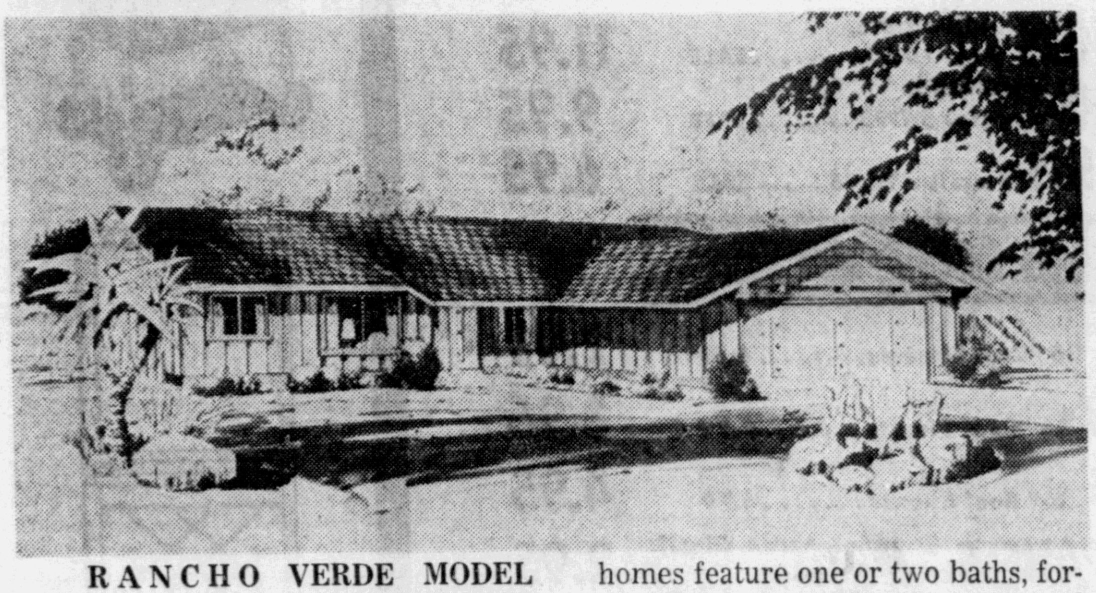
The system was designed to compensate for expansive soil conditions found in many parts of California, and is said to be nearly 40-per cent faster to install and more economical than other floor construction. If soil settles or rises, seismic steel jacks are adjustable. Galvanized steel joists and perimeter beams do not shrink or warp and are impervious to termite, dry rot and general insect damage.

For an average model, 35 pier holes are drilled to a depth of five feet. Concrete is poured into the holes to form a pier pad at ground level with threaded anchor bolts embedded in the pad. Screw jacks are positioned on each pad, aligned and fastened to the anchor bolts. A galvanized steel skirt retaining channel placed on the jack base above the leveling nut acts as a stabilizing feature.

After the steel mechanicals are installed a thick tongue and groove plywood floor is laid. Prefabricated wall sections and roof trusses are dropped into place by a crane.



PREFABRICATED WALL SECTIONS — One crane has placed pre-constructed wall sections for a home at Petaluma's Rancho Verde development. Another is now lifting roof trusses into place. Sections and trusses are manufactured by Idaco Lumber Co., a subsidiary of Boise Cascade Building Co., and shipped to the site by truck.



RANCHO VERDE MODEL HOME — The Casa Bravo is one of two model homes now open for inspection at the Boise Cascade Building Co. Rancho Verde development off Highway 101 at State Highway 116 in Petaluma. New homes feature one or two baths, formal living room, family room and dining area. The development is the site of a new program using a steel perimeter foundation and floor framing system designed by United States Steel Co.

Oak Flooring Used As Modern Wall Paneling

Oak flooring normally is used on floors — where else? But in recent years an increasing number of designers and home owners have been using it for wall paneling.

Both strip and plank oak flooring can be used for this purpose. It's easy to apply and finish, and quite economical. The result is a handsome wall of rugged, beautiful wood that will never need repainting.

You can finish such a wall of oak flooring simply by sanding it lightly and applying clear or colored penetrating sealer.

MOSTLY LAWNS AND PLANTS AT ROUNDTREE

Site planning at Roundtree Marin, subdivision at Marinwood by the U.S. Development Corp. allows structures to cover barely more than 20 per cent of the land. The rest is taken up by acres of lawn, shrubs, trees, streets and pathways. Located at Miller Creek Road and Las Gallinas Avenue, Roundtree is only one of several projects by U.S. Development throughout the Bay Area.

A ROUNDTREE LIVING ROOM — Homes make much use of wood paneling. Houses vary in size from two-bedroom, one-bath townhouses to three-bedroom and two-bath single level homes. A recreational center has also been started at the development.

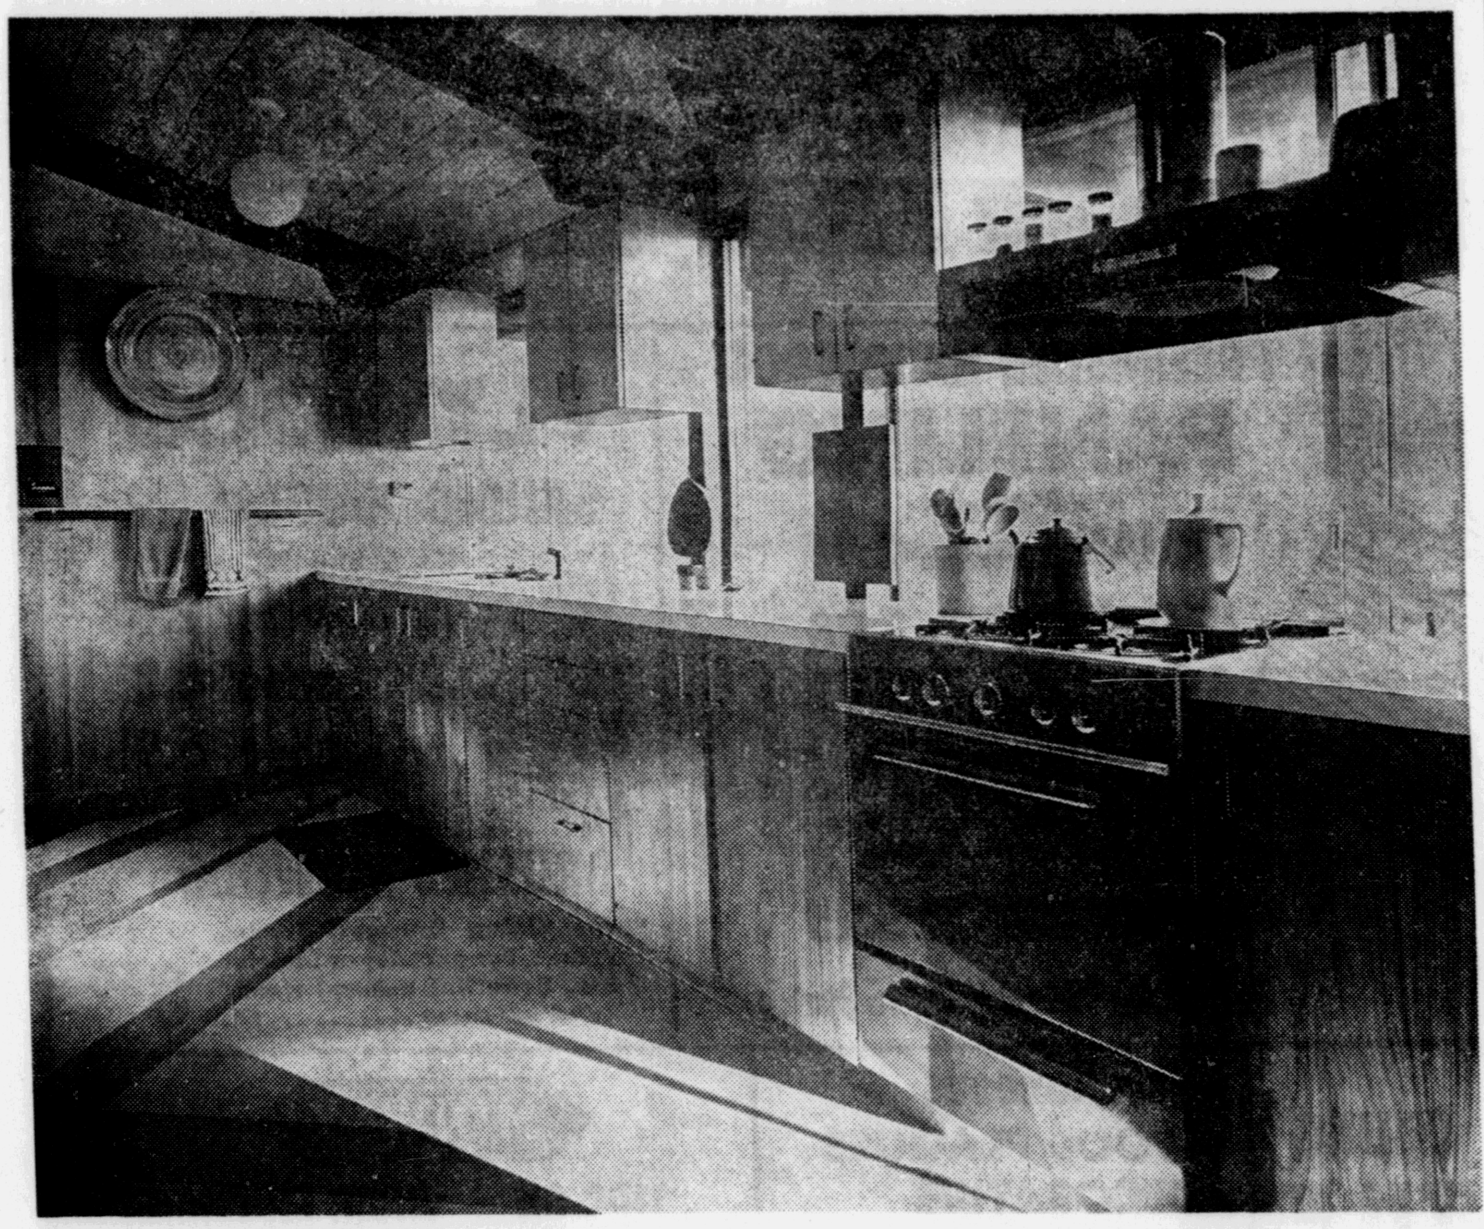
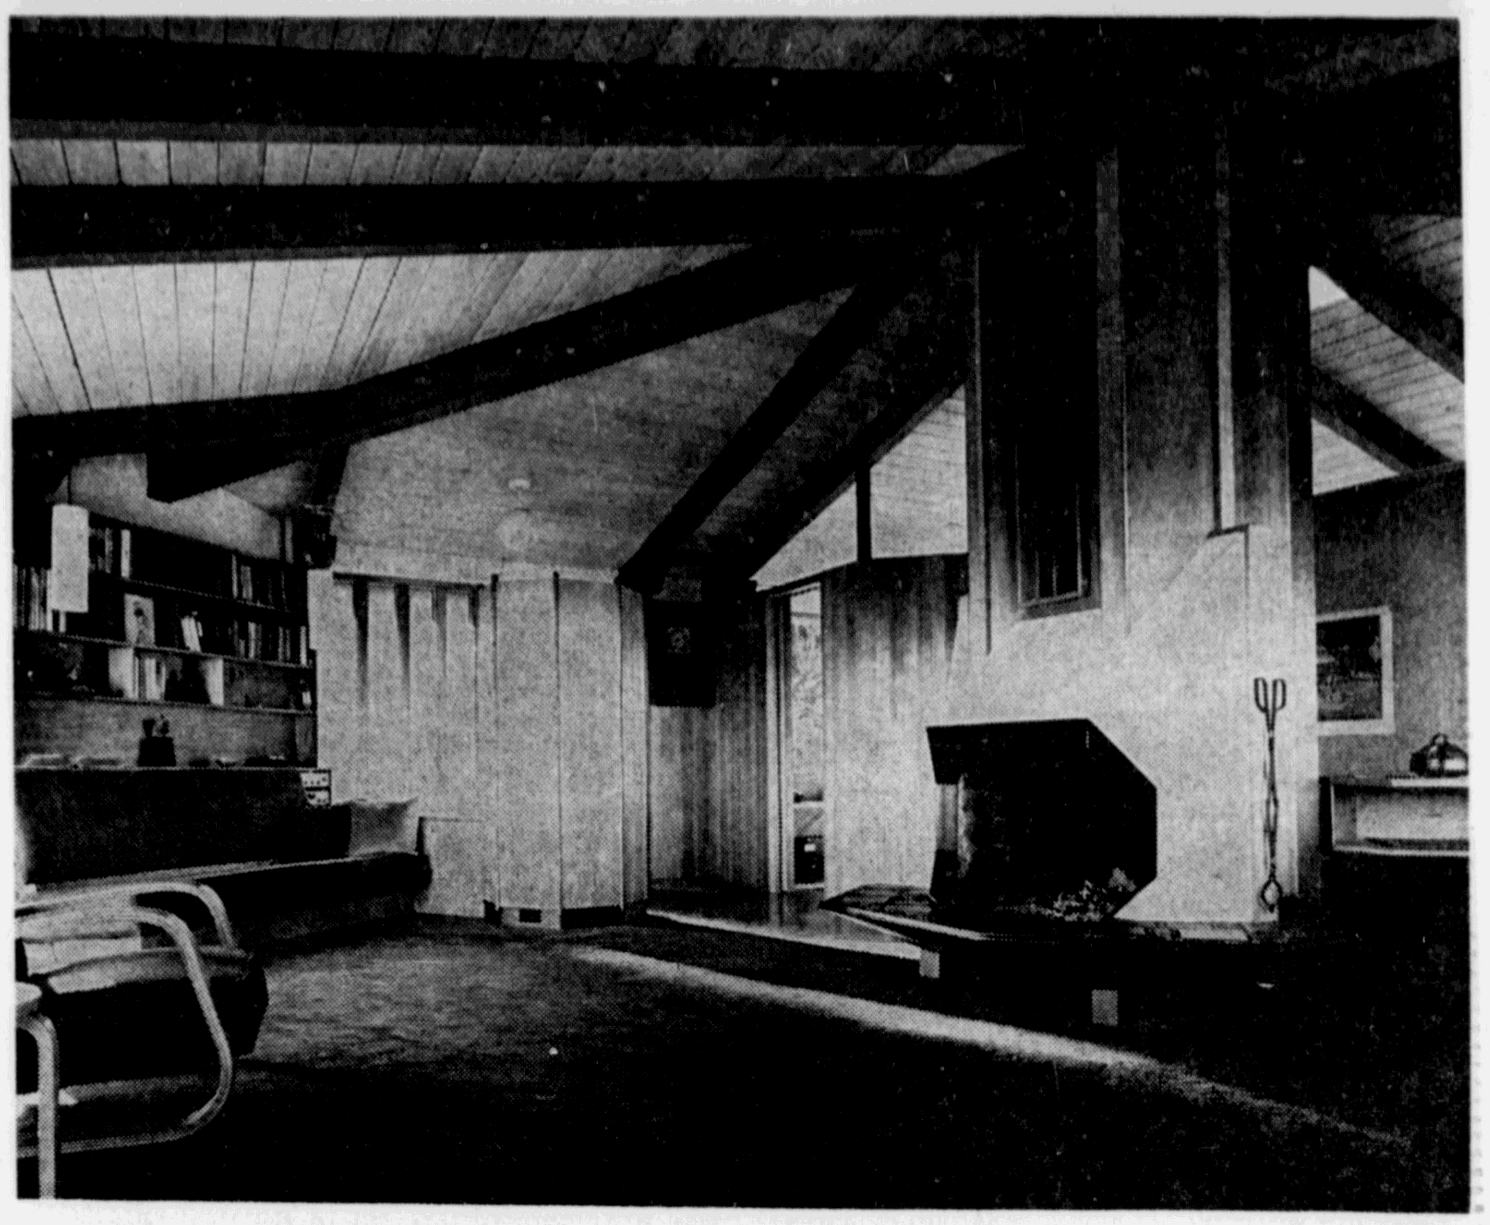
HOME ON 'UNBUILDABLE HILLSIDE'

Two buildings connected by a deck one level below the street make up this home on a steep lot at Strawberry Point designed by architect J. Martin Rosse. Foreground structure contains the garage. The house (background) has the living room on the deck level and two lower bedroom floors. Bay windows, uniform for every room, take advantage of the 180-degree panoramic view.



NORTH WALL OF KITCHEN — This area of architect Rosse's Strawberry Point home was planned to take advantage of a planted hillside view as well as a wide expanse of background hills. Average slope of this lot which was considered unbuildable is one and one-half to one. (Rondal Partridge photos).



SOUTHWEST EXPOSURE — Western hemlock was used in wall paneling of this Strawberry Point home designed by architect Rosse. The ceiling is also hemlock, tongue and groove construction. A free standing coat closet separates the entrance area from the front room.

An Efficient Laundry Is Time Saver

An efficient home laundry center with plenty of handy storage and workcounter space can be a real washday work and time saver for the lady of the house and a good home improvement project for the spring remodeling season.

Situate the laundry center where it'll be most convenient. That is, as close as possible to the area in the home where most of the washday work load originates. (Between the children's bedrooms and the bathroom is the most convenient location in most households.)

The laundry area should be outfitted with counters for sorting clothes and cabinets for storing soap, detergent and bleach and adequate lighting and a place for ironing should be provided.

When choosing the surfacing for the floor, walls and countertops in the laundry center, remember that accidents will happen.

Flowering Fireplace

An unused fireplace makes an excellent home for house plants. Fill the hearth with green plants of the leafy variety for the most interesting display. A good way to vary the height of the plants is to set some of them on inverted clay pots of different sizes.

INFORMAL GARDEN PLANTINGS AND TRELLIS

Landscape architect Michael Painter designed this trellis addition to his house in Mill Valley to carry out the existing beam and fascia alignment and provide sun protection on the west side of his home. Plantings are Meyer lemon, espaliered pococarpus elongata, yellow and orange gazania as ground cover and Monterey pine and olive in the bcakground. Potted plants are zinnias alternated with primulus.

Housewife-Builder Knows Solutions

Some women say builders don't give them everything they want in a home. The builders say that, if they did, the cost would be far above what most women and their families are prepared to pay.

But at least one home builder sees the problem from both sides. Mrs. Edmund Devlin is both builder and housewife. In fact she was responsible for a new home for her own family near Gaithersburg, Md., a Washington suburb. Mrs. Devlin got started building about five years ago because she couldn't get what she really wanted in a home.

On the basis of designing and supervising construction of about a dozen homes since, she offers the following tips to other women shopping for homes:

"Prepare yourself as adequately as you can before house hunting by reading, visiting homes of friends and asking questions.

"Buy or build a house to suit your needs and wants. Don't be overly concerned with resale value. If you like the house, chances are others will too.

"Buy or build with the future in mind. Get as much house as you can possibly afford. You'll be very happy you made the effort."

Mrs. Devlin adds:

"A lot of families are living in homes they really don't like because they simply didn't figure out exactly what they wanted and then insist on getting it. With anything as expensive and important as the home it's well worth the effort to try to get what you want. When I started building, I didn't know anything more about construction than any other women. But I did know what I wanted — and that's the most important thing."

Mrs. Devlin's average day is hectic. After getting her husband, a lumber company executive, and two children, 13 and 11, ready for work and school, she's off to the jobsite. The petite blonde housewife home-builder has no trouble with her all male crew and subcontractors. She's used the same basic construction crew all the years she has been building.

CURVED POOL DESIGN

POOL TIED IN WITH HOME DESIGN

WATERFRONT DEVELOPMENT UNDER WAY

Construction is progressing on the Warren Callister designed waterfront homes at Bahia in Novato, which was opened only last April. When completed Bahia will be a $100 million community offering single family homes and garden homes. Separate areas will be developed for fishing, water skiing, sailing and deep water anchorage for larger boats.

Common Drinking Glass Worst Disease Spreader

One of the worst offenders in spreading colds throughout a home is the old-fashioned common drinking glass, used in bathroom or kitchen by all the family. Because of it, Junior's sniffles too often become Dad's severe cold and Mother may easily "catch" influenza from germs roosting on it.

As millions of modern homemakers have discovered, this health risk can easily be eliminated by the use of disposable paper cups, placed in appropriate locations throughout the house.

Colorful and inexpensive home dispensers, made in a variety of handsome designs and holding 30 to 40 cups, are widely available to fit the decor of any kitchen, bath, powder room or playroom — wherever there's a faucet in the house. Sanitary paper cups to fit these jiffy-service dispensers come in an array of bright and pastel colors and patterns, to add a gay accent to any setting.

Always Check Mechanical Systems

The fastest way to end up a sad and sorry homeowner is to take the mechanical systems for granted when you buy a house. The value of a house depends only partly upon the quality of materials used. Most of the value lies in the ability of the mechanical systems to provide comfortable living for you and your family.

If you can't intelligently balance the price of a house against its true value, the chances are you won't get what you expected or what you paid for. With a car, for instance, you always investigate its important mechanical features and perhaps even test drive it before you buy. A house costs 10 or 20 times as much as a car and is probably the largest single investment you'll ever make, yet you can't try it before you buy it.

It's obviously far more important to know everything about a house, particularly the mechanical systems, before you make your purchase. The best procedure to follow is to have a complete investigation and appraisal made by a competent engineer. Although there is no substitute for this type of professional service, there are some indicators that point to value in a house and they can help you make a preliminary screening of the best buys.

One good indicator is air conditioning. The presence or absence of a central air conditioning system is, in itself, a reflection of the value of a house. This relationship is often overlooked by the prospective homebuyer who takes his mechanical systems for granted.

If the house you are about to buy has a modern central air conditioning system that cools and dehumidifies, filters out pollen and dust, and delivers fresh, healthy air, then you can be almost certain that corresponding value has been built into the rest of the house.

Marble Shelves Can Add To A Home's Atmosphere

A marble shelf combines both beauty and usefulness, and is easy to install and maintain. You can put one in any room in the house. In the foyer, it subs for a console. With a mirror or a group of prints above and a bowl of flowers on it, you have instant atmosphere. In the bedroom, it doubles for a dressing table. Over a studio couch or beside a bed, it holds reading light, tissues, books, radio, clock, a collection of whatever you collect.

In the living room, it displays art objects, family photos, plants. In the dining room, it doubles for a party buffet. In the kitchen, it's useful for herbs, spices, cookbooks; in the bathroom, it can hold jars, bottles, tissues, guest towels.

First thing to decide is size. An inch thick — the most-used size — weighs about 14 pounds a square foot, so be sure to choose brackets that will support it safely. The nature of the wall will, of course, determine what method or type of plug you use to anchor the bolts securely.

Most marble companies as well as hardware and department stores have brackets designed especially to support the weight of marble shelves. They're made of cast brass and come with through bolts.

Another interesting and highly decorative way to install a marble shelf is to use two strips of book-shelf standards. Fit a mirror into the space above and top it with shelves — either glass or wood — to hold glasses or a favorite collection, be it seashells, old china or small memorabilia.

After you decide on the length and width of your shelf, visit your local marble supplier. Be sure to specify which parts are to be polished. The top surface as well as the front — and side (if they show) edges — should be burnished. For shapes like a semi-circle or semi-oval, it's best to make a paper or cardboard pattern in the exact size and shape decided on.

Once it's installed, you'll want to keep your marble shelf looking its best. A regular treatment with paste wax will not only preserve the sheen but protect the surface from scratches and mars.

A new type of vinyl wallcovering has a rayon-type backing that permits it to be stripped from the wall at a later time without messy steaming or scraping.

Chandelier Back In Dining Room

From the edge of extinction, chandeliers have returned to add light, charm and beauty to dining rooms. The surge is due both to the generally increased acceptance of installed lighting fixtures in recent years and the trend to bring formality back into the dining room.

Furniture manufacturers and interior designers are combining to separate the dining room from the informality that characterizes modern living. Chandeliers are becoming a key part of the more formal ensemble. They coordinate furnishings, add focal high lights, provide light that flatters diners and adds sparkle to glassware and tableware.

Rooms facing North or East, which lack direct sunlight, will brighten with the use of reds, yellows and oranges. Cooler shades will achieve the opposite effect in rooms facing South and West.

LUXURY HOME AT LUCAS VALLEY

American Housing Guild designers have created many new features including this spacious living room for the Falley Oak model. Heavily timbered cathedral ceilings tops an extensive use of glass in windows and walls, archtecturally designed fireplace and a unique sunken conversation pit. Some 46 new homes will be built by American Housing in its new creekside section, affording interesting landscaping and recreational opportunities.

OUT OF THE TRAFFIC PATTERN

This kitchen was designed to be át the heart of the house, but is kept clear for efficient work with a bar area that is bypassed by traffic. All cabinets are within easy reach. Louvered door storage at the right contains home-canned fruits and vegetables as well as extra dishes and other household equipment.

Bathrooms Of The 70s Will Be Far From Drab

The bathroom of the 1970s will be as colorful and highly styled as it is functional. And because tomorrow's bath will be made up of mix-and-match fixtures that snap together like erector sets, the homemaker will take an active hand in planning and decorating this once neglected room.

New bath fixtures — tub-shower combinations, shower stalls, wall surfaces with molded-in vanities and cabinets — are a far cry from the sinks and tubs of yesteryear. Now molded into colorful and dramatric forms from a rainforced plastic, baths can be multicolored, uniquely styled rooms.

The plastic, reinforced with fiber glass yarns to increase durability, can be formed into one-piece shapes never before possible. The first bathroom application was in one-piece shower stalls and tub-shower combinations where seats, shelves and trays were molded into the structural sidewalls.

While this unitized bathroom construction may take over new home areas, much will be done to modernize bathrooms in existing houses.

One-piece tub-shower combinations will not fit through the doors of most homes already built nor will the single-piece wall cabinet sections of tomorrow's baths. Therefore, fixture manufacturers are developing snap-together bathrooms — component parts that will literally be dropped off at the customer's home, carried inside and snapped together into a totally new bathroom.

One manufacturer has already made this breakthrough with a four-piece tub-shower combination. Its designers say their reason for developing the snap-together combination was to make modern bath design and improvements available to to aid in the vast urban renewal problem. Most design experts say the molded fixtures are the first real change in bathrooms since the legs came off tubs. But they're not stopping there. They say homemakers will one day shop for bathroom fixtures much as they shop for an automobile. Showrooms will display complete bathrooms, and customers will select color, size, model and options to fit their needs. Then the complete room — tub-shower, basin-counter wall sections and so forth — will simply be delivered and snapped into place.

The snap-together bathroom will reduce installation cost. It lot of choice in design and decoration.

Check Color Schemes Of 'Prettier' Homes

When one house looks better than its neighbors, but you can't quite figure out why, check its color scheme.

Exterior color is often the secret of a more attractive, better-proportioned appearance. With a wide pallete of colors available today in both exterior paints and roofing materials, the appearance of any home can be improved and given individuality without making architectural changes.

Mistakes At Purchase Time Can Be Costly

The asking price may sound attractive — but are you sure the house is worth it? The great majority of buyers don't really know much about their dream house except that it "looks all right," and they can meet the monthly mortgage payments.

It's not wise to gamble with what is probably the largest financial commitment of your life. Doesn't it make sense to find out what that house is actually worth? If you don't know, the chances are seven out of 10 you'll be paying more than you should.

Make up your mind to be an informed buyer before you make an offer.

What you may need is the expert guidance and authoritative opinion of the value of that house today as given by a professional real estate appraiser.

When a professional appraiser finishes inspecting the house you want, you'll know whether the house had structural defects, and whether the electrical wiring is in proper condition. You won't have to "hope" the heating system is adequate. The professional appraiser will tell you, as he will tell you whether the existing plumbing is satisfactory.

Beyond this, he'll tell you about neighborhood conditions. The location of shopping centers, schools, churches and recreational areas affect the value of that house as it stands today —as do property taxes and special assessments.

But the best and most useful information the professional appraiser will give you is the dollars and cents opinion of the value of that house.

Face-Nailing Paneling Has Become Old Hat

Face-nailing paneling has become old hat with arrival of general purpose adhesive. It is clean, quick-drying and adheres firmly to all wood, gypsum board, hardboard, plywood, acoustical tile and concrete surfaces. Yet it gives the craftsman time to position the furring strips or panels exactly.

Applied directly to studding, furring strips or solid backing, it eliminates the need for face nailing, making the job easier, neater, quicker. One cartridge bonds three to four 4x8-foot panels.

Collect samples of wallpaper, paint, upholstery, carpeting before a major redecorating job. These will enable you to see at first hand how different color combinations will strike your fancy.

Winter Good Time To Air-Condition Home

Delays in completing the installation of a central air-conditioning system in the busy season are sometimes unavoidable, but they can cause unnecessary discomfort.

During winter months contractors welcome additional installation work to keep their crews occupied, and in some cases they will offer price reductions to encourage winter business. Usually they can do the job at your convenience and finish it up quickly and without interruptions.

Good Idea: Know The Valve System

There comes a time in every home owner's life when it becomes necessary to shut off the water at the point where it enters the house.

The chances are that he knows exactly where to go and what to do.

But what happens when he isn't there? Do the other members of the family know where the main shut-off valve is located? Do they know which valve to close when the cold water must be turned off without affecting the hot water? And vice versa.

The answer to the latter three questions is probably "no." The best way to avoid the trouble that can ensue when the water can't be shut off properly is to place tags on all the key valves. Each tag should tell what it controls and how the valve is turned to halt the flow of water. And each responsible member of the family should be adviesd that all such valves work the same way: when one is turned clockwise, the valve closes and the water is halted; when it is turned counterclockwide, the valve opens.

In addition to the main valves, there are separate shut-offs at some fixtures, especially in newer houses.

Redwood Is Ideal Siding; It Weathers Naturally

Remodeling should beautify and increase the resale value of a house, but it should also reduce maintenance. This is especially true in exterior remodeling, where maintenance can be a real chore.

For those who wish to remodel with wood siding and yet reduce maintenance, it is necessary to select a weather-resistant wood which, if desired, can be left as is. Redwood is such a material, since it weathers naturally into a soft, driftwood grey. It can, of course, be stained, bleached, painted or finished with a water repellent if some other effect is wanted. In any case, it has tremendous dimensional stability, shrinking and swelling less, and is almost totally esistant to decay and insect attack.

Once you've decided to remodel the outside — either the whole house or the facade— there are several things you must consider. The first is whether you want vertical or horizontal siding. Factors which may influence your choice include existing siding (ease of removal in preparation for new siding) and the architectural scheme of your house (the effect you want the siding to accomplish). No two houses are the same, so it's to your advantage to weigh these factors carefully before starting. A wise move is to consult a building or remodeling contractor for advice. Next, make a trip to your local lumber dealer and pick out the size, pattern and texture of siding you plan to install.

Only you know whether you have the skill and experience necessary to do the entire job yourself. If not, you should enlist the services of a qualified carpenter. His experience and know-how will prove invaluable. He will handle the more exacting steps of the siding installation — but there's still much for you to do. Professional help, with your assistance, will result in a topnotch job while saving you money.

After the decisions as to placement, coloration, grain and pattern, the installation of your redwood siding and trim may seem anticlimactic, but take your time to achieve best results. Although there is no such thing as "Five Easy Steps to Siding," the order in which you and your carpenter follow accepted procedures is important:

1. Trim should be removed from windows, doors, etc. where it will interfere with siding installation. The nailing surface must be smooth where siding will be installed. In some cases, siding may be applied right over existing coverings. In others (such as stucco and masonry), furring strips, into which the siding can be nailed, must be put up. Other obstructions, such as battens, must also be removed.

2. Cut siding. An electric saw is a good thing for many projects, but if you or your carpenter don't have one, a saw can be rented for a reasonable price. Siding forming corners should be carefully measured and cut.

3. The siding should now be nailed. If you previously hadn't given much thought to the type of nails to use, do so before the pounding starts. To avoid rust stains, use stainless steel, aluminum or top quality hot-dipped galvanized nails. Trying to save a few cents on nails might give you headaches next year.

4. After the siding is installed, the trim around windows, doors and vents should be nailed into place. Here's where the skill and experience of your carpenter really comes in handy. Redwood trim will best complement your new siding.

5. The final step is one that you can do yourself. Apply any appropriate finish you may have decided to put on your siding — or leave it as is. For best results, carefully read package directions.

Various kinds and colors of woods add interest to a room. The theory that all wood in a room should be identical has long since been disproved.

Outdoor Lighting—A Major Key

Outdoor lighting can be a vital part of your family's enjoyment of home. With light, the working members of the family can enjoy terraces and patios that are otherwise unusable after dark, and guests can share your pleasure at the entrancing scenes of a subtly-lit garden by night.

With properly placed lights, your home has extra security, since lighting discourages prowlers and provides protection against falls and other accidents.

Lighting fixture manufacturers have designed many handsome new fixtures for all residential outdoor uses. These include wall lanterns, post lamps, hanging fixtures, special floodlights and spotlights for outside illumination, and delightful low-to-the-ground path lights, for accent lighting.

Among the new post lamps and wall lanterns are authentic reproductions of pre-revolutionary days, fashioned in antique brass or copper. Reflecting the gracious heritage of Colonial America, these fixtures are hand-crafted with polished brass reflectors and crystal glass panels. Flanking an entrance, these fixtures enhance any traditional or colonial home, and cast a warm hospitable glow at your doorway.

Reminiscent of Charles Dickens' England are some of the new coach-style post lamps planned to brighten a flight of steps, a garage or a winding pathway through the garden. Designed in black, antique copper or brass, the fixtures are sometimes set with frosted or etched glass. Some models are available with telescoping posts which can extend from 4½' to 8' as needed.

To dramatize garden plantings, a pool or to edge a walkway, graceful path lights come in a variety of styles. There are shrub-shaped aluminum lights, curving flower bell fixtures, three-tiered pagoda designs, and sculptured mushroom lights, — all painted green to blend into the landscape, and all approximately 7" to 9" high for low-level viewing.

Other fixtures that will illuminate a front or side door are hanging chain-suspended antique brass lanterns with star-cut beveled edges. They are also designed in white or black to blend with all decors.

Spotlights and floodlights may be mounted high on the branches of trees or under overhanging eaves, and focused on certain areas, to create interesting shadows. Spotlights will create more exact and clearly defined patterns than floodlights, but if either kind of fixture is placed too close to the object, a fuzzy shadow will result.

The outdoor "living area" — your "garden room" — should contain the highest level of light on the outdoor scene. As a general rule, only 5 footcandles are required for dining, 10 footcandles for card games or craft work tables, and 20 to 40 footcandles focused on reading areas. A footcandle is a technical measurement of light when the foot is the unit of length — thus, the uniform illumination of one square foot of surface.

To create concentrated light, floodlights should be concealed in trees, fastened to roof overhangs or located in deep housings, but they should be focused directly on the terrace or patio for the greatest family benefit.

Remember that the chief difference between lighting within and outside your home is that light within the home is confined, whereas outside, the sky is the limit. Light does not bounce off walls and ceilings. It is absorbed by the night. Thus it becomes a challenge to the skill of the homeowner to light the out-of-doors.

SAFETY SUGGESTIONS

Consult your local lighting showroom for expert advice on planning your garden lighting, at no charge.

The American Home Lighting Institute suggests that the wiring be installed by an electrical contractor to insure that it is done properly. Underground circuits are the most permanent, but they must be protected from insect and rodent damage, be capable of surviving severe weather, and be insulated from moisture damage during freezing and thawing. Above-ground circuits are easier to install, but less attractive.

Other safety suggestions include: Ground all outdoor lighting with three-wire cords, a three-pronged plug, and a grounded electrical outlet box; weatherproof all switches, sockets, outlet boxes and other equipment before using; and install separate circuits for outdoor use, rather than overload existing indoor circuits.

Air-Conditioning Has Own Brain—

Your central air-conditioning system has its own brain — the thermostat. Give the thermostat a chance to operate effectively by making certain it is properly located where there is normal air circulation.

Thethermostat is designed to provide you with maximum comfort at lowest cost, automatically regulating temperature and, to an extent, humidity, but improper placement can prevent it from doing this.

Keep the thermostat away from equipment that produces heat, away from lamps, TV, radios, kitchen appliances. Don't locate it behind a door that will block air circulation. A thermostat should not be near large glass areas where excessive heat may enter.

Use Specialized Room For Specialized Life

The members of a lively, busy family tend to have highly specialized interests. One member may build ship models while another wants to toot a trumpet. And, if several of these interests are pursued simultaneously, some rather sharp conflicts may occur.

To solve the problem, the home should have a specialized room that frees the rest of the house for general living. An architect, lumber dealer or contractor can show you how a room of this type can be built right onto your present home. The room addition can blend in so perfectly that it will look like part of the original.

WHAT EVERY HOMEMAKER SHOULD KNOW ABOUT DRAPERY CLEANING.

It is a revelation to homemakers when Major Drapery Cleaners, San Rafael, explain what their drapery finishing machine can do. With this unit, pleats and hemlines stay even, with drapes kept to a predetermined length. All drapes are dried and deodorized in hanging position in drying cabinets. No harmful tumbling action! The machine also sizes (sprays) your drapes for proper body and texture. Controlled amounts of CS4, Hexachlorophene, bacteriostats, and fungicides are introduced leaving the drapes germacetically clean. Even moth and insect repellents are applied. Finally, draperies are coated with invisible non-toxic hydroscopic waxes to repel deterioration.

HOME THAT CAN GROW

A feature of this Foothill Manor house in Petaluma by Debra Homes, Inc. is a bonus space which can be utilized either for two additional bedrooms or a rumpus room. In this scene, going over plans for the development are Richard C. Corwin of Sonoma Mortgage Co., which finances the project, and Arthur Condiotti of Condiotti Enterprises, Inc., the builder. Foothill Manor consists of one and two-story ranch style homes.

'Sound-Conditioning' Home Model Proves Many Points

Noise control may someday be as important to the homeowner as climate control. A Dallas, Tex., builder is exhibiting a "sound-conditioned" home to prove the point.

There are more sources of noise in the home today than there were in grandfather's day. The electronic voices of television, stereo, and radio are particularly insistent and penetrating. But there are many other sources of unwanted sound.

Air conditioners whirr for hours at a time. Refrigerators, washing machines, and other heavy appliances add to the decibel level. And automobile and air traffic have increased mightly. Footsteps, voices, plumbing, and heating all make noise.

To compound the problem, modern building materials and techniques often produce buildings that deaden sounds less than did the solid building of a few years ago.

The problem is attacked in four ways:

1. By using sound absorbent materials.
2. By using devices that are noiseless, such as mercury light switches and noiseless flush toilets.
3. By situating noisy machinery far away from living areas.
4. By designing the house so that noise cannot travel freely from area to area.

Sound waves bounce off hard surfaces. That is why footsteps echo in long corridors, and voices sound loud in empty rooms. Acoustical ceiling tiles, draperies, and rugs and carpets soak up the sound waves.

According to one test of carpeting's sound absorbent qualities, carpeting teamed with an underlay of latex foam rubber or latex foam and hair will absorb more airborne noise than any other type of floor covering. In additon, the foam rubber underlay will almost completely eliminate "impact" noises from heels, chair scrapes, and dropped objects. This is especially important in apartment living.

Machinery is noisy. Central air conditioning equipment is best for making a quiet house, because it can be located in cellar or outside the home, away fram the living areas. The same is true of washing machines and dryers. If they cannot be placed out of earshot, they should be muffled by enclosing them in a sound reducing compartment. Simply building a "closet" of pegboard around machiners will muffle noise to a remarkable degree.

In the Dallas house, the kitchen exhaust fan is located in the attic, and operates so quietly that a warning light is necessary so that the owner can tell when the fan is turned on.

Design is important, too. Sound carries easily through pipes, straight hallways, and directly through walls and floors. However, a turn can easily baffle the passage of sound, and if closets shield a bedroom from the adjacent bathroom, noise will be muffled.

Guarantees, Warranties, Bonds Important To Remodeling Project

If you're house-hunting or remodeling your home, keep in mind the guarantees, warranties and bonds that many manufacturers of building materials issue to back up their products. These are important guides to the durability and performance of the products.

Any of these forms of guarantee usually is issued in writing. The certificate is given to the homeowner by the specalty contractor who does the work — a roofing contractor, for example — or the builder, if a new house has been purchased.

While slightly different in precise legal meaning, the words guarantee, bond and warranty all signify protection for the buyer.

Some materials available with manufacturers' guarantees, warranties or bonds are:

Fiberglass screening — guaranteed for 10 years against denting, shrinking, corroding, and rusting that results in sidewall staining.

Asphalt roof shingles —all heavyweight shingles carry written guarantee, bond or warranty covering homeowner against defective materials up to 25 years.

Garage doors — one year warranty against defects in material or workmanship, plus lifetime warranty against splitting, checking or delamination of the insert panels.

Insulating window glass — warranted for five years against film formation or dust collection between panes, under normal circumstances.

Water heaters — warranted for five to 10 years against defects in workmanship or material under normal use.

Exterior plywood — guaranteed for the life of the building against delamination, regardless of weather.

"You're In Good Hands With Allstate."

The important question is:
Will they really get your carpet clean?

Some carpet cleaners who still use the old fashioned shampoo method with harsh scrubbing brushes try to suggest that the original, time-tested, patented, DEEPSteam carpet cleaning process is harmful to your carpet.

Thoroughly cleaned by DEEP STEAM without using harsh brushes . . .

Let's look at the facts and compare…

Outdated (and often damaging) shampoo methods with their harsh brushes claim they have as many as 15 different soil-removing methods. The only dirt that can be removed by these methods is the loose dirt on or near the surface of the carpet. Any dirt that is left in or around the carpet fibers is then scrubbed deeper into the carpet. This dirt and the scum-forming shampoo cannot magically disappear. For a carpet to be clean the dirt must be rinsed or flushed out. Would you wash your clothes without rinsing out the dirt and detergent?

DEEPSteam penetrates deep into the pile of your fine carpet.

A gentle bath of wet steam with a cleaning agent dislodges even the most stubborn particles of dirt, dust and grime and then immediately rinses them away into a waste tank. Not only is all foreign material removed from your carpet by DEEPSteam's powerful extraction method, but every fiber of the carpet is coated with protective soil retardant, deodorizer, and mothproofing at no extra cost.

With DEEPSteam there is no danger of frayed or loosened fibers because no brushes or harsh chemicals are used. There is no chance of a scummy, unpleasant detergent residue because no detergents are used. There is no possibility of scrubbing dirt and grime down into your carpet, hiding but not removing it, because DEEPSteam extracts all dirt and grime.

So why take a chance with old-fashioned second-class carpet care systems? Why risk harsh detergents that leave a residue, or damaging brushes that simply scrub the dirt deeper . . . out of sight perhaps, but not out of your valuable carpeting?

Since 1964 we have Deep Steam cleaned over 30 million square feet of carpet and have gained valuable information (that only experience can bring) in the effective use of Wet Steam for carpet cleaning.

Over these years we have constantly maintained our high standard of excellence by developing more effective cleaning agents, techniques, and equipment to constantly improve our service. Be sure you have YOUR carpet cleaned by the time-tested ORIGINAL DEEPSteam CARPET CLEANING METHOD, the finest, the safest, the best care for every kind of carpet. Don't Accept Any Imitations

IDEA FOR POOL SEPARATION

Oak Flooring Proves Ideal In Most Decors

Variety is the spice of life for home decorators, and oak flooring, because it can be refinished to blend with any changes in decor or a homeowner's mood, fits right in with this scheme of things.

Ordinarily, an oak floor can go ten years or more without need for refinishing. Then, a professional can do it for between 15 cents and 23 cents a square foot for a clear finish. But, it may be refinished more often than once a decade if you wish.

A finish should be easy to care for and should not hide the natural beauty of the floor. Homeowners should keep in mind that any refinishing should be done over a bare floor, sanded clean and free of earlier finishes

Penetrating sealer, either clear or colored, is suggested for final finish on most residential floors because it soaks into the wood. It wears only as the wood wears and will not chip or scratch. Best of all, when a worn spot does appear, it can be touched up or refinished without showing.

Varnish is a frequently-used final finish. Durable and fairly resistant to stains and spots, it comes in high, semi, and dull gloss. Varnish will darken with age, however.

Chief virtues of shellac are the speed with which it dries and the slowness it darkens with age. Glossy and transparent, shellac will spot if liquids are not promptly wiped away.

Lacquer is another quick-drying final finish, so quick that it must be applied with care. Glossy and about as durable as varnish, lacquer can be retouched fairly easily since the new coat will simply dissolve into the old one.

Manufacturers' instructions for applying any type of finish should be strictly followed. Waxing the finish with a good quality paste or liquid floor wax, then polishing, adds life to the finish and protects the floor from dirt and grit. Whichever wax is selected, it should have a solvent base, not a water base. All hardwood floor finishes have a degree of moisture-resistance, but water can spot the surface or cause the wood grain to rise.

Mortgage lending banks and agencies require you to carry fire, wind and other insurance on your poperty in order to protect their investment, but be sure the policy also protects your equity.

Inflation Can Hurt Home Policies

The inflation which you have been feeling in the pocketbook may be undermining your security in a way you can't feel at all. It may be weakening the protection afforded by your home or apartment insurance policy.

Most insured home owners or apartment dwellers tuck their policies away with their deeds or leases — and then forget about them. This is partly understandable, since nobody likes to think about sudden, unforeseeable damage or loss to his home. In our economy, however, a policy that is just right at the time of issue offers less and less protection the longer it is forgotten.

The fundamental rule of property insurance is that it should put you in the same financial condition after a loss or disaster as you were in just before it. That is what each policy is designed to do when it is first calculated. But before the normal three-year renewal time comes up, inflation is likely to render the policy inadequate.

It can happen fast. In the five years from July 1964 to July 1969, the consumer price index for the nation rose more than 18 per cent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In just one year, from July 1968 to July 1969, it increased 5½ per cent. (Base is the 1957-59 period.)

How can you keep your property insurance protection at the proper level? Frederick Watkins, president of Aetna Insurance, has these suggestions:

1—Remind yourself of the date your policy was issued and the sums for which it provides. Then estimate the effect inflation has had on prices in your area. (It may vary from the national average.) Your insurance agent or broker may help you get this information, or you can check with the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Labor Department.

2—Don't feel compelled to wait until renewal to conform your policy to the new economic facts of life. You can do so any time. And consider providing for future, as well as past, inflation.

3—Make an inventory of the contents of your home or apartment and keep it up to date. On a room-by-room basis, list your possessions — from rugs and drapes to tables and chairs, from clocks to appliances, from clothing to jewelry. For each item, list the year purchased, the original cost and the present cash value. (This last figure should reflect replacement cost less depreciation). Your insurance agent or broker, or an independent appraiser, can help you with these calculations. Such an inventory can be very helpful if you suffer a serious loss.

4—Remember that some possessions appreciate, rather than diminish in value. Included are some antiques, works of art and jewelry. All the more reasons to keep your policy up to date.

5—If you own your own home, stay informed of its current replacement value. Since building costs have risen sharply in most areas, it would be more costly to replace than you may realize.

Remodeling Requires Planning

Spring remodeling should begin in winter. And if you're thinking about tackling a remodeling project next spring, stop thinking and start tackling.

No matter how small the job, it'll require planning which, in turn, will require time. And, notes the trade association of domestic ceramic tile manufacturers, the more time you allot to making plans the less trouble you'll have and the more money you'll save in implementing them.

Starting your spring remodeling project this winter will give you enough time to do some comparison shopping for services and materials in order to achieve a high degree of quality in the most economical way.

The object of comparison shopping is to get the most for your money and not simply to spend less money. So don't choose a service or a product just because it's cheap.

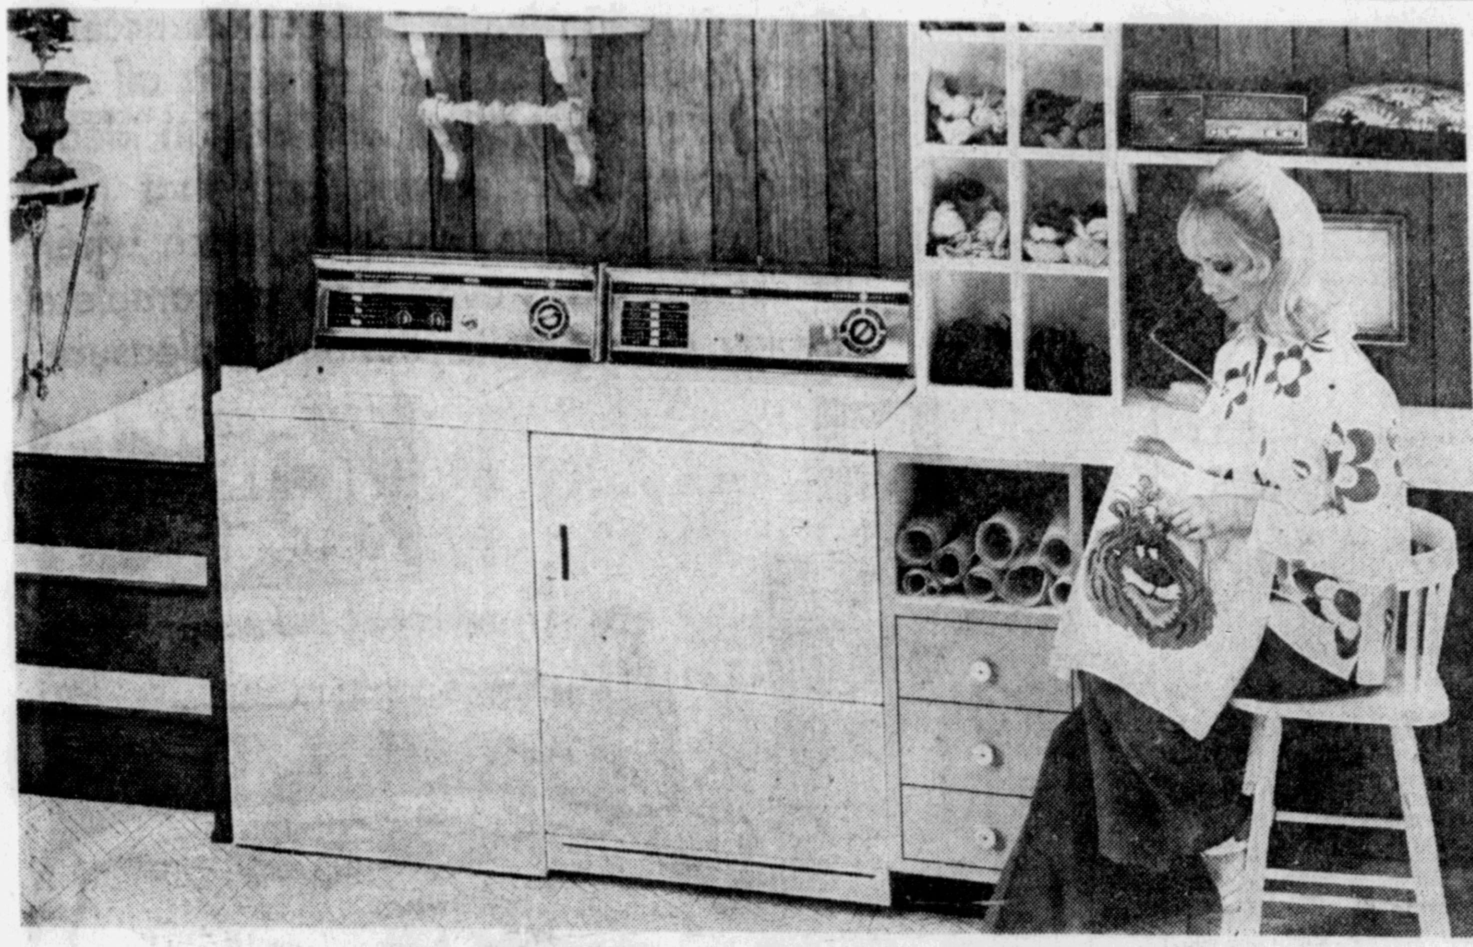
BLENDS WITH SCENERY

Natural materials make this house, designed by Phillips and Finisy for the Howard Friesens in Kent Woodlands, a part of its wooded setting. Trellised fence at the left connects the carport to the house and screens patio and rear entrance from the front approach. Ceilings follow the sloping cedar roof to a 13-foot height in the breakfast area and to 18 feet in the living room.



PLAYS A DUAL ROLE

By providing plenty of room for a washer and dryer and also for a homemaker's hobby corner, the sometimes dready laundry room is turned into another attractive addition. The walls are of wood paneling with a title floor of a lighter color.

Cluster Conecpt—Solution To Housing

Most people think the house of the future will be a cross between a piece of modern bathrooms, kitchens and living spaceship. Not so. Neighborhood design and layout will change in the years ahead, but houses will be very much the same.

We are still living in basically the same house that the people of Pompeii lived in. Families of tomorrow also will have the same needs for bedrooms, bathroofs, kitchens and living areas and builders of the future will continue to use most of the same construction materials they use today.

The big changes will be in neighborhood layout and planning. We already have planned unit developments which mix different types of dwellings — apartments, townhouses, single family homes — in one neighborhood.

The next major change will involve the way single-family homes are placed on land. One particularly promising concept is called the cluster — grouping single-family houses to make better use of available land. Sometimes, costs can be reduced by increasing the density of housing on a given piece of land. Clustering also helps make good use of difficult building sites and results in ribbons of green space between homes for beauty and recreational use.

The cluster concept was pioneered in Southern California and is now spreading to other parts of the country.

Single-family clustering will end the practice of placing houses in dull and seemingly endless rows along wide suburban streets. The way we have been planning neighborhoods not only wastes land, it has created a look-alike suburban blight that may become the slums of the future.

The traditional neighborhood was designed for the horse and buggy days. Suburban residents then needed large front yards to protect their homes from the dust of unpaved roads. They needed spacious side yards for ventilation and lighting and large back yards for gardens, chicken coops and hanging out the week's wash. Modern living has made that kind of suburban neighborhood as obsolete as the buggy whip and the crank for the family car.

Because cluster developments use land more efficiently, they must be adopted if we are to come anywhere close to meeting the country's future housing needs. There are demographic projections of at least 100 million more Americans by the end of the century — just 30 years away. Congress recognized the housing problem of the future when it enacted, in 1968, a law calling for the construction of 2.6 million new and renovated housing units every year until 1988. This plan would meet only the nations' minimum housing needs. Even so, housing starts were well below that goal in 1969.

Clustered single-family homes are one important solution to the country's housing shortage now and in the years ahead.

Key To Slicing Of Wires Minus The Fuss

Ask any hardware, building supply or electrical parts dealer for a "solderless connector" or "twist-on connector" and he'll show you a small, conical-shaped device used to splice electrical wires in branch circuits or appliances.

These little connectors, available in three basic sizes depending on the number, gauge, and type of wires to be spliced, are as useful to keep in supply as screws and nails.

In use, they twist on without special tools, and can be removed just as easily, as new circuits are added or other changes implemented in the home wiring scheme.

Solderless connectors are essentially the same in outward appearance, but not in performance. The "secret" is a wire-holding mechanism, either plastic or metal, conical in shape with inner threads. A steel spring-action mechanism is preferred over copper or piastic, as the normal expansion and contraction of the wires can not work this type of connection loose. Connectors also should resist corrosion, while assuring good electrical contact.

The outside housing also is important. Solid materials can chip, or possibly break leaving the connection exposed. One of the newer connectors on the market features a flexible vinyl housing, with molded fins added for a better grip. The connectors also are color-coded as to size, making selection and identification within a circuit an easy task.

Here are a few guidelines for using electrical connectors:

Check your local electrical codes to see if connectors of this type may be used in branch circuits and, at the same time, which electrical chores you can do yourself.

Always work with the main or branch circuit turned off.

If using aluminum or a combination of aluminum and copper wires, make sure the connector you purchase is UL approved.

Make certain not too much insulation is removed from the wires prior to applying the connector or bare wire will be exposed even after the connector is in place, a possible hazard which may result in a short.

Use a connector rated for the size of wire (gauge) in use. Three or more wires spliced in this manner may require a larger connector.

Pre-twist the wires in a clockwise direction before adding the connector. The resultant connection will be tighter and will not work loose.

Hammer Marks

To prevent hammer marks on finished trim, use a nail shield made out of a piece of thin scrap plywood. Bore a quarter-inch hole through one end of the plywood for use with finishing nails, and a half-inch hole through the other end for use with ordinary nails

Drive the nail down to the shield, unhook the plywood and finish driving with a nailset.

You're one-of-a-kind and so is Carriage House

You're you and nobody else! You have your likes and dislikes, your decorating tastes, your way of life. And your home should be a reflection of that way of life. That's our job, to help you to achieve this. And that's why we're a one-of-a-kind store. As you browse through our many Ethan Allen American Traditional room settings, each completely decorated as in a beautiful home, you'll realize how different we are.

We sell ideas in how to put things together and use furniture, draperies, carpeting, accessories as a means to accomplish this. Our Home Planners will want to know about the way you live and then and only then will they offer suggestions. So come in, whether it's elegant, formal, practical or rustic, we have a mood to match your one-of-a-kind personality. We'll even give you a free full color 358 page decorating book.

Women Who Love Their Home .... Come to Bellach's

GALA by UNITED is the surprise modern look... ... for everywhere in your home

As elegant as its name, primavera veneers recreate the shimmering light of their tropical origin as they add to the handsomeness of elm solids and other selected hardwoods in this outstanding modern collection. This, in a warm, brown spicewood finish, is the beautiful beginning of Gala, where designs-for-dining match the splendor of the woods. And, as in all great modern design where splendor and simplicity go hand in hand . . . Gala, is distinguished by strong and beautiful lines throughout the collection. Polished chrome in hardware and casters accents the glow of it all. And to top it all . . . Gala is interest-filled with design ideas: for example, a serving cart that rolls into its own place under a hutch when its serving job is over. Now on complete display, Gala awaits your dining pleasure.

SECTION TWO

REDESIGNED HOME ON WOLFBACK RIDGE

When architect Mario Corbett designed his home at 21 Wolfback Ridge, Sausalito in 1947, this area was a bedroom. Subsequent and present owner Jack F. Howland, an interior designer, enlarged the house and converted it to a dining room. Table is his own creation — a 350-pound slab of three-quarter inch beveled plate glass on brass sawhorses. Wooded garden is shown through the rear window.

Mastics Have Added Importance In Homes

The use of these organic adhesives, also known as "mastics," is largely a development of the past 15 years. Because they are packaged in ready-to-use form and no further addition of liquid is required, they are not called mortars, although their bonding function is the same as conventional portland cement mortar or dry-set mortar.

Organic adhesives are suitable for installing tile on floors, walls and counters where surfaces are appropriate and properly prepared. In every case the manufacturer's directions should be followed.

Appropriate surfaces are concrete, gypsum plaster, cement asbestos board, wood and plywood, brick, ceramic tile and marble. Local trade practices and climate conditions can affect the acceptability of some of these backings.

Adhesives are not generally suitable for swimming pool or exterior installation. They can be used satisfactorily on shower and other wet area walls only if the backing is suitably prepared to protect it from moisture.

Adhesives are applied in one thin layer with notched trowel. Priming is recommended for many surfaces. Where leveling or truing is required, an underlayment is used.

Economical and easy to use, organic adhesives have added greatly to the practicability of using tile in the home.

There is a special type of paint for putting a frost on glass. It is translucent.

UPPER LEVEL ADDED — Interior designer Howland had a master bedroom and sitting room built on the second floor. It was made accessible by this circular wrought iron stairway constructed by Victor Iron Works in San Rafael. The house is furnished with many period pieces, including Empire mirror at the left.

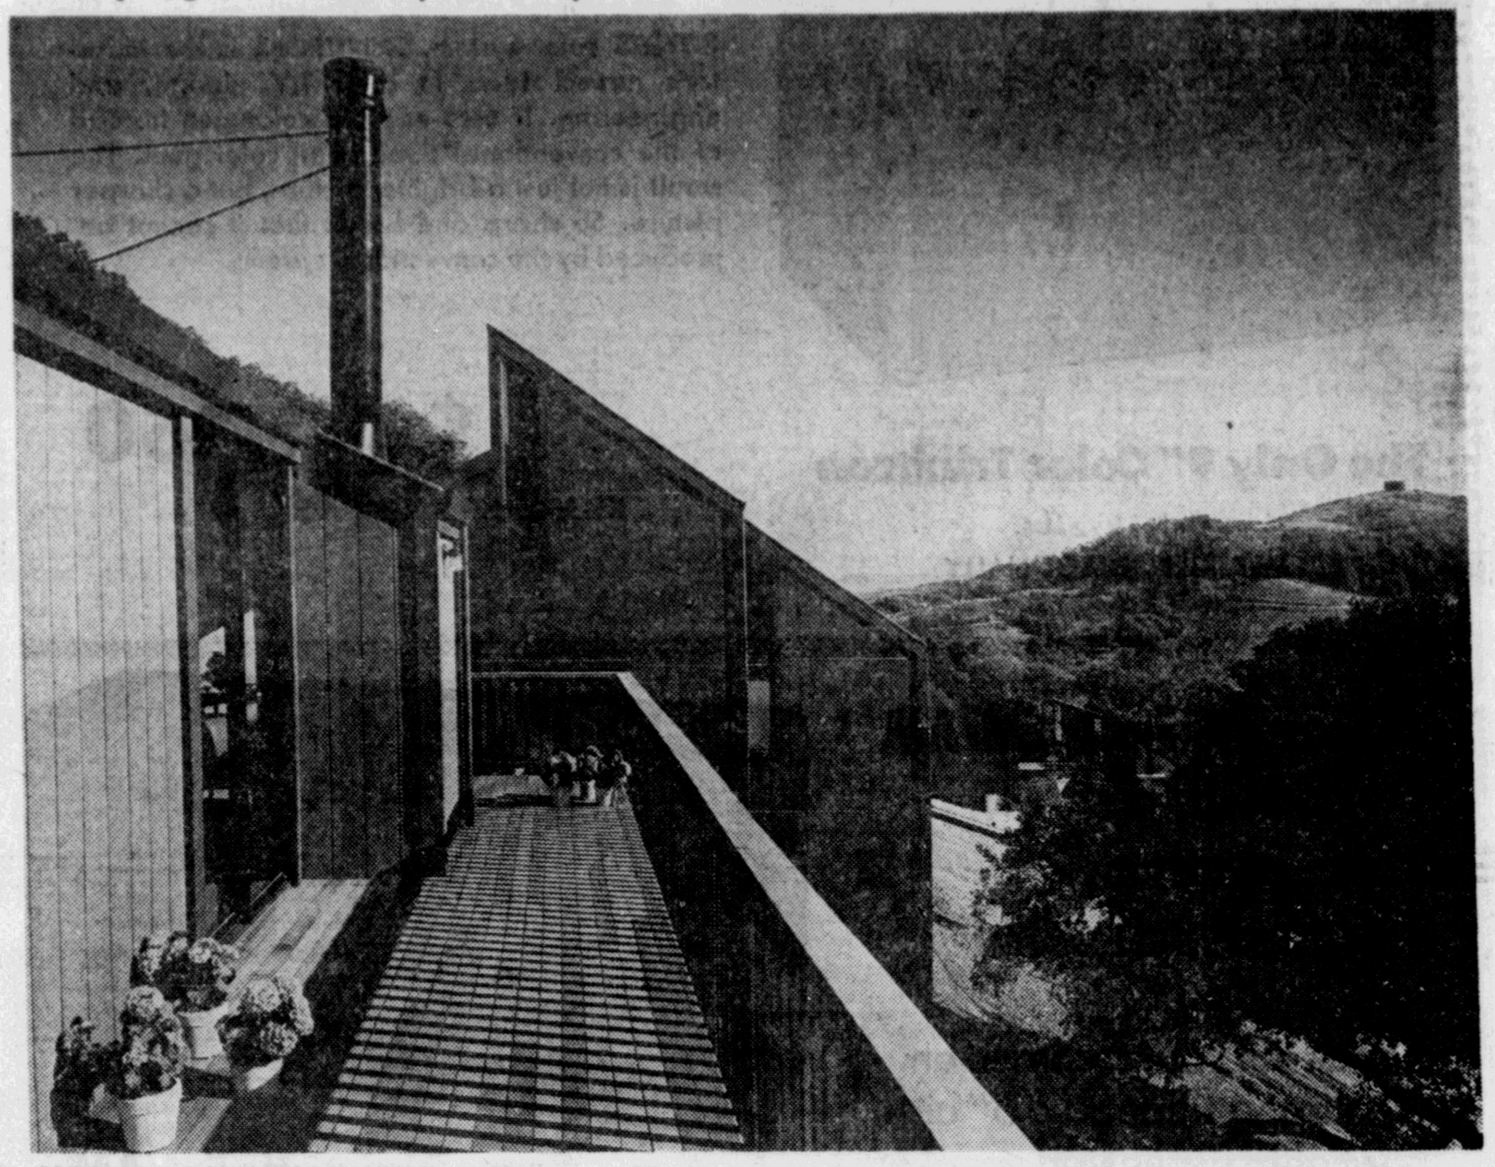
NEW DEVELOPMENT FOR COMMUTERS

Marin View, a 114-acre development of the Allan-Marin Co., located on Tennessee Valley Road, Mill Valley, one-half mile from Highway 101, is spread over partly wooded, hilly land, with sweeping views of the bay and valley. Model homes have been designed by Fisher-Friedman Associates and are open for inspection. It is said to be ideally situated for commuters, with normal driving time of 22 minutes from downtown San Francisco.



HOUSE OF MANY DESIGNS — Houses at Marin View differ considerably in sizes and shapes — from a one-level building to three-story homes, to fit the contours of the sites and blend with the individual settings. Decks are oriented to take advantage of the many views offered.

Decorative Paneling Is Not Too Expensive

There's a wide selection of plastic-faced materials on the market for those who are willing to spend a little more to get decorative faces on their paneling.

Hardboards with plastic coatings, for example, have been increasingly in popularity with do-it-yourselfers. Even the old standby, gypsum wallboard, can be obtained with a vinyl plastic surface.

The special gypsum wallboard panels can be applied in one of two basic methods. The first is with special nails, which go through the panels directly into the studs, furring strips of other surface which will firmly grip the nails. The second is by cementing to solid existing walls, a procedure not recommended for application to wood framing or masonry.

If the panels are to be part of a new wall construction, in which the studs will be 16 inches apart of center, a single 48" panel can be placed across the studding. But if the studs are not perfectly aligned, 1" by 2" furring stips should be nailed horizontally over the framework, with the panels attached to the strips.

Over masonry of broken plaster surfaces, the furring strips are a must, but they should be anchored to the wall using any one of serveraly anchor clips on the market. Concrete stub nails also may be used. In some cases, it is advisable to build new wooden framing a few inches away from the wall at some future time — to repair a pipe leak, for instance — it is wise to make the distance between the masonry and the new wall at least 4' and preferably more. Admittedly, this can't always be done because of the limitations it places on the size of the room. The larger the space behind the wall, the smaller the space in the room itself.

BUILT FOR ALL WEATHER

This house designed by Hal Weiss and built by 20th Century Homes for Toby and Joan Perry sits on a stark, barren lot on the lagoon at Peacock Gap. The front buttresses the winds from San Francisco Bay, while the rear opens toward the leeward side, overlooking the fairway of the Peacock Gap Golf Course.

Relocation Of The Home Laundry A Good Brightner

One of the most looked-forward-to changes in modern homes has been the relocation of the laundry.

Thanks to the ease of installation and attractive styling of flameless electric washers and dryers, the home laundry can be placed where most dirty clothing or linen accumulates — near the bathrooms, bedrooms or kitchens.

Laundry areas near bedrooms are especially popular in modern homes because of the heavy use of clothing and linens in sleeping and dressing locations.

And with many of today's homes being built on two or more levels, smart homemakers are planning a second laundry area at a handy place in the home to save lugging loads of laundry up and down stairs to wash and dry them and return them to the point of use.

It's especially easy to have your laundry area (or areas) exactly where you want it when you use flameless electricity to wash and dry your clothes.

Because electric clothes dryers don't dry clothes with a flame, there is no need for a special flue to carry off the products of combustion. And whereas a flametype dryer requires two connections to operate it — one for the fuel and one for electricity, a flameless electric dryer needs only one.

Yellowstone National Park extends into three states, Wyoming, Montana and Idaho.

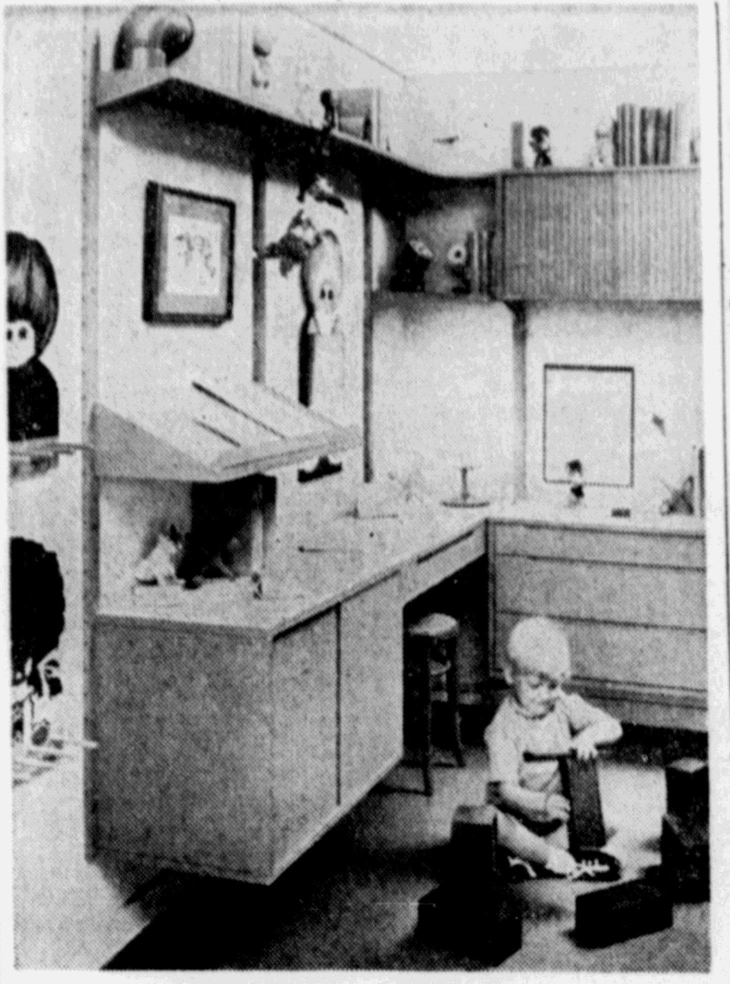
PLAN BABY'S CLOSET

Don't overlook the closet when redoing a room for a new baby. Plan it with the future in mind. Include such features as adjustable shelves and double clothes bars that will allow for growth. By lining the closet with aromatic red cedar you can provide moth-free protection for a growing child's sweaters, suits and other woolen garments later.



FURNITURE THAT STAYS

Wall-hung furniture which makes maximum use of space is so easily adjustable that it takes only minutes to raise or lower shelves, cabinets, tables or desk tops and will serve from toddler to adult age. It is available in modular units and an array of decorator finishes at Interior Systems, Northgate Mall.

Home Bar Great In Living Room

A home bar is a great convenience in the living room or dining room and can probably be built in with a little ingenuity, despite seeming space limitations.

The advantages of a bar in these rooms is that it eliminates traffic back and forth to the kitchen, simplifies bartending chores and supplies a good central place to store beverages.

When possible, of course, running water and a sink will increase the convenience of the bar. Stanproof and waterproof materials like ceramic tile on counters, floors or nearby walls will remove worries about spilling damage.

If there is a convenient closet, or enough space to build one, a shallow pantry-like arrangement with double doors that open out can supply space for shelves, drawers and counter.

A peninsular counter with storage cabinets underneath can also make a very handy bar between a living room and dining area.

Roof Area

The roof area of your home determines the size of gutters and downspouts to be used. One square inch of pipe for every 100 square feet of roof area to be drained is the formula used by most contractors.

Liquid Foam New Method To Insulate

Urethane foam, formed by a "batter" of various chemical substances, is poured into walls and doors of some refrigerator-freezers. Within seconds, the foam fills out the spaces between inner and outer walls and hardens into a light, rigid mass.

Because urethane foam is highly effective as an insulator and takes considerably less room than other insulating materials, refrigerator-freezers can be built with thinner walls that provide more interior space for food storage in the same size box.

Best Times To Remove Paint

When painting a window sash or the putty around the glass, it it difficult to avoid getting a few paint spatters on the pane.

There are two correct times to remove those spatters—when the paint is still fresh or when it is hard. Keep a clean cloth handy to wipe off any paint at once. But if you do not take this step immediately — or if the paint is too cloes to soft putty to risk wiping it off—wait a day or two. It then is easy to scrape off with a single-edged razor blade or one of those handled tools into which a blade is inserted.

When the paint spatter is partly dry, it smears and doesn't come off easily with either a cloth or a razor blade.

NEW HOME AT TERRA LINDA HIGHLANDS

View sites like this are common at Terra Linda Highlands, where Kenney Homes, Inc., has 113 lots. All utilities are underground. Most houses have decks for outdoor living. Four new model homes are planned for an early showing.

New Pitches By Carpet Industry

The carpet industry is wooing the do-it-yourselfer in a big way. The reason is sky-rocketing installation which has added $1.50 a yard or more to the final cost.

On small jobs, such as kitchens or bathrooms, installers often demand a minimum fee in excess of this per yard rate. This makes amateur carpet instalation desirable, but it has been quite a task for an inexperienced worker.

The problem with installing conventional wall-to-wall is the stretching. Wooden lathes studded with sharp tacks that go right through the wood are nailed around the perimeter of the room, with the tack points up. The carpet is then stretched and hooked over these tacks. This holds the carpet firmly in place and prevents ripples or shifting. The stretching is hard work.

Separate underlay is necessary too, and the carpet must be rolled out over the underlay without bunching and wrinkles.

A new variety of carpet with a built-in, high density latex foam rubber backing is available. There is no separate underlay because of the built-in backing. The heavy rubber backing gives the carpet great dimensional stability, which means it won't stretch or pucker. When unrolled, it simply lies flat. And tack strips are not needed at all. Instead, double faced carpet tape is used.

The high density foam was first used on contract carpet for hotels and other commercial uses. It reached the home handyman first on carpet tiles, and now comes on a wide assortment of carpet styles, widths, fibers and constructions.

Kitchen carpets often have the foam backing, and a few high pile carpets with built-in backing suitable for living rooms have been marketed with success. More and more of these styles will be in stores soon.

To install these carpets, they are unrolled and cut to fit around obstructions with scissors or a razor blade knife. They will not unravel, so edges do not need binding. At doorways, a strip of carpet metal is used, and around the edges and at seams, double-faced tape is used. No stretching is required, but a carpet stretcher is useful for maneuvering the carpet into the final position.

Water Control

A chemical preservative that controls water absorption is making modern wood windows operate better and last longer.

The preservative is factory-applied to all stock ponderosa pine windows. Wood sash and frame thus impregnated will not warp, swell or shrink, and are made completely resistant to termites, dry rot and decay.

Asbestos Is Still Widely Used Fiber

Much to-do has been made over the wonders of synthetic fibers, but one of the most versatile and widely used fibers today is still nature's own asbestos. Fireproof asbestos has been known and used by man as far back as Biblical days.

Asbestos is obtained from a fibrous type of rock formed thousands of years ago far below the earth's surface. Exactly how it was formed is still a mystery.

Extensive outcroppings of this rock found in Africa, Canada and Russia are mined and milled to obtain the fibers. These fibers are formed into cloth, rope, tape, sheets, powders and braids.

The outstanding quality of asbestos is its ability to withstand intense heat and yet retain its strength. Asbestos fibers are used to reinforce plastic and other materials when greater resistance to heat and impact are required of them.

Asbestos is also used as insulation in many electric appliances and in electric power supply cords; in mail bags, table pads, auto brake linings, and many other products.

POWDER ROOM EASY TO MODERNIZE

Well chosen accessories create an interesting Roman theme in this powder room. Vertical lines between the plastic-finished hardboard plans give a feeling of spaciousness with a relatively low ceiling. The same material but in a marble pattern was used for the countertop.

Good Fence Makes Sense These Days

A good fence makes good sense, in terms of creating a feeling or privacy, visually defining property lines, and adding a design dimension to the homesite.

Fences help integrate the relationship of house to lot, and contribute much to the landscape planning and the overall architectural scheme.

For the new house, fencing and patio screens or walls immediately take away the awkward "unfinished" look new houses have until landscaping is completed. And if your house looks too similar to those next door, distinctive fencing will make it stand out as individual.

There are many functions that a fence can serve, as definition of lot lines and yard areas, as a background for planting, to shut out sun and wind. For wind and sun, fence design directly affects the temperature you feel. The sun will feel warmer, for example, if the fence screens the wind.

For wind control, a solid fence is only one third as efficient in protecting against high winds as a slat fence. This is because a solid fence creates a wave of air that splashes over the fence, whereas a slat fence diffuses, or filters, the stream of air.

Solid fences erected to provide privacy can deflect the wind better if a slanting baffle is added to the top to force air to flow over the fence in a gentle arc.

Hard Water Costly Item

Any homemaker will tell you that hard water means hard work. But it also costs you money. Here are some of the reasons:

You have to use more soap to do your dishes, laundry or general cleaning. You need more hot water to get rid of loosened dirt. Even then, your dishes are likely to have a film and your clothes and floors an off-color, dull look. Soap, water and the cost of heating the water all drain dollars from the budget.

Hard water leaves a scaly deposit in pipe and water-using equipment and shortens their useful life.

The only way to eliminate hardness in water once and for all, is to remove it with an automatic softener before the water enters the piping system.

In the modern unit, the water flows through a tank where a chemical removes the hardening materials. As the chemical becomes saturated, it's automatically regenerated. The equipment is easy to install and is virtually maintenance-free.

PANELING COMPLEMENTS FURNISHINGS

A wall of warm walnut plywood complements a room furnished with ultra-contemporary pieces and can be installed by most do-it-yourself enthusiasts. It is economical and easy to maintain. A raised platform in this family room, covered with tiles squares, lends additional interest to the arrangement of furniture.

Kitchen Holds Many Utensils

Remember, today's kitchen has to hold from 85 to 110 utensils of all shapes and sizes. Don't skimp on cabinet and counter space!

Ample countertop work space and appropriate cabinet storage should be located near the food preparation, cooking and clean-up centers of the kitchen.

Make sure doors and drawers of cabinets and appliances don't block traffic aisles when they are open.

RESIDENTIAL AND LIFE CARE COMPLEX

The 12-story Tamalpais is a dramatic feature of the Marin landscape near Greenbrae. Residents pay an entry fee based on the size of the unit and a monthly maintenance fee which entitles them to apartment, three meals daily, weekly maid service, hospitalization and most medical and physicians' fees for life.

FULL BEDROOM — Tamalpais units range from studio and alcove apartments to one and two-bedroom residences. Each is equipped with a kitchenette, carpeting, draperies and large closets. Emergency switches enable a resident to summon nurses at any time.

Minimum Costs For Keeping Cool

There are several things that can be done to assure the cooling performance of a room air conditioner at a minimum of cost. Here's a check list:

1. Replace and clean the return air filter regularly. It should be inspected frequently and cleaned when necessary.

2. Select the thermostat setting that is most comfortable for your needs and try to avoid frequent setting changes and on-and-off operation. The result will be stable and constant comfort.

3. Where applicable, use the fresh air and exhaust vents on "open" only when you want to remove heavy smoke and extra stale air. Keep the vents closed at all other times. Otherwise, cool air will be wasted by loss to the outside.

4. By operating the fan only, you can use the air conditioner as a clean air circulator even in mild or cold weather. In this way the unit will filter and recirculate the air.

5. For maximum efficiency, the condenser coil at the rear of the unit outside the house should be cleaned before the start of every season. You can do this yourself with some units. With others, it may be necessary to call a serviceman.

6. Outside air leaks should be prevented at all time. Make sure the window mounting kit is installed and sealed properly. A tightly sealed unit will prevent drafts and operate more efficiently. Also, keep your unit protected during the winter. Some have built-in weather seals and automatically prevent leakage. With others, you may need a special protective covering.

Most air conditioners today have permanently-lubricated motor bearings and do not need maintenance. However, says a major air conditioning manufacturer (Chrysler Airtemp), you can avoid trouble by checking your operator's manual and following the instructions.

It's quicker and easier to achieve a level suspended ceiling when you use chains to adjust metal grids and runners to exact uniform heights.

Instead of wire, which must be bent and crimped, use either single jack chain or register chain.

All the grid runners must hang at a uniform level. Along the walls, a chalk line snapped at the desired level lets you attach the borders of the metal grid molding directly to the wall at the elevation you wish.

However, the main runners of the grid which extend out from the walls must also be leveled. So must the metal cross tees between runners. It is easy to make the precise adjustments necessary if you use chain.

AC or alternating current means that the current flows first one way through the circuit, then the other way. DC or direct current flows only in one direction.

Question Of Remodeling, Home Value

Although many home owners have found that household improvements protect and extend the long-term value of their property, such projects don't always achieve that effect.

Some improvements tend to increase the value of a home more than others. Adding a third bedroom to a two-bedroom house surely enhances the worth of the structure. But adding a sixth bedroom to a five-bedroom house might very well contribute less value to the property than the cost of the addition.

Similarly, improvements made to accommodate unusual taste or unique family circumstances may be of no advantage at all when the time comes to sell. In fact, remodeling projects that reflect highly individualized personal preferences can, in many instances, actually detract from the value of the property.

Contractors who specialize in remodeling point out that converting an untidy, catch-all basement into a family entertainment center is one of the soundest home-improvement investments any family can make.

But investigate before you invest in order to be sure that all of your basement space works for you. Mistakes can be costly, and one of the most expensive errors a homeowner can make is to maintain a massive, outdated heating unit in his basement. The space that an old-fashioned, bulky furnace or boiler squanders can be measured in dollars and cents, since space is money.

Some modern boilers and furnaces are exceptionally compact. Many gas units are no bigger than a two or three-drawer filing cabinet. And they needn't be confined to the basement, but can be installed in a closet, kitchen, alcove, attic or laundry room — almost any inconspicuous place. Thus, the entire basement can be devoted to recreation or entertainment facilities for whole-family use.

It is important to decide exactly what you are trying to accomplish. Make a list of the things you want done, and be sure that your ideas are workable. Check building codes and other restrictions, and find out if your home's construction will permit the changes.

Next, draw a simple floor plan on graph paper, sketch your furniture in scale and clip out those pieces. As you make your layout keep in mind open traffic areas, a center of interest, conversation groupings, storage space and adequate lighting.

If you are having the job done professionally, be sure that your contractor is qualified by inquiring about other jobs he has done.

Entrance Foyer—Key To Mood

The first impression of the inside of your home comes from the atmosphere of your entry or foyer. Is is warm and welcoming, graciously elegant, or coolly aloof? The foyer announces the decor of the home. Is it French Provincial, modern or Mediterranean?

Since most entries are small in size, their planning is difficult, particularly because their emotional impact is great. A few carefully selected pieces of furniture, some prized posession a handsome painting or piece of sculpture, can set the mood for your entire home.

The home owner should plan his choice of lighting with great care, since a handsome chandelier or pendant demands no floor space, yet casts a hospitable glow over the entire entry, as well as illuminating the faces of visitors and guests. Lighting fixtures are now both massive and miniscule, scaled to varying rooms and needs. And the choice of styles ranges from shimmering crystal to traditional brass to wrought iron.

A tiny foyer with no floor area for furniture can be dramatic, if walls are white, carpeting or floor tile is white, and if one adds ceiling beams of polished wood, and displays an antique carved figure on a shelf directly opposite the door. You can light the entry with a wrought-iron lantern to complement the setting of the adjoining room — a book-lined Mediterranean study.

As you can plan the design of your entry, there are certain questions that must be considered:

1. What is the total "environmental theme" of your home?

2. What kind of lighting would most suit the setting?

3. What is the decor of the adjacent rooms visible from the foyer?

4. Is there floor space for furniture? If so, how much?

5. What kind of flooring — rugs, carpeting, or tile — would be most practical and appropriate?

6. How can your foyer be personal? Do you have a prized collection of shells, an exotic piece of sculpture, or handsome prints or paintings which could be artfully framed and arranged?

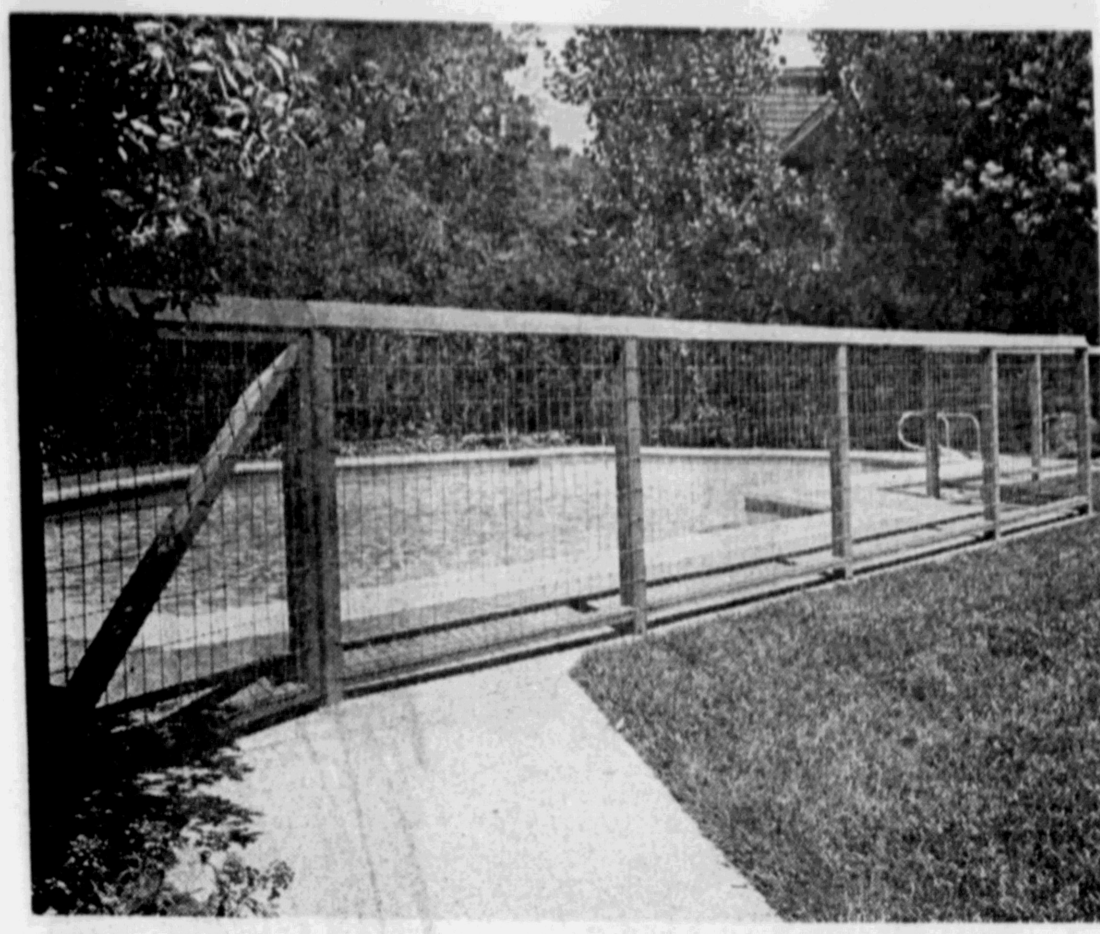
If your home is Louis XIV-in-look," accent this in the entry by covering the walls with a gay provincial fabric, wide wood paneling, or simulated brick tile or wallpaper. In this setting, color is important — either the cheerful sun colors, warm earth tones, or cooling shades of green or blue. A curving burnished brass or copper chandelier will add the glow of candlelight to your rustic setting, which might be furnished with an Early American chest or Hitchcock bench.

Paper the entry in a Versailles print wallpaper or mural, and set a delicately shaped white console opposite the door. Above the console, place a gilt-framed mirror, reflecting both your guests, and the glitter of a small crystal chandelier.

Chandeliers and wall fixtures used to be considered primarily for elaborate homes, and used chiefly in dining rooms as a decorative accent. This is no longer the case. Lighting has finally come into its own as an architectural tool. Its ability to create atmosphere, emphaxize colors and fabrics, and add drama to any setting has been long overlooked by the average home owner and apartment dweller. Now, as consumers become more sophisticated and better-educated, they appreciate the beauty of light as a catalyst, and as a decorative object in itself.

in apartments as well as modest residences, and hung in rooms which were never fixture-lit before, such as entries, bedrooms, baths, and breakfast nooks. Part of this growth is due to the widely varied selection of fixtures now available on the consumer market in an ever-increasing variety of styles and sizes, appropriate to any decor.

Lighting should be varied throughout the home: brightly welcoming in the entry, softer in a study but with pools of "task lighting" for reading, and adjustable in a living or dining room — where the light should vary, through dimmers, from gay intensity to quiet intimacy, for relaxing conversation. We respond to light more than we realize, and can feel happy or depressed because of it. This is why your entry lighting is so important. It is the initial greeting of your home to your guests, and should be a cheerful one, expressing welcome.



ALL IMPORTANT FENCING

Security for small children at this pool of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tully, designed by landscape architect Henry Cole, is provided by a simple redwood and wire mesh fence. Posts are from three-by-three-inch stock, with the cap shaped from a three-by-six.

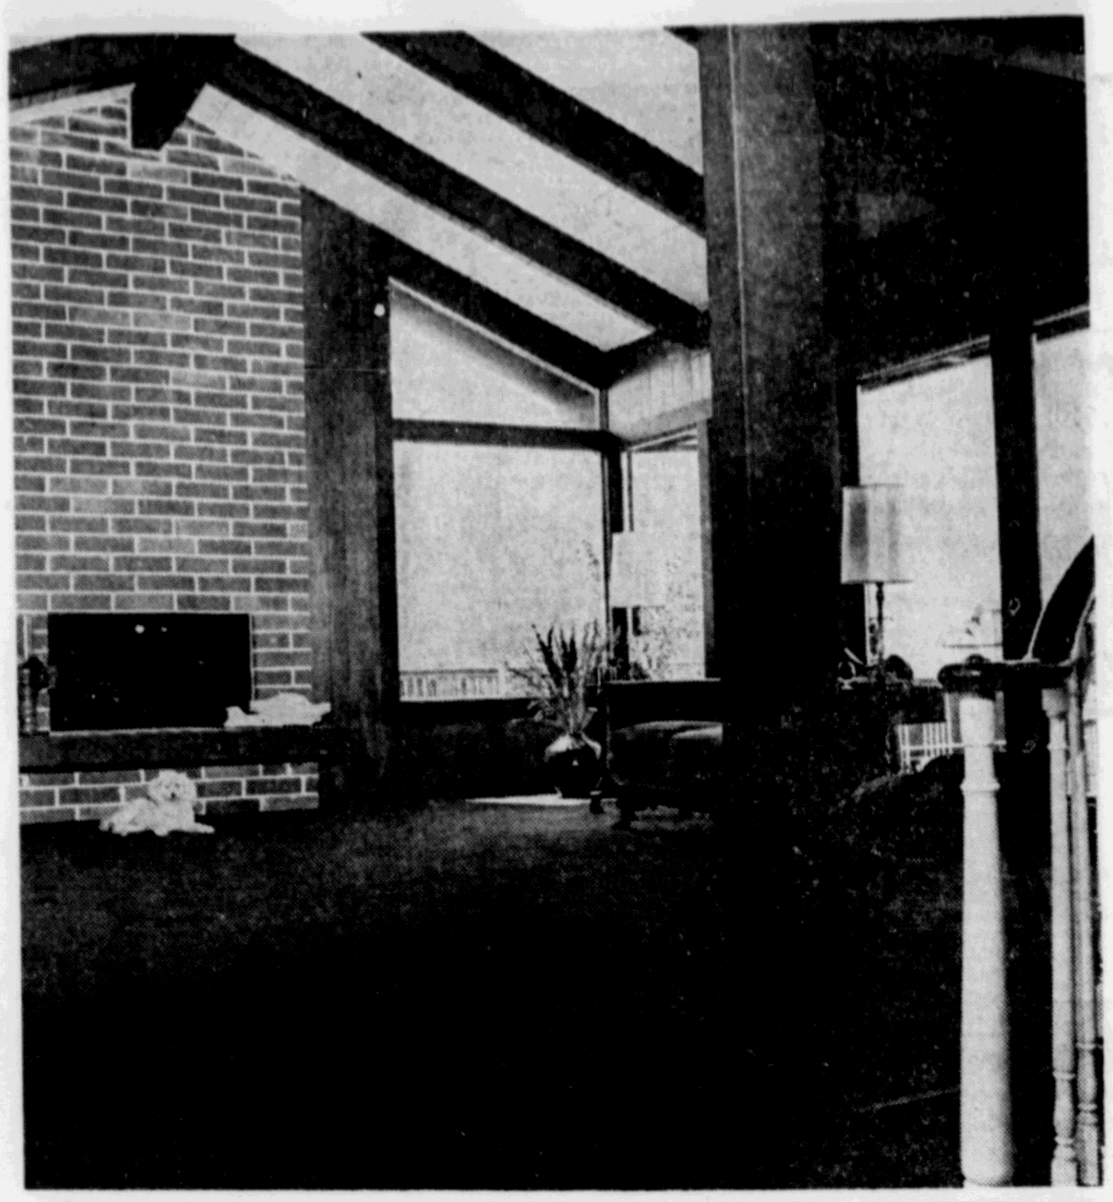
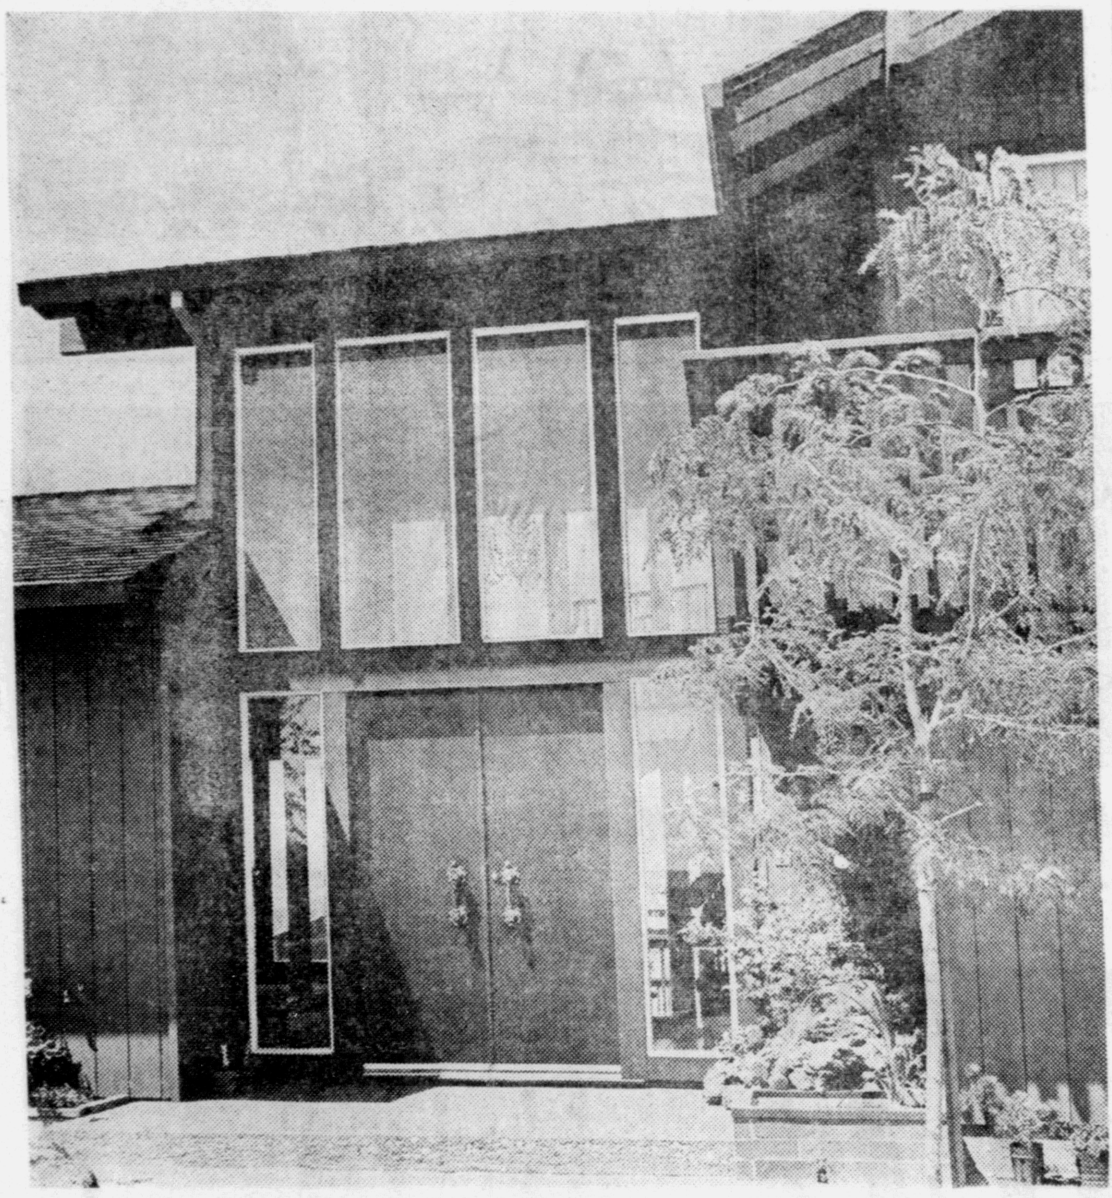
FRAMES MOUNT TAMALPAIS — Like many other Greenbrae Marina homes, the Maltzahn house is located on the lagoon. But visible through the railing may be seen its own swimming pool. Tam as seen from this outdoor living area and dining room is Marin's favorite landscape subject.



INDOOR LIVING AREA — This fireplace in the living room of the Maltzahn home is one of three in the house. Others are located in the family room and master bedroom. Stairway at right leads to three bedrooms on the second floor.



HIGH ENTRANCE FOYER

More conspicuous from the outside than from the inside is the 22-foot entrance foyer in this home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Maltzahn. Designed by Leonard Fisher and built by Edward W. Burgar, Inc., it occupies one of 260 homesites at Greenbrae Marina. It has eight rooms and contains 3,200 square feet. (Independent-Journal photos)

Even Lightly Talented Can Make Repairs

For the uninitiated, a "handyman's special" is a house with sound structure, plumbing and heating systems, but with floors, ceilings or walls in such bad shape as to cut the asking price sharply. The substantial money saved on labor can be used for other improvements.

The homeowner's demand for easily installed ceiling materials, wall paneling and floor coverings and, therefore, labor-saving economy, is keeping pace with the inflationary trend.

Just about anyone can install a modern acoustical ceiling or put up handsome wall paneling with adhesive, small nails or molding; and now it's even possible to install quality sheet vinyl flooring on a do-it-yourself basis.

In a sturdy but rundown old house, a new kitchen floor is usually inevitable and probably the need is urgent because it's where the homemaker does most of her daily work. A good vinyl floor in the part of the basement away from the heating plant adds instant living space — and cash resale value.

The new "floor-it-yourself" development is a 12-foot-wide cushioned vinyl sheet material that can be "loose-laid" with no adhesive, wall to wall, using quarter-round molding or cove base around the perimeter. The flooring is usually flexible and trims easily with a linoleum knife or heavy shears. It can be put down over old floor covering or any other surface, including concrete in a basement, for which some types of traditional floorings are unsuitable.

Can You Name 20 Brick Uses?

If you can come up with at least 20 home uses of brick before reading the list below, your batting average is excellent.

Brick is used for exterior walls; exposed interior walls; fireplaces; chimneys, both inside and outside; kitchen oven walls; kitchen barbecues; floors; window seats; interior courts; room dividers; planter boxes; screen walls for enclosure or privacy.

It is also used for solar screens; steps; walks, terraces and patios; ponds; swimming pools and decks; outdoor fireplaces; tree wells; bird baths; garden walls; lawn edging and garden borders; gate posts; lamp posts; retaining walls; gazebos; trash and garbage enclosures; bike racks; play structures.

The Garage Is Often Neglected

Many homeowners provide for adequate roof drainage and rain carrying equipment on their houses, but neglect to give this much needed protection to their garage. Yet the garage is one place where flowers and srhubs are usually planted and which should be protected from the force of water off the roof.

Water that falls eight feet or so has a sharp cutting action on the soil and on plantings. The answer of course is to provide properly installed gutters and downspouts to carry water away from the immediate vicinity of the building. This prevents costly rotting of the lower boards on the garage, peeling of paint from excess moisture and weakening of the garage foundation from undercuting by the action of the water.

Factory painted gutters and downspouts are now available that also reduce maintenance and improve the appearance of his garage.

Apartments Going To Suburbia

There is a new skyline in suburbia. Apartment houses are leaving the cities and going to the country.

The exodus from the cities has brought a startling change to the suburbs. No part of the country has felt a greater impact in population. To occommodate all of the new suburbanites, builders are putting up large apartment house complexes.

The tenants of these apartment houses are often either very young or at the retirement age. The young people are the so-called "swinging singles" and newly married couples. Both age groups have some things in common, primarily free time.

Suburban apartments offer many convenience features which are almost impossible to find in city apartments — things such as ample parking facilities and outdoor swimming pools. On the other hand, the suburban apartment will retain the comfort features which are offered in most metropolitan luxury apartments.

Planning a first floor powder or mud room? If so, it will pay you to buy top-quality fixtures that can take extra hard use and require minimum maintenance.

Points On How To Trim Cooling Costs

The maximum in summer comfort with the minimum in operating costs will be attained in an air-conditioned home that has well insulated walls and roof and is shielded from the sun by trees and shrubs.

The key to efficiency and economy in air conditioning is keeping sun heat out of your home. Here are some of the things you can do to reduce the cost of keeping cool:

1. Make sure that the walls and roof of your home contain adequate insulation.
2. Locate exposed glass areas — windows or doors — on the south side of your home.
3. Plant deciduous trees on the east and west sides of your home.
4. Plant grass and shrubs around your house, particularly on the east and west.
5. If you can not shield the east and west sides of your home with trees, install awnings outside windows and doors, or locate your carport, garage, or porch here.
6. Paint the walls and roof of your home in light colors which will deflect sun rays.

FAT CARS DIE YOUNG!

But Volvos live to ripe old ages. Because Volvos are unfettered by fat.

That's why a Volvo's trunk holds more than a Lincoln's. And why a Volvo has more leg room in front than a Cadillac and more in the rear than a Buick.

So take a look at our Volvos. Driving a long-lasting, lean car can help put the fat where it belongs.

In your bank account.

If you don't like your job...

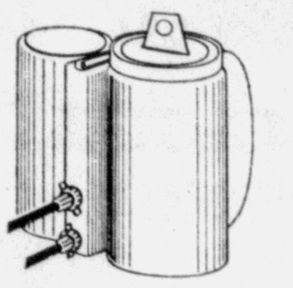
Nobody likes to work at a dull, boring job, and that's exactly what the pool chlorination job is. Not too hard to do, but always there — waiting, demanding. You can't even go on a vacation without imposing on an understanding neighbor. If that's your situation, you don't own a pool. Your pool owns you.

There is one simple way out of this dilemma. Just quit! Let E-Z CLOR take care of the chemical chores automatically, 24 hours a day — even while you're on vacation. You'll never measure, pour, store or touch those supplies of chemicals again. All you do is insert the E-Z CLOR PAC in the automatic feeder and forget about chlorination for a month or more. Even at peak season, about one minute every month or six weeks and your job is done.



E-Z CLOR PACS are sealed canisters of compact, highly concentrated dry chlorine formulated especially for E-Z CLOR by Monsanto. Your pool gets a continuous feeding of this formula, assuring you the proper level of available chlorine, residual chlorine and pH balance. The combination of low-cost, concentrated chlorine and continuous feeding saves you money. In fact, E-Z CLOR pays for itself in no no time at all.

Even the installation is easy as pie. We'll install it, or you can do it yourself in less than 20 minutes. You don't have to change plumbing or electrical connections, and since E-Z CLOR has no moving parts, there is no maintenance. If you don't like that pool chlorination job, quit. E-Z CLOR works a lot cheaper than you do.

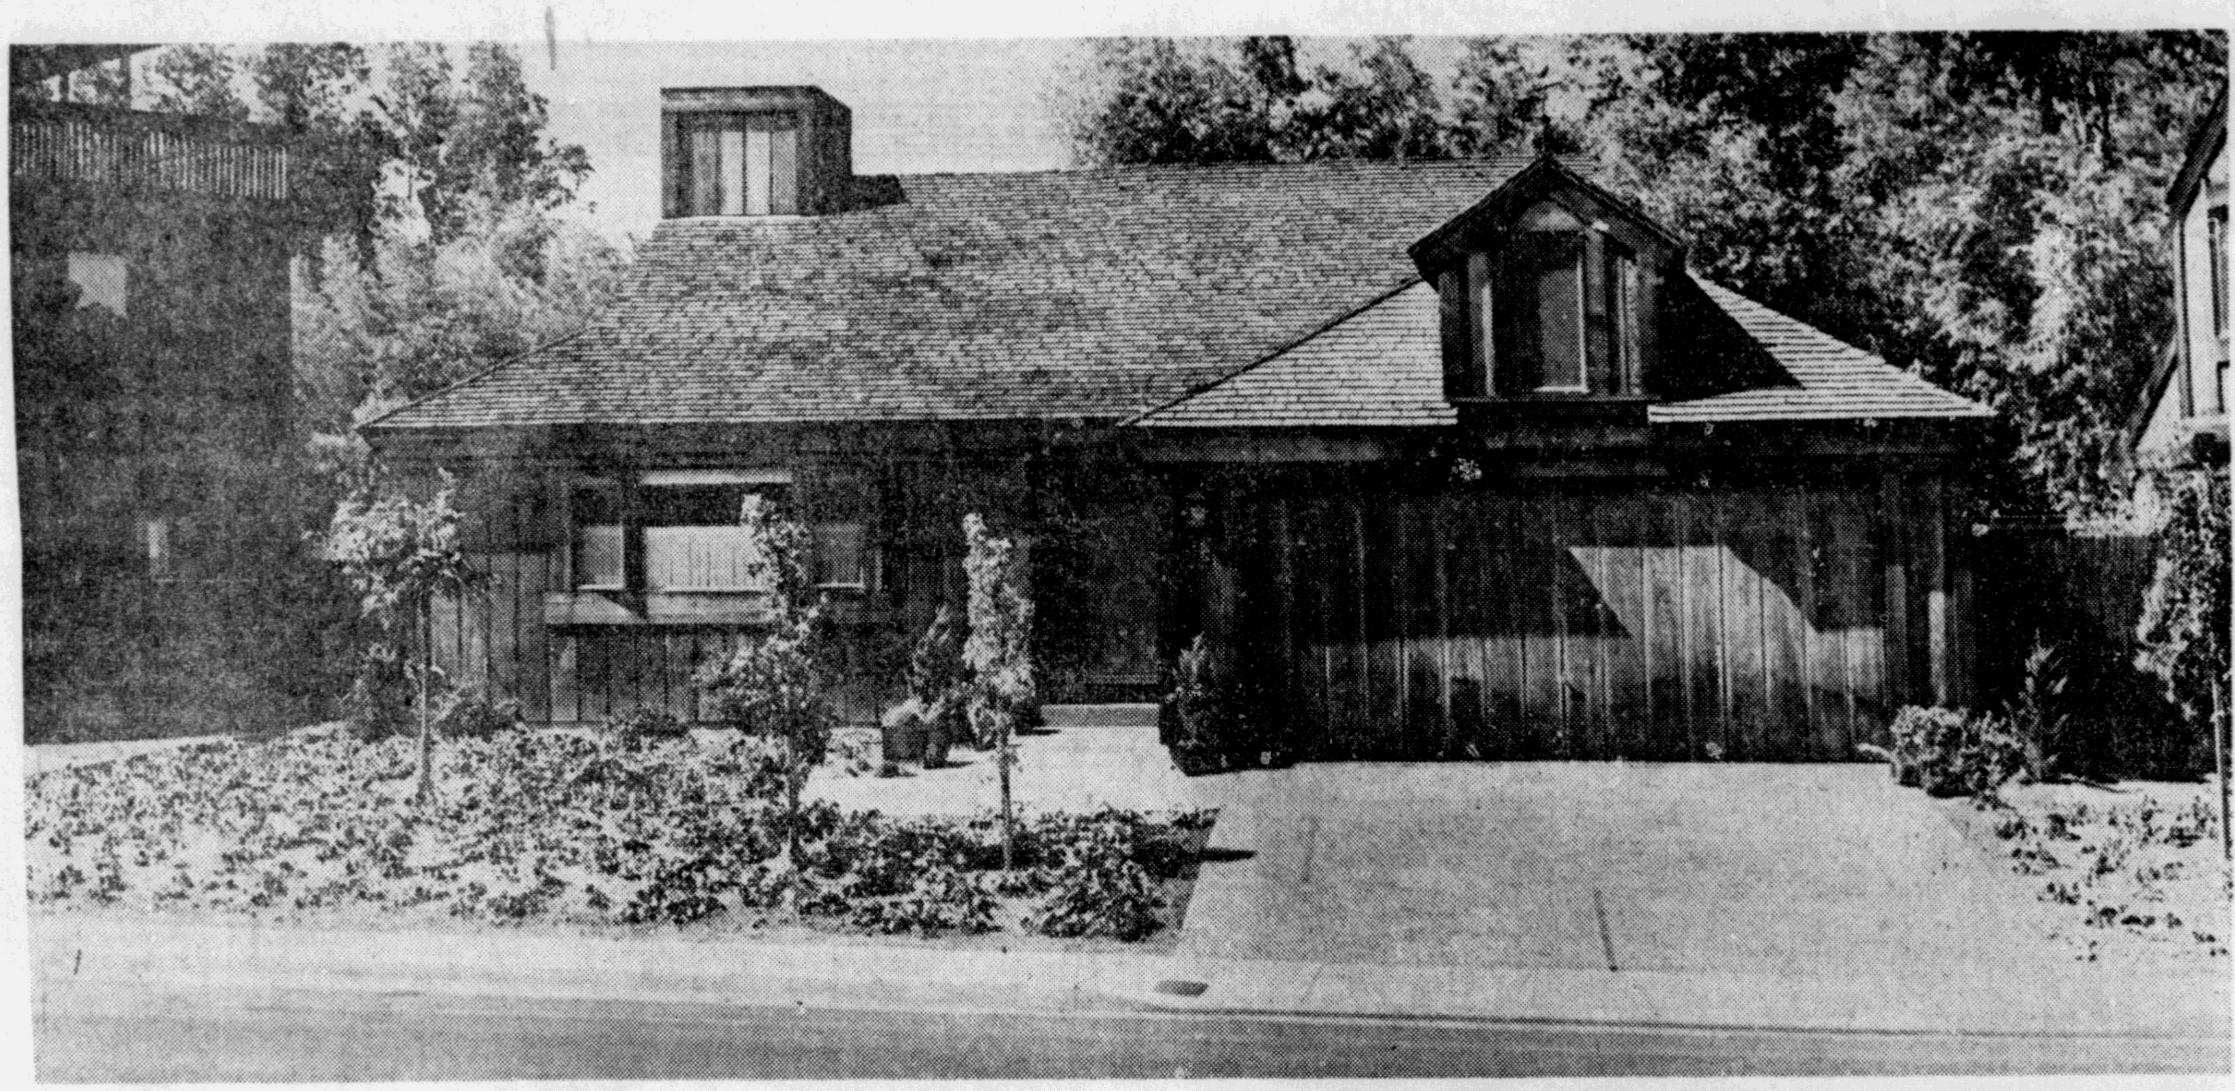
SHELTERED BY MOUNT TAM

The "hidden" Larkspur community that has been hard to find for more than two years has only a few sites remaining in its first two units. A third and final unit is in the planning stages. The Meadowood site was originally selected by the founder of the Niven Nursery as a perfect spot for raising orchids because of its sheltered location. Only one block from downtown Larkspur, it has previously had no direct access. Now a bridge has been constructed and connects Meadowood Drive with Ward Street. Brockmann Real Estate is the exclusive agent for the subdivision.



FEATURE NATURAL WOODS — Meadowood homes were designed by Reid and Drosihn and were built by Fred De Cook. Most have four bedrooms, spearate family rooms and full dining rooms and multiple baths, using natural cedar, redwood and birch.

Blenders Ideal For Gatherings

A complete party for teenagers can be planned around the electric blender for ice-cream drinks and non-stick electric giddle for hamburgers or grilled sandwiches. Have an electric slicing knife handy too for cutting bread thick or thin, as desired. The blender also stars in the sandwich spread and cocktail-dip department for more sophisticated parties.

Another unusual idea is based on the smokeless electric broiler of hibachi. Offer a choice of kabob ingredients: bite-size pieces of meat and seafood, plus cherry tomatoes, mushrooms, onions, olives, etc. Let guests assemble their own.

Status Of Single Family Dwellings

A wide difference of opinion regarding the future of the single-family house exists today.

Several influencing factors make it increasingly difficult to produce such housing within the budget limit of the middle income family.

The more affluent Americans will continue to be housed in large homes on large plots, or in luxury apartments. Poor Americans will be housed in subsidized housing. But what about the vast group called middle class?

At the core of the problem is the increasing cost of land. Inflation cannot be singled out as the prime cause, but rather a diminishing supply of desirable land areas.

The question posed by those who predict fewer one-family houses in the future is "Can we justify using so much of this scarce land, at such a high price, for single-family living unitc?"

To suggest that we should all be living in more densely populated structures can be compared with the suggestion that mass transportation completely replace the often single-occupied automobile.

For the foreseeable future, it appears that a very large number of home owners will prefer the advantages of the one-family house, despite its high initial cost and its upkeep responsibilities.

Although the establishment continues to use its homes as symbols of success and status, it also looks to the roof over its head as a link in a chain of security insurance for the future. If the next generation buys this concept, the single-family house will continue in its present form, at least in over-all structure.

There are indications, however, that younger people are unimpressed with the wealth of their parents and that the house of 1980 may therefore be designed with greater emphasis on livability and less on ostentation.

With a high intelligent quotient and a background of world travel, they will substitute items reflecting their culture for sales-oriented gadgets. They will want areas in their houses to display painting and sculpture, books and those items related to creative individual hobbies.

For the immediate 70s however, we will doubtless continue with the kinds and sizes of rooms as we now have them. But if present trends continue, there will be added at least two other rooms — a private den and a large sewing room. The den, a multi-purpose space, will be furnished with TV, stereo and taping equipment, contour chair, writing desk and book shelving. It will be located away from the family room as a hideaway for both husband and wife.

Air Can Be 'Processed'

Air is a commodity (and an increasingly precious one) that can be "processed" like any other commodity to increase its utility.

Our ability to "condition" air has increased rapidly in recent years. Not too long ago, heating was the only common way of processing air. Then along came the cooling of air in the summer, together with the control of humidity in hot weather. After that, we learned to add humidity to the air in the winter through use of humidifiers, and to cleanse the air inside the home with electronic filters.

Today, equipment to accomplish all these processes comes from a single industry — the air-conditioning industry — which makes it possible for nearly all families to enjoy the comfort and health advantages of conditioned air 12 months of the year.

Marin Is Ideal For Leisure-Time Loggers

With the cost of firewood rising, suburban homeowners who enjoy loafing around a living room fireplace are turning themselves into leisure-time loggers and going out to gather their own fuel.

Filling a car trunk with enough logs to make the foray into farm woodlot or distant construction site worthwhile, however, can be strenuous work if you're relying on a hand saw or Scout ax to do the cutting. To reduce the energy drain in wood hunting, many homeowners have turned to the chain saw.

Cutting firewood and clearing ground actually are the two main reasons property owners buy chain saws.

Though the power saw reduces the chore of cutting through a tree trunk to a few seconds' work, the Saturday morning lumberjack needs to learn a few things about firewood before he can cut himself off from his commercial wood supplier.

Many of these get-it-yourselfers cut whatever wood they can put their saws on, but the wiser fireplace keepers are more choosey, selecting some hardwood, such as oak, for its slow-buring qualities and blending it with quantities of birch, ash or maple, which produce a bright, lively flame but burn quickly.

He also concentrates on limbs about six inches thick, cuts them in lengths of about 18 inches and then splits them with an ax to help them dry out faster for better burning. A round, unsplit log can retain its moisture for years.

Inverness Relying On Truck Water

Approximately 100 people near Inverness have been relying since Tuesday on trucked-in water since a water storage tank was discovered to be empty, according to Gen. Mayor Gerald D. Griffith, of Citizens Utilities Company of California, which serves the area.

Two fire tankers, a thousand-gallon unit from Point Reyes Station and a 1,500 gallon unit from Woodacre, were pressed into service Tuesday to bring water to the storage tank which supplies residents of the Inverness Park and Silver Hills areas.

Residents of the affected area don't seem to mind the inconvenience. "It's very nice water, actually," said Sally Wallace. "It's the best we've had."

Marin County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom was not available for comment and other members of the department did not know when the situation would be fixed.

UAW Rejects Second Proposal From GM

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. today made a second contract proposal to the United Auto Workers, offering to boost wages by 9.1 per cent in the first year. The union rejected the proposal and said unless it was improved, "there will be a strike" at midnight Monday.

Drydocks Facing Demolition Order

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court today ordered demolition or removal of the four wooden drydocks bogged down in Richardson Bay.

The next step in the long campaign by county officials to get rid of the structures will be for the public works department to draft specifications so the job can be put out to bid, according to Deputy County Counsel Joseph A. Forest.

The judge ordered that the sheriff, who has been appointed receiver for the docks, authorize the drafting of specifications. Lt. Leland L. Brown, a civil division chief acting for Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, has been handling the matter.

Forest said that Judge Gardiner did not make a decision as to who will receive any proceeds from the sale of materials salvaged from the docks but ordered the sheriff to take custody of any such receipts.

Forest said he thought that beams from the docks would be saleable and described them as similar to large ones used in the Strawberry Shopping Center.

No estimate of the cost of removing the drydocks has been made, Forest said.

The docks have been the subject of court action since the late Delmar D. Wise of Diesel Engineering and Maintenance Co. brought them to Sausalito four years ago.

The present owner, J. Christopher Roberts of Mill Valley, had earlier announced plans to move them closer to Sausalito and refit them into a lotus-shaped cultural center. The Marin Board of Supervisors, however, passed an emergency ordinance in July forbidding moving drydocks without a permit.

Clean Air Surveyors Blast Utility Growth

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Bay Area never again will have clean air if the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. is allowed to continue to grow so rapidly, a Stanford University study of air pollution concluded yesterday. (Another pollution control story, page 34.)

"There are definite limits to the amount of growth the Bay Area can sustain and still remain worth living in; PG&E seems largely unconscious of such limits," the report declared.

The 380-page report was compiled by 70 graduate and undergraduate students in a nine-month study of air pollution.

The students criticized the mammoth utility for encouraging rapid development of the region, development that inevitably creates new sources of air pollution in addition to new power plants.

The utility was commended for doing "a great deal to reduce its direct contributions to air pollution," but the students' report also said that "its policy of unbridled growth threatens to increase the amount of pollution from other sources."

The utility's sales doubled over the past 10 years, the report noted, adding that "PG&E rhetoric places the blame for the skyrocketing energy demand on the consumer; they depict themselves as simply serving people's needs.

"Actually, the company is not so innocent. They spend enormous amounts of money on advertising — strange activity for a company with no competitors. The constant theme is 'consume more energy.' "

"Buy a dryer, or a dishwasher, PG&E customers are urged, along with their monthly bills. At Christmas time, PG&E even raffled off electric blankets," the students noted.

They also faulted the utility's encouragement of heavy industry to move into the Bay Area through advertisements in eastern newspapers.

The utility is spending more than $1 million a day on new construction, the report said.

Farmer Ahead

ALTANTA (UPI) — Peanut farmer Jimmy Carter pulled off one of the great upsets in Georgia political history, but missed winning the Democratic gubernatorial nomination without a runoff, latest vote returns showed today.

21 To Run For Posts In Marin

Five candidates will run for three posts on the Marin County Hospital District board of directors in the November election, and seven will seek one seat on the Fairfax School District board of trustees.

There will be no election for the Tamalpais High School District board and for the Terra Linda Parks and Recreation board because not enough candidates filed.

Marin Hospital District, three vacancies — George H. Folsom, incumbent; Marion C. Ibach, incumbent; Thomas K. Procter, incumbent; W. R. McCall, airline captain; Robert W. Schrier, physician.

Fairfax School District, one vacancy — Marilyn J. Birks, housewife; Stanley W. Little, utility rate engineer; Harry Murphy, advertising executive; David R. Seyler, policeman; Paris B. Simmons, teacher; Thomas A. Truchan, teacher and textbook writer; and Joann Ruth Walla, cytotechnologist.

Terra Linda Recreation and Park District, two vacancies — Robert N. Bennett. (no election.)

Hurricane Ella To Hit Coasts

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) —Small but swift Hurricane Ella swirled 90-mile-an-hour winds, torrential rain and high tides today toward the coasts of Texas and Mexico. Thousands fled.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said the summer's fifth hurricane would hit the shoreline late today south of Brownsville.

Ella picked up strength but slowed its unusually speedy course across the Gulf of Mexico during the morning.

Plane Guards Ordered; New Hostage Tension

Dynamite Back On Craft

U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Arab guerrillas today released 60 women and children held hostage in Amman but made no move to carry out an earlier promise to transfer "immediately" into the Jordanian capital the 255 other hostages still aboard three hijacked airliners parked on a desert air strip.

An International Red Cross spokesman in Geneva said Arab guerrillas guarding the planes at the air strip northeast of Amman had replaced dynamite aboard the three planes today and were still holding the passengers and crew members aboard the aircraft at nightfall.

"PUSH OF BUTTON"

"The planes can now be blown up at the push of a button," said the Red Cross spokesman, Alain Modoux. "The maintenance of the status quo (at the strip) is equivalent to mental and physical torture, and this must be brought to the attention of all."

Modoux said the guerrillas at Dawson's Field also had ordered a Red Cross medical team of three physicians and five nurses to leave the air strip and stopped trucks carrying medical and sanitary supplies before they reached the strip. The supplies were airlifted by the Red Cross to Amman Thursday.

Later in Washington, the State Department said it had received word from the International Red Cross that Palestinian guerrillas had lifted a 72-hour deadline for agreement on release of the hostages they hold from three hijacked airliners.

A department spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, said canceling of the deadline of 10 p.m. EDT Saturday was "one item of encouraging news" received this morning. He said that it meant "diplomatic efforts will continue for release of all the people in the aircraft."

LEAVE HOTEL

In Amman, the freed hostages left the Inter-Continental hotel in a calvacade of taxis and private cars. A spokesman for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), whose members hijacked the TWA, Swissair and British Overseas Airways Corp. (BOAC) planes, said the freed group was made up of 34 Americans, 17 Indians, 3 Italians, 2 Turks, 2 Greeks and 2 Yugoslavs.

The group was scheduled to fly to Nicosia, capital of the Mediterranean island of Cyprus, on a chartered Jordanian Airlines plane later today.

"I feel fine except I hope we don't get another hijack," said one of the freed hostages, Yvonne Addassi, 8, of Hayward, Calif.

One unidentified mother received her passport and permission to leave from the guerrillas but did not go with the other released hostages because the Palestinians did not return the passport of her 5-year-old daughter.

Earlier today, the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) announced that the passengers and crew members aboard the three planes parked at the air strip would be brought immediately to Amman while negotiations for their release continued. At first the PFLP appeared to go along with the

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israel specifically accused Egypt for the first time today of moving Soviet SAM3 missile batteries closer to the Suez Canal cease-fire zone. It was Israel's 13th protest lodged since the military standstill went into effect Aug. 7.

Previous Israeli accusations have involved SAM2s. The SAM3 are designed to attack low flying aircraft and have been manned by Russians. SAM2s are aimed at high flying jets and Israeli military leaders believe they are targeted by Egyptians aided by Russian advisers.

In Amman, joint teams of Jordanian troops and Palestinian guerrillas patrolled the streets urging residents back to their shops and businesses as a shaky truce brought a halt to 11 days of bitter fighting in the Jordanian capital.

A guerrilla spokesman said 50 persons were killed in fighting Wednesday, but the Middle East News Agency in Cairo said 140 persons were killed and "hundreds" of others were wounded in the clashes which brought Jordan to the brink of civil war. About 350 others were reported killed or wounded in the first nine days of the fighting.

Some shops were open in Amman following a return-to-work appeal by the government. UPI correspondent Ray Wilkinson reported after a walking tour of the city that "despite outward calm you could still see fear on the faces of the people."

Israeli officials viewed the latest alleged cease-fire violation as especially serious since the SAM3s designed to attack low flying aircraft have been manned by Russions.

"SAM3 missile batteries have been advanced to the area extending from the canal up to 31 miles west of it," the Israeli military spokesman said. "Construction and other preparational work for surface-to-air missiles along the area extending west of the canal and within

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon accused the Democratic-controlled Congress today of tinkering with old programs while failing to act on recommendations of his where "there is an unmistakable national judgment that something needs to be done."

The President's latest criticism of congressional inaction on his programs was coupled with a call for both the Republican administration and the Democratic legislative leadership to forego partisanship in tackling "issues of national importance."

He sent an 11,000-word message to the House and Senate running over in detail the recommendations from making the military draft more equitable to reforming welfare laws.

Nixon's message listed 16 broad categories and more than two score specific measures Congress has failed to act on, including: Draft reform, welfare reform, proposals to share federal revenues with the states, manpower reform, social security reform, electoral reform, foreign trade, anticrime measures, a multibillion dollar educating package, consumer protection measures and a family assistance program.

He renewed his commitment to switching ultimately to an all-volunteer army—"the only long-range solution" to inherent unfairness of the draft.

His so-called family assistance plan to overhaul the present patchwork of welfare plans, he said, "is the keystone of income strategy for the elimination of poverty in the United States."

Nixon also cited among major proposals still pending in Congress his anticrime package to meet what he said was the need to restore "the individual American's freedom from violence in his home and on the streets."

And he also reaffirmed his support for a proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the electoral college in favor of direct election of the President.

Airliner Security For U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon today ordered armed guards placed on many U.S. commercial airliners, starting tomorrow in both overseas and domestic flights, to combat the menace of air piracy.

In a strongly worded statement, Nixon announced a series of moves to cope with further hijackings and airline sabotage —including greatly increased use of sophisticated equipment for surveillance of passengers, baggage and airports.

The President said he had instructed Secretary of State William P. Rogers to ask the Council of International Civil Aviation Organization to convene an emergency meeting for joint action to suspend airline service with countries that refuse to extradite or punish hijackers involved in what was described as international blackmail.

SUPPORT ORDERS

Peter Flanigan, a Presidential assistant, said that the Airilne Pilots Association and all of the U.S. airlines unanimously concurred in the anti-hijack steps ordered by Nixon in the wake of four hijackings in five days by the Palestian guerrillas.

The decision to use armed guards on many flights of American airliners — the White House did not specify what routes would be involved either in international or domestic flights—was announced after a White House meeting involving top administration and congressional leaders.

OTHER MEASURES

Nixon also directed the Transportation Department to extend the use of electronic surveillance to all domestic airports and—wherever possible —in other countries.

A large number of guards is already available and are ready to begin their duties immediately, officials said. They will be drawn from the Secret Service and will be supplemented by specially trained members of the armed forces who will serve until an adequate number of civilian guards have been trained.

Flanigan said the cost will be met from a small increase in the $3 head tax for international passengers and a "very slight increase" in the 8 per cent excise tax on all airline tickets.

While participants in the White House meeting mentioned both domestic and overseas flights would be guarded, administration sources said the domestic flights involved would be only those most vulnerable to hijacking.

Most of the U. S. hijackings have involved airliners on routes to or from the Southeast.

It has been estimated that about 4,000 personnel would be needed to guard overseas

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Manson Link

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Manson's hippie followers now are being called at the Tate murder trials in attempts to tie the 35-year-old ex-convict into the slayings.

Thomas J. Walleman, a bald, bearded young man, testified Thursday he once saw Manson carry into a Hollywood apartment a long-barreled revolver similar to the one the state says was used at the Tate home.

Waleman recited a story of receiving a phone call from an unidentified woman and setting out with Manson because "a guy was going out to the ranch and do us in."

He said Manson got a long-barreled revolver and they drove together to an apartment in Hollywood and entered it. The prosecution ended its questioning of Walleman at that point without asking him to relate what happened once they got inside.

Bankers Arrested

BASEL, Switzerland (UPI) — Four former officers of the United California Bank (UCB) have been arrested and are being held for investigation, the Basel prosecutor's office said Thursday.

The UCB announced Tuesday its Basel branch had suffered nearly $30 million in losses from unauthorized trading in cocoa.

The arrested officers were unidentified, but officials said one was a vice president. The vice president of the UCB's Basel affiliate Paul E. Erdman, an American, resigned last Sunday.

The prosecutor's office said an emergency audit already had provided sufficient evidence to warrant the arrests. Financial sources said the losses had been concealed from government bank inspectors.

Wants War Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge, refusing to dismiss a suit challenging the Vietnam War's legality, wants the U.S. Supreme Court to rule on its constitutionality.

U.S. District Court Judge William T. Sweigert rejected Thursday a government request that he dismiss a suit brought by three Berkeley law students, all military reservists.

He declined to rule on their suit, however, until federal attorneys file an answer to the pleadings.

His decision, he declared, was designed "to further . . . an ultimate ruling by our Ninth Circuit and, hopefully, by the Supreme Court."

"It has already been charged that the failure of the courts to decide the constitutional question . . . has contributed to the controversy and the consequent unprecedented disunity in our country on the Vietnam War issue," the judge wrote.

Cigarette Attack

Jesse L. Steinfeld told the conference of the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health that authorities could "prevent hundreds of thousands of deaths due to pulmonary and cardiac diseases if we would apply our knowledge regarding the hazards of cigarette smoking."

"I believe the time is ripe for government and voluntary groups to mount a much more vigorous program on all fronts to portray cigarette smoking for what it really is — a dirty, smelly, foul, chronic form of suicide with the added uncertainty of Russian roulette for the individual smoker," he said.

Diphtheria Shots

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — With the number of persons having contracted diphtheria nearing 100, Gov. Preston Smith says he will call for a law requiring all Texas school children be immunized against diphtheria and five other diseases.

Health officials reported three more confirmed cases of diphtheria Thursday. Since the first of the year, 93 diphtheria cases have been confirmed, 63 since Aug. 1.

City Health Director William R. Ross ordered quarantine signs posted on the homes of all persons having diphtheria or who are known carriers of the disease. Anyone leaving the homes are subject to $1,000 fines.

Attacks Militants

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The religious leader of 6.3 million American Negroes suggests militants "whose rhetoric would turn our society into a jungle of wild beasts" be walled off from the rest of society.

"I believe in dissent," Dr. Joseph H. Jackson of Chicago said Thursday. "But I do not believe in destruction."

Jackson, president of the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc., made the statement before 20,000 delegates to the sect's 90th annual meeting.

Jackson, re-elected president of the group later Thursday, said the nation's penal code should be revised in light of increasing militance to cope with "group crime as opposed to individual criminals." He said "destructionists" had no place in American society.

Typhoon Georgia Loses Strength

MANILA (UPI) — Typhoon Georgia weakend into a tropical storm today, as it crossed Luzon 180 miles north of Manila and headed out into the South China Sea.

The weather bureau said that at 2 p.m. Georgia was 27 miles north of the mountain resort of Baguio, heading west northwest at 13 miles per hour with maximum center winds of 67 m.p.h.

It was expected to pass over the Luzon coast later today, and possibly pick up speed slightly as it heads for the Chinese mainland.

Previn, Mia Are Married

LONDON (UPI)—Conductor Andre Previn and Actress Mia Farrow were married Thursday, a spokesman for Previn said today.

Miss Farrow gave birth to twin boys Feb. 26. Previn, principal conductor of the London symphony orchestra, said he was the father.

Miss Farrow, 26, is the former wife of singer Frank Sinatra. Previn's divorce from his wife of 11 years, Dory, became final last month.

Johnson Back In Politics: Texas Style

Johnson was in his old familiar form Thursday night when he delivered a jocular endorsement speech for Democratic Senate candidate Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr.

"I announce to you people of the nation that we are going to send Lloyd Bentsen to the U.S. Senate," Johnson said at the candidate's black tie, $100-a-plate fund raising dinner.

"There are a couple of other things I would like to say," the former President said. "I am not angry at anybody. Things are peaceful where I come from. I don't have any ugly things to say about the Republican Party.

KNOWS HIM WELL

"I know Mr. Bentsen's opponent real well. I am not going to say anything ugly about him. I knew his father well. I sat across the aisle in the senate with him years ago. I believe he was the minority senator from Connecticut.

"And now, if I wanted a senator from Connecituct, and his son was running, and he would change parties, and if I lived in Connecticut, I would vote for him down the line.

"I almost always agree with (former Texas Gov.) John Connally. We agree more often than two men should. I don't agree nearly as often with John Tower."

SPECIAL ELECTION

(Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., won a special election to the Senate in 1960 to replace Johnson when he became vice president.)

"But I do agree with something John Tower said in 1966 (when Tower was re-elected for a second term). He said Texas needs one republican and one Democruat in the U.S. Senate. It's important not to disappoint John Tower and not to disappoint me."

Agnew Blasts Demo's 'Troglodytic Leftists'

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew pledging to 'blow the whistle' from coast to coast on ultra liberals in Congress, launched a six-day campaign trip Thursday with attacks on "pusillanimous pussyfooting' and "troglodytic leftists."

The vice president, who sent reporters and audiences alike thumbing through dictionaries, even coined a new word — "radiclibs" — as he spoke to crowds at Springfield, Ill., and at Casper to begin a six-state tour.

It was at Springfield that Agnew assailed 'pussillanimous pussyfooters," 'troglyodytic leftists," "whimpering isolationism," "mulish obstructionism," and "radiclibs, the latter an Agnew word combining radical and liberal.

"There was a time when the liberalism of the old (Democratic) elite was a venturesome and fighting philosophy — the vanguard political dogma of a Franklin Roosevelt, a Harry Truman, a John Kennedy," Agnew said.

"But the old firehorses are long gone. Today's breed of radical-liberal posturing about the Senate is about as closely related to a Harry Truman as a chihuahua is to a timber wolf.

"Ultra-liberalism today translates into a whimpering isolationism in foreign policy, a mulish obstructionism in domestic policy, and a pusillanimous pussyfooting on the critical issue of law and order."

In Wyoming, where he received an enthusiastic ovation from a crowd of more than 4,000, he pledged to "blow the whistle" on radical liberals who now were "in a mad scramble to the center.

"These radical liberals have taken over the Democratic Party in Congress," Agnew said. "But now we come to election time, and a strange political alchemy is taking place. Since the views of the radical congressmen are so completely at variance with the majority of Americans, they have begun a mad scramble to the center."

Agnew said the "new election-time patriot is still our old undependable friend — the radical liberal. The overnight hardliner on crime is still the old bleeding heart, now worried about his seat.

"These men — these sheep in wolves' clothing — are trying to pull the fastest switchero in American politics. But I intend to blow the whistle on them from Maine to California and they are not going to get away with it."

Agnew was in Illinois to support the re-election bid of freshman Republican Sen. Ralph T. Smith, battling against Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III, and in Wyoming to back Republican congressman John Wold in his effort to unseat Democratic Sen. Gale Mc Gee.

Israel Makes Biggest U.S. Arms Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israel has made its biggest arms request to the United States and, for the first time, is asking it be allowed to buy on credit.

This report came Thursday from Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., chairman of an Armed Services subcommittee that visited Israel last week, and Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., who also made the trip.

They said Israeli officials told them they have submitted a "shopping list" to the U.S. Defense Department for arms purchases over the next two years totaling $800 million.

The Israelis refused a detailed breakdown, the congressman said, but indicated their requests included F4 Phantom fighter-bombers, A4 Skyhawk jets, helicopters, Hawk antiaircraft missiles, tanks, bombs, radar and both ground and aerial electronic equipment intended to help detect Soviet missile emplacements in Egypt.

Both congressmen said they favored allowing Israel to buy on credit to help match the Soviet buildup of arms to Egypt and other Arab nations.

Egg-Throwers

OEREBRO, Sweden (UPI)—Three youths aged 17 to 21, charged with throwing eggs at U.S. Ambassador Jerome H. Holland last May, were convicted Thursday and fined for insulting a foreign power, court spokesmen said.

Air Crash Blamed On FAA Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Transportation Safety Board has blamed an in-flight collision between a jetliner and a private plane near Indianapolis last year on outdated Federal Aviation Agency air traffic control rules.

The FAA immediately responded that the collision occurred simply because the pilots of the two planes didn't see each other.

A student pilot and all 83 persons aboard the Allegheny Airlines DC9 were killed in the accident Sept. 9, 1969.

The safety board specifically criticized the FAA's practice of allowing planes not under the direction of air traffic controllers to mix in congested air space over airports with planes under instrument control.

Cambodians Ready For Red Attack

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian government troops who broke the 60-day siege of Kompong Thom are prepared for a counterattack by Communist forces, a high command spokesman said today.

He said the troops also have opened the waterways to the southwest of the city without resistance and they now are "completely secure." The lack of resistance probably was because of high flood waters, which enabled the gunboats to reach the besieged city and to open the flooded area between Kompong Thom and the lake on Tonle Sap, 30 miles to the southwest.

Intelligence reports indicated "an unknown percentage" of the 2,000-man Communist force around Kompong Thom had withdrawn toward Siem Reap. 60 miles to the northwest, the spokesman said. Siem Reap was the scene of a Communist attack earlier this week.

Despite the lack of resistance so far, the spokesman said, "we are prepared for an attack —in fact we are trying to draw them (the Communists) out so that we can kill them."

U.S. military spokesmen in Saigon said two American 4th Infantry Division troopers were killed and two wounded Thursday morning in a bitter 20-minute firefight in the Central Highlands about 262 miles northeast of Saigon.

The U.S. Command said Communist mortar fire directed at a U.S. Marine position in the mountain country about 342 miles north-northeast of Saigon landed in the nearby village of Hoan, killing three Vietnamese civilians and wounding 13 others. Two other rounds landed in the Leatherneck outpost but caused no casualties or damage.

Military officials said that in another ground action, one member of the 3rd Brigade, 9th Infantry Divison was killed and five wounded Thursday when their unit received small arms and rocket-propelled grenade fire in the jungles 21 miles east-southeast of Saigon. Communist losses were not known.

The Rev. Carl McIntire arrived in Saigon Friday to personally urge South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky to attend an Oct. 3 "Rally for Victory" in Washington. He said "I want to talk to the vice president face to face as a companion in battle. I want him to know that we want him to come to the United States."

Ky had accepted the invitation but was reported reconsidering it after the South Vietnamese embassy in Washington recommended against his attending due to possible demonstrations. McIntire said he wanted to reassure Ky he would be in no danger from antiwar extremists if he visited the United States.

He said the ground troops moving towards Kompong Thom from Phnom Penh 80 miles to the south have moved another five miles without resistance Thursday but came to a standstill 32 miles from the city when faced with a blown bridge. They have been making their way towards Kompong Thom for five days.

First Bussing In Richmond A 'Success'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The first day of a bussing program in the Richmond District of San Francisco was pronounced "an outstanding success" by school officials Thursday.

Some 2,100 children were transported in 26 buses to 12 elementary schools in the neighborhood where whites, blacks, Orientals and Spanish-speaking people live.

"I am pleased with what happened today," said Superintendent of Schools Dr. Thomas Shaheen, "andc I think the momentum will pick up during the years."

"The teachers and parents showed great enthusiasm," he said.

The racial balance of one school, Sutro, changed in the following way: 58.7 per cent white and Spanish-speaking, compared to 66.8 per cent last year; 26 per cent Oriental compared to 23.7 per cent last year; and 15 per cent black compared to 5.3 per cent last year. Four per cent of the students last year were of "other" races.

ORDERS OUT OF INQUEST

A security officer beckons Bob Fernandez, 29, after Fernandez disrupted the first day of a coroner's inquest into the death of newsman Ruben Salazar. Salazar was killed when a tear gas projectile hit him on the head during a riot in East Los Angeles, Calif. last month. Mexican-American spectators trooped out of the Los Angeles inquest twice yesterday after denouncing the hearing.

Waddell Smith Widow Sues: $345,000

The widow and stepson of the late Col. Waddell F. Smith, great-grandson of a Pony Express Founder, yesterday filed suits in Marin Superior Court charging that Smith reneged on a promise to adopt the youth and asking $345,000 from his estate.

In two suits against the estate's executor, attorney Herbert K. Walton Jr., of San Rafael, Mariana B. Smith described how the late colonel allegedly made the promise when he proposed to her.

Mrs. Smith, a Swedish divorcee, said that Smith, a longtime bachelor, asked her to marry him in 1958 and "in connection with this proposal" said he would adopt her son, Chris Dahlgren, then 6 years old.

Because of this promise, Mrs. Smith said, she gave up plans to return to Sweden, and married Smith.

After the marriage Mrs. Smith said that the boy was given the name "Waddell F. Smith Jr.," which he used from that time on.

Although Smith publicly stated that he had adopted the boy, now 18, he never did so legally, Mrs. Smith said in the suit.

In January, 1959, Colonel Smith drew up a will under which young Smith, now a college freshman, inherited $1,000. The will stated that Smith had no natural or adopted children.

Mrs. Smith received $45,000 under the will, which is still in probate. The estate, which includes the family home in San Rafael known as the Pony Express Retreat, was estimated at $250,000 at the time of Smith's death in January.

He left the house, which includes a museum of early western artifacts, to the county, which turned it down. Under the will a niece and nephew will receive it if the state doesn't want it.

Mrs. Smith asked on behalf of her son $245,000 for various causes including his education and damages because Smith broke his agreement.

She asked $126,000 for herself.

An article from a San Francisco newspaper attached to the suit and written 18 months after the Smiths' marriage described how Smith had adopted the child and said that the boy's "home is a paradise."

Utility Board To Hold Forum On Pollution

The Independent-Journal erred Wednesday in reporting that a forum discussion on "Pollution and Related Problems in Bolinas", scheduled for today at 8 p.m., had been organized by Vernon Bradley of Bolinas.

The meeting, which will include talks by state, county and regional officials, was organized and is being sponsored by the Bolinas Community Public Utility District. It will be held in the district office, 270 Elm Road.

YMCA Meeting Sign-Up Starts

Registration has opened to all Marin high school students wanting to participate in this year's three-day Yosemite Youth Conference sponsored by the YMCA.

Delegates to the three-day conference beginning Nov. 27, will meet in small groups to explore the social issues that concern them, and where possible, offer solutions to social problems.

Call Sounded For Sausalito To Take On Self-Sufficient Image

Sausalito planning commissioners agreed last night that the city should try to shake loose of its traditional status as mainly a bedroom community for San Francisco and become self-sufficient.

Toward this end they proposed that there be no housing east of Bridgeway, including the Marinship area, except for hotels and boatels.

It was proposed by Commissioner Violetta Autumn that the Marinship area be devoted to commercial and light industrial uses that would provide jobs for local residents.

"The idea is for Sausalito to be self-sufficient and not a bedroom for San Francisco," she said.

It was conceded that there always will be commuters, but there was a hope that more people could both work and live in the community.

Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt said the Marinship area can be very productive and help maintain a semblance of community balance. There are areas other than Marinship that are more suitable for housing, he contended.

Mrs. Autumn's advocacy of a self sufficient community came at a public hearing on proposed revisions to the city's General Plan.

She proposed a limit on the population ceiling of the city, and proposed as a step toward this end, a ban on housing along the waterfront. "Any more houses would increase problems."

Chariman Robert L. Nissen said this would require a major change in the Marinship plan, which permits housing. Marinship property owners should be notified of the proposal and a public hearing held, he said.

William Clark a planner and lone member of the audience aside from an Independent-Journal reporter, doubted that people working in the Marinship area could afford to live in Sausalito.

As for housing in the area, Commissioner Evert Heynneman pointed out there would be "480 apartments across the street," referring to the Whiskey Springs Development at the site of the former American Distillery Co. plant.

The vote for the self-sustaining policy was 3-1 with Commissioner Thomas E. Gildersleeve dissenting because he wasn't ready to vote to preclude waterfront housing without further study. Commissioner John M. Davis was absent.

Planning consultant William E. Spangle of Menlo Park said Sausalito has been a "Commute town all this time," and wondered how much of a change commissioners were contemplating.

Commissioners said the city "should work toward a reasonably self-sufficient community, recognizing the goal can't be fully attained," but nevertheless should move toward it.

Spangle reprted that he had allowed for 1,500 persons living in the Marinship area in compiling the city's ultimate population capacity.

In light of their new "self-sufficiency" policy, the commission called for an intensive review of the Marinship Plan.

After two hours of item-by-item study, the commission recommended about 35 revisions in the General Plan, most of them changes to make the plan consistent with the recently adopted Central Waterfront Plan and incorporate the Marinship Plan.

They split 3-1 with Nissen dissenting on a recommendation that the present City Hall be retained for public use. Nissen said he didn't think the City Hall should be at that location and didn't think the building should be retained for public use.

Funds from the sale of city hall could be used to place City Hall "at a proper location," and "I think there are sufficient areas for public use downtown," he said.

Commissioners deleted a passage calling for a single elementary school at the Bayside School Site to serve the area, an educational park plan that had previously failed to win voter approval.

"We don't want the city in the position of prejudging the school district's plan," Nissen said.

They added as a community goal encouragement of bicycle paths and pedestrian walkways, which will serve as an alternative to automobile traffic.

Commissioners adjourned until 8 p.m. Sept. 16 at city hall for their next regular meeting.

BART Workers Postpone Strike

OAKLAND (UPI)—A strike against the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, scheduled to start today, was postponed by the United Public Employes Union Local 390.

The union said BART management has agreed to attend a meeting next Monday under auspices of the California State Conciliation Service in an effort to settle the issues.

About 40 employes of BART are involved. The Alameda County Labor Council and other union officials had assured them support of a strike.

San Anselmo Plans To Review Sign Proposals

The San Anselmo City Council will hold a special meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in city hall to review a proposed revised sign ordinance.

The revised ordinance was approved by the city's planning commission in May and includes these revisions: (1) window displays of merchandise will not be considered signs; (2) method of measurement will be the sum of the two smallest adjoining rectangles which can encompass the sign; (3) plant nurseries will be included among those businesses which may have signs with changeable copy.

In some ways it's as good as a sports car.

A sports car should have bucket seats like we do.

A sports car should have a four-speed stick shift like we do.

And, any sports car worth its stripes should have torsion bars. And four-wheel independent suspension, like we do.

But unlike most sports cars, we have a rear-mounted air-cooled engine like the Porsche.

We have fuel injection instead of a carburetor like the Alfa Romeo and the Mercedes-Benz.

Of course, our car isn't as fast as a sports car.

But then, it isn't exactly a sports car.

It has a roomy rear seat like a sedan.

By now we think we've made our point: This car isn't exactly a sedan. And it isn't exactly a sports car.

It's a third type of car.

The Volkswagen Type 3.

But you know what's even nicer about this car?

It only costs $2446

And about $2000 less than the average sports car. The Volkswagen Type 3

In some ways it's better.

A LITTLE TOO NEIGHBORLY

A car belonging to Marian Claire MacLean of 202 Marinda Drive, Fairfax, nestles in the shattered living room wall of the 118 Marinda Drive home of neighbor Elmo De Martini. Mrs. MacLean, 41, was backing the car out of her driveway when it began accelerating backwards and was still accelerating when it crashed into the home smashing windows, furniture and the wall. Mrs. MacLean and her son, William Dean, 15, who said he was dragged by the open driver's side door, said they would consult a private physican for treatment of injuries. Police gave no explanation of why the car went out of control.

an 18 mile sector from it have been noted."

The spokesman said the complaint based on data gathered Thursday was submitted to the U. N. cease-fire observers in Jerusalem. The first 11 complaints dealt with deployment of additional SAM2s and the 12th with alleged Egyptian mistreatment of Israeli prisoners.

The spokesman also said an Israeli army patrol shot and wounded three Arabs in occupied Gaza City today when they ignored a challenge to identify themselves and attempted to escape.

In Washington, two congressman said Thursday Israel presented its biggest "shopping list" of military hardware to date and for the first time requested credit terms.

The request totalled $800 million and included F4 Phantoms, A4 Skyhawks, helicopters, Hawk missiles, tanks, bombs, radar and other electronic gear.

Egyptian Minister of National Guidance Mohammed Hassanein Heikal said in Cairo American Middle East policy has been designed to eliminate the Soviet presence from the area, to keep Israel strong and the Arabs weak, and to cripple Egypt's role in the region.

Heikal said in his weekly column in the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram the primary aim of the U.S. peace initiative which led to the 90-day Suez Canal cease-fire was to face "the Soviet military move in the area which pushed up the temperature in the (Arab-Israeli) struggle."

flights of American carriers. There are 14,730 daily domestic flights of all kinds, according to the Air Transport Association, and only a fraction of those would be involved in the guard protection.

There are about 125 trans-Atlantic flights a day involving U. S. carriers and presumably all of these would be guarded.

Administration sources said civilian personnel drawn from the Federal Aviation Administration and the Treasury Department would likely be the first used for the on-plane protection, with military police —who would make up the bulk of the force —joining later. The FAA already has an undisclosed number of "sky marshals."

Airline sources said the FAA and the Treasury have begun a crash program at Kennedy International Airport in New York to train guards.

Overdose Treated

Avis Ann Kabot, 37, of 1704 Lincoln, Apt. 3, San Rafael was treated at Marin General Hospital at 4:48 a.m. today for an overdose of pills. She telephoned the Jim Dunbar show on radio station KGO to report she had taken the pills and he called the San Rafael police, they reported.

New Hostage Tension At Guerrilla Airstrip

decision, but they made no subsequent move to follow it up. Later a PFLP guerrilla issued a statement at the air strip saying:

"The passengers on the planes will not be released until our demands are met."

The guerrillas have demanded the release of seven Palestinian commandos imprisoned in Great Britain, Switzerland and West Germany in exchange for women, children, elredly and sick hostages and the release of an unspecified number of guerrillas held in Israel as ransom for the remaining healthy men held as hostages.

The nations involved have rejected the two-part exchange and are seeking the release of all passengers.

In Geneva, the Red Cross protested the "inhuman conditions" imposed on the passengers. The TWA and Swissair planes have been on the hot, dusty airfield since Sunday and the BOAC plane was hijacked Wednesday.

The Palestine Liberation Oorganization (PLO), a large central body of Arab guerrilla groups, has said earlier in Amman the hostages would be moved "for humanitarian reasons."

During yesterday's tension at the desert airstrip the Red Cross team reported that an American woman gave birth today to an infant aboard the TWA aircraft. The report said there were no problems.

However, there was no further information of the mother or even the sex of the baby.

Also yesterday the guerrillas released 22 persons from BOAC plane, including 22-year-old Leslie Pressley, an English girl and her 23-year-old fiance Ali Al Sharif. Today they were in Beirut, awaiting air travel to London — their destination when the plane was skyjacked.

Meanwhile in Chicago, Rev. Paul Lindstrom, head of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, said today he has learned the United tSates government would consider accepting the release of Gentiles held by Arab hijackers in exchange for captive Arab terrorists, leaving Jewish - American passengers behind.

Lindstrom spoke at an early-morning news conference with Rabbi Yisrael Trachtman, father of a 10-year-old boy held among passengers on a Trans World Airlines plane hijacked last Sunday to a desert airfield in Jordan.

In Washington, State Department officials stressed that the United States was seeking the release of all the passengers. But they could not categorically exclude the possibility that a deal might have to be reached whereby the majority of passengers would be freed but that those of Jewish faith might be left behind.

Four Injured In Sonoma Wreck

Four Southern Sonoma residents were treated at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma for injuries received in a one-car accident at 2:20 a.m. today on Highway 101 near Highway 116 in Petaluma.

Treated for scalp and facial cuts were: Raymond Kolby, 33, and William St. Jean, 29, both of 1401 Sarkesian Drive, Petaluma; Gary Johnson, 25, of 9 Jess Drive, Petaluma, and Michele Ridout, 21, of 336 East Main Street, Cotati.

The California Highway Patrol said that Kolby, who was driving the car in which the others were passengers, swerved to avoid a slow moving truck and his car then hit a concrete wall.

Cars Colide, Go Through Window

A collision of two cars at 5:55 p.m. yesterday at Fourth Street and Lootens Place, San Rafael, sent both cars into the window of the J. C. Penny Department Store, and injured both drivers,

Candace Arlynne Shepardson, 22, of 104 A Merrydale Road, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for scrapes on both knees and elbows and a bruised abdomen.

Dennis Edward Miller, 18, of 1118 Ruhlman Lane, Novato, was taken to Marin General Hospital, transferred to Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital and then to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco. He was reported in good condition today by the hospital, suffering with a broken left leg and cut left arm.

Miller's car, going west on Fourth Street, collided with the Shepardson car going north on Lootens Place.

Drive To Replace Burned Costumes

The Marin Shakespeare Festival board decided last night to try to raise $3,000 by direct appeals and two special performances to replace costumes destroyed in a fire Aug. 31.

Barbara Young, administrator for the festival board, said that spontaneous community donations of money have been good, but that additional money to replace the costumes will have to be raised by asking for donations from the audience at each performance.

Also, an original scenario written by festival executive director John Brebner will be performed Nov. 10 at Morrison Planetarium in San Francisco with proceeds going to the festival as will money raised at a special Christmas show in December at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club.

Yogi Sees Permanent 'High' Via Meditation, Not Drugs

By MICHAEL A. SMITH

"You Americans use artificial methods to relax yourselves and to escape tension. Your pills and drugs, everyone of these artifical methods will hok you. I can show you a permanent high through meditation."

Yogi Bhajan, master of Kundalini Yoga, the yoga of awareness, is presently teaching his method of meditation to about 50 Marinites, mostly young. A teacher of yoga for 22 years in his native India, the 42-year-old bearded, turbaned and powerfully built yogi left his wife and three children and a government post three years ago to teach the principles of yoga to people in Canada and America.

"I came to America," he explains, "because you seem to be under so much tension here, so much unnecessary tension."

The yogi, presently staying with friends in San Anselmo, who he says will remain here as teachers of his brand of yoga, has set up more than 40 ashrams, or religious retreats, in Canada and the United States during the past two years.

These ashrams, called 3HO — The Happy, Healthy, Holy Organization — are set up to "teach control of the senses and awareness to the consciousness of an individual so that he may be aware of the causes leading to effects and he will be able, through conscious control, not to cause that cause which will have a negative effect," he says.

"We don't sell God," says the yogi. "We show God by making a man see himself as a god. You are God so long as you act like God and think like God. God is within you. So long as you breathe, you are one with God."

The yogi stresses that he is not teaching a religion, but rather a science, and that he hopes to set up a credit course at the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) this year. He is armed with physiological charts showing how various body functions relate directly to the state of a person's mind.

"We know that not all the brain cells work all the time," he says. "There is a neuro (nerve) pocket just below the navel, and if this can be activated, energy passes up the spinal passage, like an electric shock. First this shock affects the pituitary gland and then merges into the pineal gland, which is the 'seal of the soul.' This (pineal gland) normally doesn't work after seven years of age, but once it starts working again, it is called intuitive power and through this intuitive power you can know the effects of a cause before the cause occurs.

"You have perfect power of self correction and you don't cause a negative result. You are a positive man.

"What more do you want?" he asks, laughing.

"Between you and that unseen thing which we call God, there is one link and that link is called breath. If breath, if this basic life force, can be channelled into the body psychic centers, then there is the absolute possibility that we can have strong nerves to face any situation and to develop absolute tolerance."

This development of tolerance, says the yogi, will lead to love and "then you are a living God on Earth."

Two followers of Yogi Bhajan's Kundalini Yoga, Stephen S. Samuels, 28, of 45 Oak Road in Larkspur and Paul Ehrlich, 26, of the Rock Island Line Health Food Store in Sausalito, say that they both have sampled the drug scene and that the yogi's teaching helped birng them out of it. Both are now teaching Kundalini Yoga at classes in Sausalito and San Anselmo and see yoga as an alternative not only to drugs, but to all crutches for relieving tension.

"You don't need drugs to find peace," says Samuels. "We happened to have used them, but there are many who have turned on to yoga and found peace without using drugs."

"We'd like to keep others from making the same mistakes we did," adds Ehrlich. He says that yoga has taught him to get rid of his own ego and to act like a god at all times.

Yogi Bhajan plans to leave Marin County shortly, but he will leave behind several teachers of his science and a 3HO office at 1915-A Bridgeway in Sausalito.

Armed Robbery At Larkspur Station

Archer's Chevron Station in Larkspur was robbed Wednesday of about $200 in cash by a pistol waving masked man, police reported today.

Police said the robber entered the service station at about 11 p.m. as two employees were locking up and counting the day's receipts.

Wearing a stocking mask and training a .45 caliber pistol on the two attendants, the man first ordered them to lie on the office floor and then demanded the money, officers said. He then fled on foot to an alley across from the station at 532 Magnolia Avenue.

Police said they later found clothing and $250 in checks near the alley while searching for the thief.

Values Up In Larkspur District

The Larkspur School District board was told last night that total assessed valuation within the district had climbed 6.8 per cent.

Supt. Milton S. Cohen said today the county auditor has set the official assessed valuation at $36,000,385. Last year's total was about $34,800,000.

Even with the increase in assessed valuation, Cohen said the district's tax rate rose this year about 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation or $95,060 over last year's budget. This year's budget stands at $1,756,396.

Cohen attributed the increase to a full medical-dental insurance plan for district employees at a cost of about $55,000. Other increases include the district's education program for handicapped children and an 8 per cent pay hike to teachers and classified personnel.

In other business, the board last night approved an agreement with San Francisco State College for the placement of five student teachers in the district at a cost to the college of $360. The board approved the hiring of Kenneth Koutz as a seventh grade science teacher to replace John Compton who requested a release from his contract. Koutz will be paid $7,660 per year.

Cohen also told the board attendance was down 25 students this year. First day attendance figures showed 16,025 students in the district.

Sausalito Hopeful Has Eye On Future

By PAT ANGLE

(Last of four articles on Sausalito School District board candidates)

By running for a seat on the Sausalito School District board in Tuesday's election Robert R. Lyon is hopeful he will be able "to do some good by helping to adjust our society" and working to eliminate some of the serious problems.

"I feel all citizens owe a part of their time to social involvement, service to the community and their fellow men," the 48-year-old insurance executive said to explain his candidacy.

Although he has no children enrolled in the school district, Lyon has a 30-month-old son and feels personally concerned with the district's future.

"I believe in public schools and particularly local public schools," he commented. "I like Sausalito very much and I would like to live here for a long time; I want my child to go to our schools."

Lyon, who became involved in the problems of the Sausalito school system three years ago, feels the district is "at a crossroad right now. If it continues in the way it is going, I am afraid it will eventually self-destruct."

Like the other three school board candidates, he is concerned about the continuing decline in enrollment in the district. "Most of the people who have left have been white parents who feel there is a lack of stability and academic achievement in the schools," he said.

Lyon believes both stability and sound education have been sacrificed "because a philosophy has developed in the district long political and racial lines. This has brought about an unstable situation and created a climate where education has becomesecondary to social concerns," he added.

"Some parents — especially some from Mill Valley — realize their children are not going to get an education in Sausalito, but want to bring their youngsters into the district for the social experience. That's well and good," he continued, "but I don't think education can take a back seat in a school system. There has to be a balance between both."

Lyon, who is Northern California manager for Employers Self-Insurance Service in San Francisco feels his experience in the business world and insurance field will be valuable on the school board.

"The administration of a complex district requires someone with maturity and business experience; someone who knows how to deal with people," he explained, "and I am in the business of communication and selling ideas."

He feels parents in both communities in the school district need to be sold on the Sausalito School system. "Part of the social unrest seen at school board meetings and in the children at school results from a lack of confidence," Lyon said. "Many parents feel black children have not been given the same equal opportunity as white children.

"To me, all kinds should have the same opportunities. I think there are those who need more help than others and they should be given that help," he added, "but in such a way that they do not feel separated or segregated from the rest of the students.

Although the candidate said he is "not an educator," he feels strongly "that education is one of the basic essentials for solving problems in society and for equalizing opportunities for all people."

If he is elected to the board, Lyon said he would "try to create — through the staff — environment and programs conducive to learning."

The candidate believes the setting of actual curriculum is up to the administrators in the district "who must be selected on the basis of their proven ability to educate in an integrated situation.

Teachers must be chosen on the same basis, Lyons thinks. "Some teachers have already left the district because they were not ready for the change caused by integration," he said "and there may be more who will follow those who have already left."

According to Lyon all new teachers hired "must be thoroughly screened for their ability to teach in integrated schools and to have as their main concern the education of children rather than political indoctrination."

Although he lives in Sausalito, Lyon feels he can represent the people of Marin City as well as those in Sausalito if he is elected. "The only thing I have in mind is the education of children," he explained. "I can represent anybody who wants this."

Lyon is aware and concerned about divisiveness and conflict in the district, but feels the majority of people wish to get along together and educate their children to take their place in a changing society.

He emphasized his belief that all the people in the district can be brought together if confidence and a common goal is restored. "When the education of all children is proceeding smoothly — with no preference shown to any group — parents will realize the board is acting in the best interests of the children," he said. "I am confident this will reduce friction and conflict," the candidate concluded.

Drug Suspected In Youth's Death

A Corte Madera youth died yesterday, apparently the victim of an overdose of heroin, Coroner's Investigator Keith Craig reported today.

William Clifford Oltean, 22, of 106 Meadow Valley Road was found unconscious in his bedroom by his parents before being taken to Marin General Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival at about 11 p.m.

Craig said Oltean had a fresh needle mark on his right arm and older needle marks on his left arm.

The body was taken to Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael where an autopsy was to be performed.

Sonoma State Chief Says Campus Issues Not Limited

The problems of American colleges and universities are not much different from the problems of society in general, the acting president of Sonoma State College said yesterday.

Anyone who talks about campus problems is "copping out. The problems belong to all of us," Earl W. Jones said in a luncheon address to the Petaluma Rotary Club.

Jones cited the contention that the basic question in a man's life is "What am I doing here?" The purpose of education, he said, "is to guide the individual to the self-knowledge and ability to find the answer."

When students say that nothing is relevant, he said, they are saying they don't want to answer the question.

But he said that is no different than adults using liquor, sleeping pills, bridge clubs, sports talk and television to entertain themselves to avoid facing the question.

He said men can find a creative, constructive answer to the question, such as the delight he said he gets when he writes a few lines of verse.

Or there is a destructive answer, he added, using Hitler as an example of a man who thought he was better than the creative because he thought he could destroy the creative.

In his new job, Jones said, he is going to do his best" to create a climate where it is possible for the individual to look for the constructive answer."

Jones said he thinks Sonoma State is a "lovely school" with a few problems.

One of the problems, he said, is student unrest, "but students are human and humans are never restful." Another problem is drugs, but drugs are a problem in Petaluma and most other communities as well, he said.

The former executive vice president of San Francisco State College also criticized the press in his talk, but he put the blame for what he said were its failings on society rather than on the press itself.

He blamed the news media for a stereotyped image of students as destructive because of press coverage of what he called "fewer than 1 per cent of students engaged in destructive games."

The news that gets in the newspapers, he said, is the "negative improbable."

He asked his audience which story would appear in the paper if on the same day in the same town, one teen-age boy died of an overdose of drugs and another wrote a symphony.

Both are improbable, considering the millions of teen-agers in the country, but it is the "negative, destructive improbable" that will make the news, he said.

However, it is not the fault of the press, he said, but rather it is the fault of a society that wants to read the bad news and then say "I'd never do a thing like that."

Jones told his audience, "Don't stereotype us. We need your help."

Ranchers Renting Seashore Land Will Lose Rights In 18 Months

Six ranchers presently renting 5,500 acres of Point Reyes National Seashore land for cattle grazing should expect to lose it within 18 months and owners preparing to sell their land to the Seashore will not be allowed to rent it back as in the past.

Park Supt. John L. Sansing said that is now Seashore policy because the April 3 land acquisition appropriation bore a kicker banning renting out future purchases.

The ranger head said it would be inconsistent to allow the present renters to stay, then bar future applicants. The six will be given a "reasonable time" to move their herds, he said, when the land purchases are nearly completed.

He predicted that all land rental agreement will be terminated within 18 months.

The special use permits allow the park to give only 30 days notice, Sansing said.

Sansing said no land owner was promised as a condition of sale that they could lease back the land bought with the $38.3 million authorized April 3.

Leasing had been allowed in the past because the 1962 bill defining the park envisioned private ranching areas within the park boundaries, Sansing said.

In addition, the rationale was that the public could not use that land because private properties cut off access, Sansing said.

Ranchers now renting seashore land are George Gallagher with 1,500 acres near the northern Point Reyes Beach; Leland S. Murphy with 1,600 north of Limantour Spit; dairyman James L. Spaletta, about 1,000 acres near the south Point Reyes Beach; Ralph Beatty, 770 acres near Limantour, and Marvin McDonald and Ernest Ward, 560 acres of the Himes Ranch.

Sansing said the dairy use will definitely be eliminated because it requires fencing out the public, but grazing of cattle might be continued if an area is designated for that purpose in the park master plan.

These proposed grazing areas — if any — will be designated in the plan by spring, Sansing said. There is no guarantee they will be the same lands now leased, he pointed out.

Lawyer To Talk On Bolinas History

History of the Bolinas area will be discussed by Thomas Barfield at the annual public meeting of the Marin County Historical Society at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the San Rafael Improvement Club.

Barfield, an attorney, has been studying the history of the area around Bolinas for many years.

The Board of Directors for the coming year will be elected at the meeting, according to president Frank Galli.

Items other than scrap may be seen from next Thursday to Oct. 6, and scrap from Tuesday to Sept. 29, at building 727 at the base, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., weekdays.

Bagley's Transit Bill Push Praised

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, has been defended against a charge from his Democratic challenger that he failed to help save legislation allowing diversion of gasoline taxes to rapid transit.

Bagley's challenger, Joseph A. Forest of Novato, claimed last week that the Legislature had failed to pass such a measure, a claim that turns out to be incorrect on two counts.

MILLS LETTER

According to the author of just such a measure, it not only passed, but did so because of Bagley's support.

Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, in a letter to Bagley last Friday, said that Bagley's intervention "raised it from the dead." The senator, terming his measure "the most historic act of the 1970 Legislature," said he was "very conscious of the fact that it would not have passed without your personal involvement.

"When it appeared dead, and I had given it up, your intervention raised it from the dead. I hope you are as proud of SCA 18 as I am, because you have as much right to be," Mills wrote Bagley.

KEY SUPPORT

Bagley's key support came in convincing Assembly Speaker Bob Monagan, R-Tracy, to bend Assembly rules to allow time to round up the votes needed to pass the measure. Monagan had been about to gavel it to death when Bagley interceded.

Mills' measure will appear on the November general election ballot as Proposition 18. It would allow counties to divert up to 25 per cent of their gas tax revenues to transit with the approval of a majority vote. Gas taxes now are reserved for highway purposes.

Bagley yesterday accused Forest of distorting the record with several other charges that he had a poor voting record on environmental bills.

Forest had charged that Bagley was absent when the Assembly defeated a resolution (AJR 3) asking the federal government to act immediately to halt oil drilling in the Santa Barbara Channel, but Bagley noted that the resolution was killed by the rules committee and never even reached the floor for a vote.

Forest also charged that Bagley missed a vote that killed a bill to limit oil and gas leases within the channel that would destroy esthetic values, but Bagley pointed out that he not only voted for the bill (AB 150), but it was passed by the Legislature.

As for Forest's charge that Bagley missed a vote on AB 1000, Bagley's own tax revision package, Bagley said "obviously I never missed any votes on it — I was the author and carried it on the floor."

Bagley conceded that, as charged by Forest, he had missed a vote on a bill to allow Marin County to enact local logging regulations. But Bagley noted that the bill was signed by the governor after he urged its signature despite opposition from the administration's own Division of Forestry.

"My support of conservation measures has been total," Bagley said.

Woman Leaps To Death From Span

A 41-year-old Oakland woman leaped to her death yesterday from the north end of the Golden Gate Bridge, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The body of Margaret A. Allen was recovered by the U.S. Coast Guard at 12:01 p.m. near the south tower moat.

The patrol received the call of the leap at 11:52 from a woman motorist who said she saw Mrs. Allen climb over the rail and then jump into the thick fog. A black purse containing $19.46 was found nearby, but no note.

Four Hurt In Cape Explosion

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—An explosion near an empty launch pad injured four men today, two of them seriously.

The Air Force said the explosion apparently was touched off when the men were changing a valve on a nitrogen tank near launch Complex 13, from which an Atlas-Agena rocket carrying a spy satellite was recently launched.

The men, employes of Pan American World Airways which does maintenance work at the spaceport under a government contract, were not immediately identified.

One of the injured men was taken to the Cape Canaveral hospital and the other three to the Cape Kennedy dispensary.

Bank Of America Sees Resurgence In 1971

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Bank of America sees 1971 as a year of "restless resurgence" as the nation tries to balance factors of inflation, unemployment and social change.

In the bank's annual economic forecast Thursday, Economist Walter Hoadley said 1970 had been a "year of housecleaning, a healthy correction" and predicted a gradual improvement next year.

Hoadley noted that consumer demand has been rising, along with new housing starts.

And Hoadley suggested that a reduction in the prime rate of interest is probably coming.

He looks for "moderate progress" in reducing inflation next year, but observed that inflation "is apt to be a more serious problem for other industrial countries than for the U.S.

"As a result, the dollar will be strengthened and U.S. exports will increase faster than imports."

During his 14-year career Conrad Nagel played in over 150 movies.

Attorney For 'Soledad Brothers' Sees San Francisco Fair Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A defense attorney for the "Soledad Brothers" said Thursday his clients would "have the greatest chance of securing a fair trial" in San Francisco.

The prosecution, however, claimed a fair trial here would be impossible because of publicity and political activities surrounding the case.

The three defendants, George Jackson, John Cluchette and Fleeta Drumgo are black inmates at Soledad Prison accused of killing a guard last January.

They obtained a change of venue to San Francisco in June after claiming "undue publicity and hostility" made it impossible to get a fair trial in Monterey County.

Jackson's brother, Jonathan, was killed in the San Rafael shootout last month that took four lives, including that of Superior Court Judge Harold S. Haley. This event caused the Monterey County authorities to seek another change.

Monterey County Disrict Attorney Edward K. Barnes told Superior Court Judge Robert J. Drewes Thursday that he had talked with some respectable members of the San Francisco community who also thought a fair trial couldn't be held here.

Defense attorney John Thorne called Barnes as a witness and asked him to name the people he talked with.

Barnes admitted he had discussed the matter with personnel in the San Francisco district attorney's office.

"I think the defendants have the greatest chance of a fair trial here," Thorne told the judge.

Drewes took the matter under submission.

Forest Appoints Campaign Heads

Joseph A. Forest of Novato, Democratic nominee for State Assembly, has named Mrs. Troy E. Lewis and Robert B. McCreadie, both of Terra Linda, as the co-chairmen of his campaign.

Mrs. Lewis is county chairman of the women's division of the Democratic State Central Cimmittee, and McCreadie is a Novato attorney.

DINING OUT—BILLBOARD STYLE

Many motorists traveling a Detroit freeway had to take a double look yesterday. A Detroit restaurant set up dining facilities on a billboard to promote its nearby ground-level establishment on its 10th anniversary. Steps leading up to a platform beneath the giant billboard enabled customers to sit at table and have dinner and drinks.

Pedestrian Safety Earns City Awards

Petaluma's pedestrian traffic safety record was honored last night in Sonoma by the American Automobile Association.

At a meeting of the Sonoma County Mayors' and Councilmen's Association, Joseph J. Kirrene, manager of the AAA's Petaluma office, presented a plaque citing Petaluma for its fourth consecutive year without a pedestrian fatality.

Mayor Helen Putnam and acting chief of police Henry Eslick accepted the award for the city.

The cities of Sebastopol and Sonoma also were honored.

Following the awards, state Sen. Randolph Collier, D-First District, and Assemblyman John F. Dunlap, D-Vallejo, discussed State Constitutional Amendment 18 which would allow local governments to use 25 per cent of their gas tax funds for the development of mass transit systems.

Collier spoke against the amendment and Dunlap defended it.

Museum Classes Signing Students

Registration for classes being offered this fall by the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science has begun and will continue until classes are filled, the museum has announced.

About 15 classes are being offered for preschool children through adults. They include nursery nature, falconry, rock polishing, wildlife biology, Mother Miklos's morning manual arts for Marin mothers, Marin ecology and others.

Larkspur Commission Turns Down Joint Recreation Program Offer

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission last night turned down an offer from the Corte Madera Town Council for a joint fall, winter and spring recreation program.

Harlan Barry, recreation director, said the commission listed lack of funds and little public enthusiasm in rejecting the offer.

Barry said such a program would have cost the city about $5,700 which was not budgeted. He explained that recreation reserves were not large enough to cover Larkspur's share of the program.

Corte Madera made the offer earlier this week after evaluating public participation in the joint summer probram with Larkspur. It decided to extend its portion of the program into the winter and expressed hope Larkspur would also.

"In a tight budget year, we just can't do it," Barry commented.

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission also:

STUDY — Set Oct. 14 to continue interviews with park planning firms for development of a long range park master plan. Last night the commission interviewed Berridge, Becker and Julin of San Francisco and Norman Gilroy of Mill Valley, but reached no decision. Two East Bay firms will be interviewed next month.

BICYCLE PATH — Directed its staff to initiate a study on a bicycle path along Magnolia Avenue between the Safeway and Disco stores. The study was requested by Chris Brand, a Redwood High School student, who noted the area's heavy bicycle traffic.

CREEK — Heard a report from the recreation staff that Shulz Investment Company of Greenbrae had turned down a request that it donate a parcel of land adjacent Corte Madera Creek for public access to the creek and as an open area.

GIFT — Accepted a large mosaic by artist Dickens Bascom of Larkspur. The art work is to be hung at Dolliver Park.

Fairfax Board Will Consider Redesign

The Fairfax Design and Review Board will meet tomorrow at 11 a.m. at the city hall. Last night's meeting was canceled for lack of a quorum.

Tomorrow the board will consider a redesign application from Richard Lash for a building located at 55 Broadway.

TV Sets Stolen

A burglar who broke into a storage room at the Sportsman's lodge near Novato on Highway 101 Monday took seven color television sets valued at over $2,000, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

75 Offers To Replace Hostages

About 75 persons have volunteered to accompany a Mill Valley psychologist and his wife to the Middle East to trade places with hostages being held in three hijacked planes.

Dr. William H. Pemberton said today that "The response has been overwhelming. Physicians, students, teachers, Quakers, Jews, aCtholics and Protestants have asked to be counted in." Many of them have sent telegrams to President Richard M. Nixon in support of the Pembertons as well, he said.

No official word has come from the White House yet in reply to the offer made Wednesday by the 58-year-old clinical psychologist and his wife, Oma, and they have no plans to charter a plane and fly to Jordan, he said.

"The situation now is a standoff, and the best thing to do would be to freeze it for a long time," he said.

"First we must stop talking about bad and good guys and realize that the guerrillas are striving for something meaningful in life. They want a fair share of the goods and services and their own chunk of earth."

Pemberton said his first aim is "to catch the eye and ear of the decision-makers in the White House." That was the purpose behind the telegrams Wednesday, he said.

To Give Contract

A special meeting of the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District board has been scheduled for 10 a.m. tomorrow at the district office to award a contract of about $4,000 for a treatment plant machin part, board secretary Edwin S. Long has announced.

Ross Council Sets Sessions To Map An Alarm System Ordinance

The Ross Town Council last night agreed to meet with fire and burglar alarm representatives during the week of Sept. 2 to draft standards for a proposed alarm system ordinance.

The issue of alarms has come before the Ross council often during recent months because of the high number of false alarms triggered by private home systems. The measure was originally up for adoption last night, but several alarm system representatives convinced the council it did not know enough about the systems to set up meaningful regulations.

"You're trying to plunge into the business without knowing the technology," Gerald P. Hallett, general manager of American Sentry Systems of San Rafael, told the council. "There are a number of reputable companies now in the business. Let them make a set of standards and work with the council to review all new companies wanting to do business in Ross. Make a service contract mandatory."

Hallett said the town should not get into the alarm business.

Councilman Ralph C. Walker asked what the effect of private home burglar and fire alarm systems tied directly into the police and fire stations would be.

"This would take care of a lot of our problems," replied police chief John F. Harris.

Hallett added that it would be impossible to eliminate completely false alarms, but that the people in the business could iron out many of the technical difficulties. The Ross council plans to adopt an ordinance regulating the installation and maintenance of fire and burglar alarms after its meeting with industry representatives.

The Ross Council also:

POLICE CAR — Awarded a bid for a new police car to Corte Madera Chrysler Plymouth Inc., for low (and only) bid of $2,641.82.

RONSCAVAGE VARIANCE — Approved a hillside lot application and variance for John A. Ronscavage of Southwood Avenue with the provision that he supply drainage from his property to Ross Creek within one year.

POLICE — Approved for adoption at next town meeting addition to municipal code prohibiting policemen from joining labor unions.

UNDERGROUND UTILITIES — Approved for adoption at next meeting change in municipal code so that town council rather than town engineer would be responsible for granting variances in underground utilities requirements.

ABATEMENT — Gave Tracy Cummings of 23 Oak Way 30 days to dismantle a condemned garage on his property.

ABATEMENT — Directed Joseph E. Tilt of 18 Olive Avenue to appear at the next council meeting and show cause why he has not yet complied with abatement of non-conforming use on his property.

PLAY HOUSE — Directed John M. Pflueger of 29 Redwood Avenue to bring building plans for a two-story play house built without building permit to city hall by Monday noon or face abatement proceedings.

BUILDING RECORD — Approved printed form for an ordinance requiring that all conditions of property be made known to prospective buyers on a Report of Residential Building Record.

USE PERMIT — Approved a use permit to allow Webster Otis of 51 Glenwood Avenue to use a detached dwelling on his property as a guest house.

NEXT MEETING — Next regular meeting of the Ross Town Council for Oct. 8 at 8 p.m. in the town hall.

ABATEMENT — Directed Donald W. Gabor of Upper Road to vacate barn in which he and three other people are living by Oct. 1.

Uncle Sam Prototype Born 204 Years Ago

ARLINGTON, Mass. (UPI)—The 204th birthday of Samuel Wilson, the Arlington resident claimed to be the model for "Uncle Sam," was celebrated today with a parade, antique cars and politicians.

Pizza Hut Building Barriers Are Removed

By WAYNE RATLIFF

After discussion including vague references to a possible law suit and to ethics of previous city actions, the Novato City Council last night removed the last barriers to construction of a controversial Pizza Hut restaurant.

The action came in a special session called by the council at the request of Ben Ostlind, whose plans for the restaurant had long been frustrated by the city.

The council adopted, with changes allowing the construction, the East Grant sub-area of Sedway and Cooke's downtown plan and program and removed a construction freeze placed on Ostlind's property at DeLong and Machin avenues in June.

Only Councilman George C. Quesada, who proposed the construction freeze June 23, dissented, although all five councilmen indicated they did not want the restaurant built on that site.

Other changes to Sedway and Cooke's plan for the East Grant area included keeping Sweetser Avenue between Machin and Reichert avenues open to cars and allowing continued commercial and industrial uses north of Grant Avenue and between Machin and a proposed extension of Reichert avenue on a use permit basis.

Other property on the west side of Machin between DeLong and Grant was set to be left in planned commercial zoning, with prompt review by the planning commission of permitted uses and consideration of amendments to the master plan.

Approval of the sub-area plan with the change to allow the Pizza Hut met with a protest from Ellen Wagner that "we're always at the mercy of the developer. I think that you ought to consider what people want and need . . . we end up with junk all the time.

Councilman Douglas M. Merrill replied that he was against the Pizza Hut but felt there was no way to block it and maintain his integrity.

Councilman Joseph Gargiulo said that he was against building more restaurants like the Pizza Hut or McDonalds, "but as a moral issue, on the basis of the way this has been handled," he proposed adoption of the plan in a form which would allow construction.

Discussion which followed showed other councilmen in general agreement, and Quesada said that since June "somehow, somewhere along the line somebody has gotten to someone . . . there've been a lot of changed minds."

Gargiulo said that he voted for professional and office use for the area on the facts presented him but that he had since found that Ostlind had been given "unfair hurdles, deliberate ones . . . I think that they were wrong."

Councilman J. Wayne Womack said that the democratic process allows legislative bodies, after all facts are available, "to find that they were wrong at the time . . . we did not have all the facts."

Councilman F. Wayne Sartain said that he felt that it would be very difficult, if not impossible to stop the construction.

Sartain then said that he didn't think there would still be basis for a law suit if the council allowed the construction.

The matter of the law suit was a theme that was not developed further. Neither were any of the new "facts," referred to by Womack, discussed at the meeting.

After the vote, Quesada told Ostlind that he should not be surprised "if there is a virtual boycott of the Pizza Hut."

Study Ordered On Tools To Control Excavations

The Novato City Council last night directed Planning Director Brian Mattson to study tools available to the city to control excavations and earth movement in the city.

The action came in consideration of a proposed zoning ordinance to change and clarify the requirement of a use permit to remove natural materials.

The ordinance, which now requires use permits for "commercial excavation of natural materials used for building or construction purposes" is too vague, according to Mattson.

The proposed change would require permits for excavation of more than 750 cubic yards except when the excavation is carried out under development plans or maps approved by the planning commission or a division of land approved by the city staff.

The Novato City Council Also:

PLANNING COMMISSION — Directed the city manager to publicize acceptance of applications for appointment to the planning commission to fill the vacancy of William R. Wilson, whose resignation was accepted Tuesday.

DAMAGE CLAIM — Denied a damage claim by Robert Hiatt for $531 for damage to his pickup camper suffered when it struck a tree limb overhanging a parking space at 1114 Grant Avenue. The claim was referred to the city's insurance carrier.

CLOSED SESSION — Adjourned to a closed session to consider appointments to the citizens beautification committee and plan review board.

Tam Board To Discuss Architect Contracts

The Tamalpais High School District Board will hold a special meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at Redwood High School's facility lounge to discuss architectural contracts with the district's three architectural firms.

The contracts include construction of a $357,500 student center at Tamalpais High School, a $231,000 multipurpose-lecture room at Sir Francis Drake High School; and $277,000 in remodeling at Redwood High School.

Smallman Leaders

Jack G. Nixon, chairman of the campaign of Robert A. Smallman for Municipal Court judge, has appointed Robert Roumiguiere precinct organization chairman.

Larkspur Man Reports Hold-Up

A 55-year-old Larkspur man reported to the sheriff's department that when he stopped at a stop sign at the entrance to Marin City Tuesday about 1 a.m., he was held up by eight or nine men who demanded money.

William R. Norman of 15 Velardo Avenue said that one man pointed a revolver at him while the others hovered around the car. He turned over his wallet which contained $20, sheriff's officers said.

PROJECT MUSTARD

Youth Injects Special Brand Of Spice Into Demo Campaign

By GEORGE NEVIN

REAGAN FOE — Fifteen-year-old Matthew White gets on the phone to advocate a Democrat for governor. A six-year veteran of the campaign trails, he said the last winning candidate he backed was his father, Dr. Albert White, who was elected mayor of Mill Valley in 1964. (Independetn-Jounral Photo)

A Mill Valley youth, who has decided that the political scene in Marin could use a little spice, has injected some MUSTARD into the campaign.

MUSTARD is an acronym for Marin Unified Students Toward a Reagan Defeat, and the youth, 15-year-old Matthew White, intends to run a low-key effort on the part of Democratic candidates and gubernatorial hopeful Jess Unruh in particular.

"I've been in politics since I was 9," said the blond son of former Mill Valley mayor Dr. Albert E. White. He said his father, active in Democratic Party functions, encouraged him with MUSTARD but did not give him the idea.

Young White operates his group out of the Democratic headquarters in Mill Valley, but so far "we haven't been financed at all. We'd like to keep expenses down because we have no way of getting any money."

He donates his time to MUSTARD, and the only other expenses he anticipates are for printing. "We may be able to get businessmen to donate paper, and I think I know of a duplicating machine we can-use," he said. All other expenses probably will come out of his own pocket.

"No big budget, no Peter Behr campaign for me," he said.

MUSTARD plans to involve youth, especially students at Tamalpais High School, although White hopes to branch out to other schools later. A junior at Tamalpais, he describes himself as a "radical who wants to achieve change within the system."

Some of the ideas for MUSTARD-sponsored activities include a debate between opposing candidates, round-table discussions among students, an appeal for help from the Mill Valley and Marin County youth commissions, and door-to-door precinct work if the group gathers enough supporters.

"We'd like to use Tam High as our base, but I'm not sure that the administration would let us," he said. "They aren't openly hostile to us, but I have the feeling they'll just try to ignore us quietly."

White said he is disappointed in Gov. Ronald Reagan, especially his attitude toward youth and his hard-line policy toward student protest.

"Reagan has taken a pretty stupid view on student riots. His approach obviously isn't working," he said. "I don't condone violence, but I do understand it. Unruh has different ideas about stopping campus destruction."

These ideas, White said, include understanding the causes of disorder and treating them, not sending in troops to attack the mere symptoms.

He feels that the Republicans have "too many vested interests. They're more concerned about protecting their money than helping other people.

"The rich don't notice that there's something wrong with the system. It's the poor people who want change," he said.

Admitting that "politics is my consuming interest," White said that he always wonders "what the motivations of politicians are. If we can discover their motives we can understand them a lot more."

In the event that none of his candidates wins — and they include Joseph Forrest for the Assembly, Michael Peevey for the state senator and William Bennett for the state Board of Equalization as well as Unruh — White doesn't plan to abandon politics.

"I can accept defeat," he said. "In fact, I've never played on a winning baseball team, I always voted for the school candidate who lost and the last winning candidate I worked for was my father when he was elected to the city council in 1964. Defeat and I are good friends."

14-Year-Old Georgian Is Miss American Teen-Ager

FORT LEE, N.J. (UPI)— Kimberley Dianne Graham of Morrow, Ga., is the new Miss American Teen-Ager, and along with her crown early today she received a shiny new car-which she'll have to wait two years to drive.

The 14-year-old ninth grader at Babb Junior High school also won an estimated $20,000 in trips and prizes, but under Georgia law she'll have to be 16 before she get's to drive her new car. She says she'll let her mother have it for the time being.

Kimberley, who has green eyes and black hair, was chosen from 51 finalists at Palisades Amusement Park in a contest which began with 250,000 hopefuls from across the nation. Miss American Teenager is chosen from girls between the ages of 13 and 17.

The winner is a student of ballet who enjoys music and has won awards in dancing back in Georgia. An excellent student, Kimberley has also won prizes at state 4-H exhibitions and science fairs.

The 51 finalits chose Miss Washington,D.C., Denise Marcel Glenn, 16, as "Miss Congeniality".

The winner receives a chance to appear in a bit part on ABC-TV's "General Hospital" television series, a roundingtrip with her parents to Hollywood, and thousands of dollars in gifts, clothing, contracts, plus the car.

Spray Protectors To Be Required

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Drivers who fear that moment of blindness when a curtain of water hits their windshield while passing on a rainy highway may get some help from the National Highway Safety Bureau.

The bureau proposed Thursday all trucks, buses, cars and other highway vehicles be equipped with spray protectors behind their rear wheels as of Jan. 1, 1972.

The bureau will accept comments on the proposal until Dec. 3, after which it will decide whether to put it into effect.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazine and the Parents' Magazine. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael Library.

FAMILY

"Hello Dolly" — Adaptation of Broadway hit. Barbra Streisand stars as a conniving matchmaker, in the 1900's, who has her eyes on wealthy, crusty Walter Matthau. There are lavish sets and costumes and much singing for Streisand fans.

"Journey to the Far Side of the Sun" — British science fiction set 100 years in the future tells of a space trip to a planet that is a mirror image of earth. Special effects and photography are excellent.

"Jungle Book" — Kipling's tale of an East Indian boy reared in the jungle by a family of wolves is brought to life in a full-length animated cartoon by Disney. A delight for the young at heart.

"Love Bug" — A little car with human feelings becomes the devoted friend of a discouraged racing car driver. Their adventures are a delight.

"Out-of-Towners" — Very broad satire of hazards of New York life and misadventures of a small city businessman who brings his wife along for a job interview. Hilarious comedy.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Airport" — Gripping story, during a paralyzing blizzard, of the workings of a large airport. A large jet is stuck, blocking a runway that is desperately needed to land a disabled plane. Outstanding star-studded cast. Buildup is so intense that it may be too exciting for younger children.

"Darling Lili" — Combination comic romance and espionage story of World War I with Julie Andrews as an English music hall star, who is also a German spy. Romance is predictable and pace of film slow moving but the songs are memorable.

"Five Man Army' — A professional thief recruits four bandits during the 1914 Revolution in old Mexico to steal a train that is transporting a half million dollars. Plot is treated in such a farcical manner that the violence and brutal action don't seem real. Photography is excellent and ending a complete surprise.

"Kelly's Heros" — A World War II satirical melodrama about a group of misfits who rob a German bank of 16 million in gold bullion. The violence is well laced with comedy and humor and several subplots give large cast parts to play.

"Norwood" — A Texas ex-marine, after duty in Vietnam, goes to New York in hopes of starting a career as a country and western singer. His encounters with several odd people leaves him a wiser man. Well-written script with same kind of humor as in True Grit.

"Paint Your Wagon" — A lusty, irreverent script is the frame work for a musical set in a mining camp during Gold Rush days. Elaborately mounted broad comedy, raucous and at times tasteless, it is not suitable for young children.

"Patton" — An unusually well-made film with a brilliant characterization by George C. Scott. There is very strong dialogue.

"Sterile Cuckoo" — A kooky college girl and a boy who is square and serious. Their love affair and first sex experience are told with simplicity and insight. Acting is excellent.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Last Grenade" — British melodrama seems contrived and lacks excitement. A group of mercenaries are betrayed by one of their own men and they stalk the traitor through the jungles seeking revenge. Excessive use of blood and gore is unnecessary and repulsive. Love story is so corny it is laughable.

"Two Miles for Sister Sara" — A prostitute masquerading as a nun and an American mercenary meet in the badlands during the time when Mexican guerillas were attempting to chase the French out of their country. Plot is unconveing and language is foul and dialogue dull and acting below par.

"The Virgin and the Gypsy" — D.H. Lawrences story of a free-spirited girl in the 1920's who tries to escape the confines of her family. A handsome gypsy becomes the object of her erotic fantasies. Although there is nudity, it is handled tastefully and the photography is lyrical.

"Woodstock Festival" — All aspects of the three days of this happening held in August 1969 are recorded in a three-hour documentary with a half million young people involved. Color photography, sound, creative editing are outstanding. Because of actions, the nudity and obscene language parents should decide since film is restricted.

ADULTS ONLY

"Honeymoon Killers" — This sick, amateurish attempt to make a film based upon an actual case fails miserably. A couple in the lonely heart racket get involved in murder. Acting and the dialogue hit an all time low.

"M-A-S-H" — Hilarious, subtle anti-war comedy of three army surgeons who develop outlandish life-style to survive the gore that passes before their eyes. Sex, nudity and profanity.

Course For Teachers On Problem Children

A class for teachers seeking insight into dealing with learning difficulties and emotional or mental distress in children has been scheduled at the Community Mental Health Center at Marin General Hospital for 15 Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning Sept. 23.

Ambulance Collections Plan Backed

The Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council has endorsed a recommendation that Marin County act as a collection agency for the county's ambulance company.

The recommendation was made Wednesday night by the council's ambulance subcommittee as part of a slate of changes to Marin's ambulance contract.

The recommendation, according to Michael Ingerman, council secretary, are expected to be considered Tuesday by the board of supervisors.

Ingerman said the company is now paid a flat rate of $14.95 by the county for every unpaid bill incurred under the county contract. The company must then try to collect the balance, and pay back the county if successful.

He explained that the recommendation would shift the burden of collecting onto the county, but an as yet unspecified flat rate would remain.

Other recommendations include the establishment of an ambulance driver and attendant certification program, a guaranteed minimum of $1,000 per month of county business, creation of a "stretcher-rate" to encourage the ambulance company to carry more than one passenger per vehicle, thus reducing the number of ambulances needed during an emergency, a reimbursement to the company for "dry-runs" to be based on mileage and base cost, and an option for the county to either cancel the contract or withhold funds for contract violations by the ambulance company.

Book Sale To Benefit Marin Free Library

A two-day book sale to benefit the Marin County Free Library opened today at the Cooperative Shopping Center, 71 Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera.

The sale, which will run through 5 p.m. tomorrow, includes about 10,000 books in all categories, according to the Friends of the Marin County Library which is sponsoring the event.

'Stalag 17' To Open With Benefit Show

The Novato Community Players' production of Stalag 17, directed by Paul Terry, will open today with curtain time 8:30 p.m. at the Novato Community House.

A drama with comedy touches, Stalag 17 is a play about life in a World War II German prison camp.

"Stalag 17 is not a message play. It is simply a production that, when ended, leaves the audience very happy to be alive," Terry said.

The show will also play tomorrow, Sunday and Sept. 18 and 19, with two productions' revenue donated to local service organizations.

Opening night will be a benefit show, sponsored by the Novato Civic Foundation, to raise funds to improve Novato's Pioneer Memorial Park. Tickets for that performance only are available from Lorene Bunker, 26 Truman Drive, Novato, from any member of the civic foundation or at the door.

Our Lady of Loretto Council, Knights of Columbus Lodge No. 3950, has taken over the Sept. 19 performance. Tickets are available from Gino R. Westcott, 341 San Luis Way, Novato.

Champagen and soft drinks will be available at all performances, Terry said, and hors d'oeuvres will be served for the audience, cast and staff following the opening night performance.

Written by Donald Bevan and Edmund Trzcinski, Stalag 17 was first produced May 8, 1951 by Jose Ferrer.

Albert Richter is producer and Edward Kinchla Jr., who was a prisoner in Stalag Luft III during World War II is technical advisor for the play.

The cast includes Michael Parker, who recently moved to San Francisco from Novato, as Sefton; Stanley Buchanan as Price, the security man; Donald Leaf as tSosh; Donald McGillis as Harry Shapiro; John Bernardi as Hoffy; Joseph Jacob as corporal Schultz; Michael Jones as Horney and Roy Mathias as Reed.

Newcomers in the cast include Craig Waller as Herb, Wilson Clymer as Duke, Albert Wright as Marko, Reed Griffin as Dunbar, Rue Le Mar as the gestapo captain, Alan Marney of San Rafael as the Geneva man and Thomas Meins and William Tomsky as German guards.

The holwer monkey gives a roaring cry that can be heard several miles in the jungle, says World Book Encyclopedia.

Bolinas-Stinson Beach Vote On School Bonds Tuesday

For the third time in three years residents of the Bolinas-Stinson School District will go to the polls Tuesday to decide the fate of a bond issue which would provide funds for a one-campus school in Bolinas.

Twice in 1967 and 1968 voters have narrowly rejected similar bond issues and overcrowded conditions at Bolinas School have now reached the critical stage, according to the district superintendent and several teachers.

Supt. Lester M. Horning explained that a May arson fire heavily damaged Stinson School and made it unusable for this year. Consequently, he said, 185 youngsters are crowded into Bolinas School this fall. Last year the school housed 110 students.

Because of severe overcrowding — which could affect the quality of education in the district — and because the amount being asked is less than in the past, Horning is hopeful the bond issue will be passed this time around.

"I have had good feelings from the people I have talked with," the superintendent said, but added soberly: "Of course people who oppose it may not be communicating with me."

He said the district is asking for $210,000 which would go to purchase 2.3 acres of property adjacent to the present school site and for remodeling of the old Bolinas School buildings and some new construction. In past elections, the district asked for $275,000 and $350,000.

Horning said the money would be used to relocate four portable classrooms now at Bolinas School and provide more work space between the portables. In addition, he said it would pay for construction of a new classroom and a multi-purpose room, plus some expansion of existing play fields.

If passed, the bond issue would raise the district's total tax rate by 16.5 cents, from $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.465, Horning said. "This means that a person who owns a $25,000 home will pay about $9.20 cents a year to finance these needed school additions," he added.

The superintendent said that, with all the district's students at Bolinas School this year, the situation is "very cramped, both inside and outside. According to Horning "this fact makes it very difficult to plan an optimum educational program."

Several district teachers concurred and expressed their own concerns about over crowding. "It makes education difficult," Mrs. Nancy Sullivan said. "The kids will be fine until winter because we are holding some classes outdoors now, but this cannot continue once the rainy season begins. The need is desperate," she emphasized.

Teacher Linda O'Neil said the lack of proper buildings is "inhibiting our creative potential and the children are getting cheated." According to William Niman, the buildings "simply are not adequate; a number were designed as temporary buildings and now they seem to have become permanent."

Superintendent Horning urged voters to look to the future in making their decision. "The area is growing somewhat and the problem will become more intense as time goes on," he said. "And the longer we wait to build, the more the construction will cost."

Atlhough the California Supreme Court has ruled that the requirement for two-thirds approval of bond issues is contrary to the 14th amendment of the Constitution, the district will make no attempt to sell the bonds if it does not receive two-thirds approval Tuesday.

Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney has advised school officials the state court decision cannot be regarded as final, since the issue is before the U.S. Supreme Court. Consequently, the statuary provision for two-thirds approval still applies and a majority is still not accepted by the state's bond attorneys which must certify the bonds.

Decision On Park, Rec Center Bond Plan Delayed

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission last night postponed until Oct. 8 the question of whether to place a proposed recreation center bond issue on a future ballot.

No discussion on the matter was held last night because of the lateness of the hour.

Recreation department director Andrew J. Snyder also told the commission that beginning this fall there would be no more free after school programs because the city schools had withdrawn their $25,000 support of the recreation program. Instead, said Snyder, minimum fees would be charged for the classes in arts and crafts, baton twirling, dance and guitar.

Youth Suspected In Burglary

Novato police said Reginald Bruce Johnson of 1541 Hill Road was arrested about noon at the police station after being quizzed about some incidents. He was booked into Marin County jail in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear in municipal court today.

Police said Johnson allegedly twice took auto parts from the 1290 Lynwood Drive home of an acquaintance, 16-year-old Donald Clark in mid-August. The grand theft count arose from the theft of a ring from the same home, police said.

Police could give no information about when two alleged rapes occurred, but indicated the victims were acquaintances of Johnson.

Date Corrected

Ferry service between Sausalito and San Francisco, until resumed last month by the Golden Gate Bridge District, previously was discontinued in 1941, not in 1940 as reported incorrectly yesterday in the Independent-Journal.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Escalope De Veau Is A Secret Specialty At Le Chalet Basque

By and large, the Marin restaurant business drops off slightly during the middle of summer.

Home barbecues are partly responsible for the midyear dropoff. During balmy weather this American pastime has a bigger following than any single restaurant. And the fans keep the coals glowing as long as the mercury is comfortable.

The rise and fall of customers is not uniform in all restaurants however. The popular places still hold up at ebbtide, attracting a fair share of customers throughout the week and year. Weekend traffic may be especially busy.

One of these busier places is Le Chalet Basque in Santa Venetia. It may fool you. For a time only a few tables are occupied. Then voila — the next time you look around — most of them are filled. Incidentally, when this happens, note that the spirits of the diners seem to lift and there is more gaiety.

For something different at Le Chalet Basque, try the escalope de veau. It's not on the regular menu, but you can ask for it. Escalope de veau is the French equivalent of what the Italians call veal scallopini.

The difference between the two is about the same difference that exists generally between French and Italian cooking. The Italians like a robust flavor. The French lean toward a certain sublety in the sauce. Your preference for one or the other may be a matter of whether you're hot or cool, tired or sparkling. In any event I'm sure you'll enjoy Le Chalet Basque's escalope de veau.

ZIM'S in Kentfield — and Corte Madera, too — now has a new assortment of desserts besides its traditional apple pie. Eclairs, Napoleons, tarts, cakes and other pies have popped up on the menu.

LUNCHEON SERVICE at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross will resume next Tuesday, when the Pathfinders reopen their season in the tearoom overlooking the garden and creek area.

Two lunchean seatings at noon and 1 p.m. will feature cool salads and hot breads, home-made dessert and beverage at $2.

Club groups should book space in advance at the Garden Center office. Special party arrangements for other days (besides Tuesdays and Thursdays) or evening can be arranged by calling Mrs. Theodore Martin at 240 Forbes Avenue, San Rafael.

The Pathfinders will continue volunteer service in staffing the Garden Path Gift Shop and operating guided tours of the center grounds on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

SENOR ALFREDO'S MEXICAN RESTAURANT in San Anselmo has added taquitos filled with carne asada.

Al Barthel's recipe calls for the meat filling to be steamed and shredded and then the entire taquito is fried and covered with guacamole sauce. He serves them at 45 cents each — or a plate of three of them with beans for $1.95.

IN THESE DAYS, if a man tells his wife he's going to a symposium for the evening she'll either let him go without a murmur and probably admire his cultural inclinations — or look at him with suspicion.

In ancient Rome he'd have been lucky to get out of the house with his toga in one piece. To the Romans a symposium meant one thing — a real dinger of a drinking party.

After it was all over the proper hangover cure was considered to be cabbage, either raw or cooked.

Co-owners Gordon Jones and Dick Templeton of Rubini's in Fairfax are doing a big outside catering job for KSFO disc jockeys Terry McGovern of Sausalito and Carter B. Smith of Tiburon.

The latter two are taking 125 single men and an equal number of single women who have lived for six months or less in the Bay Area for an all day cruise on San Francisco Bay. What else may happen insofar as matchmaking is concerned is in the hands of fate and persaps in the cooperative frame of mind engendered by the 250 lunches Gordon and Dick will prepare.

FRITS VERBURG, who owned once the former L'Europe Restaurant on the San Rafael Miracle Mile, and later became the chef at The Rafters (Edgewater Inn Restaurant) in Corte Madera, has a new post in San Francisco.

He is chef at 56 Gold Street, which was recently purchased by Don Banks, former owner of Houndstooth Inn in San Rafael. Lunch is served daily except Saturday. Dinners are from 6 to 11 p.m.

YOU'LL NEVER BE a really good judge of wines until you can remember each wine you tasted. It isn't easy, especially if you have been sampling several wines that are similar.

You should use three of your senses to help you remember - sight, smell and taste.

Hold the wine to the light, in an untinted, unadorned glass. Examine its color and clarity.

Smell the wine's aroma and bouquet.

Sip and hold it in your mouth for a brief moment. After you swallow it, does it have an aftertaste?

If you are sampling more than one wine, clear your palate between tastings with bread and water.

And if you still don't remember — start all over again.

PETE CLUTE of San Anselmo, co-owner of Earthquake McGoon's in San Francisco is looking all over for washboards for his band.

It seems that these old corrugated scrubbers are hard to come by — particularly the ones that scrub in the key of C.

If you have one, or even an A-flat scrubber, it will get you free admission into Pete's place and a vote of thanks from Turk Murphy and his jazz band.

The Louisiana Purchase from France was consummated April 30, 1803.

Union Leader Files Libel Suit Over Mafia Linking

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A teamsters union official filed a $600,000 libel suit Thursday charging a Look Magazine article incorrectly linked him with the mafia.

The same article is the basis for a $12 million libel action filed by Mayor Joseph Alioto. That suit is pending.

Jack Goldberger, the union official, said the article suggested he "met with members of the mafia or cosa nostra for the purpose of obtaining control of the first San Francisco Bank."

The suit also says the article last September libeled him by identifying him as "the west coast teamster official who had meetings with the most influential active members of the mafia on the West Coast."

Goldberger charged the Magazine's "wanton and reckless disregard for the truth" damages his personal, social and business standing and reputation.

Also named as defendants were the article's coauthors, Richard Carlson and Lance Brisson.

Judge Bruce Thompson, in the Alioto action, denied a motion by the magazine to rule that there is no evidence in the article published with "reckless disregard for the truth."

The federal court judge was acting in a pretrial move. Jurors were unable to reach a decision on all points in the first trial of Alioto's suit.

State Funds Assured For North Campus; Master Plan Approved

State matching funds for construction of the College of Marin's north bay campus was assured yesterday by action in Sacramento, Supt.-President John A. Grasham announced last night at a special meeting of the community college district trustees.

The Coordinating Council for Higher Education, meeting in Sacramento, unanimously approved a master plan for a 5,000-student campus on 333 acres at the intersection of San Jose Boulevard and Sunset Boulevard in Novato.

Approval by the coordinating council was needed for the college to qualify for state matching funds for construction on the campus.

The policy of the Coordinating Council for Higher Education has been that a community college campus should be planned for a capacity of 10,000 students. Grasham said the big question had been whether the council would approve a plan calling for a capacity of 5,000 students.

With the last state hurdle overcome, the next step is passage of a $16.9 million bond issue on the November ballot, said Grasham. The money will be used for construction of the North Marin campus and completion of buildings on the present 77-acre campus in Kentfield. If the bond issue is approved, the state will provide $8.26 million in matching funds, Fleming reported.

The Marin Community College District board also:

RAPID TRANSIT — Heard Golden Gate Bridge District engineers Robert E. Shields and Y. T. Sasaki discuss four alternate routes under study for rapid transit from San Francisco through Marin. One of the routes, of special interest to the college, would bring an elevated structure from Mill Valley, Corte Madera, Larkspur, past the College of Marin and on to San Anselmo and the Civic Center. Shields said public hearings will be held before a route is decided.

ARTS BUILDING — Set another meeting tentatively for Oct. 8 to get cost figures from architect Joseph Feil on these two possibilities: 1. Accommodate art facilities in the existing art building next to the fine arts building and put sculpture in another building and an outdoor court. 2. Leaving all art facilities in the present building but improving the interior and adding outdoor courts with covered areas.

A second ferryboat soon may be plying the waters between Sausalito and San Francisco.

The prospect of a second vessel was raised today when Golden Gate Bridge District directors learned that a luxurious new ferry may be available for at least a six-month charter. Directors promptly voted unanimously to have the district's staff investigate such a charter.

The vessel is the $2.5 million Avalon, designed by the bridge district's naval architect, Philip F. Spaulding of Seattle.

The Avalon, a 165-foot, 500-passenger craft, is being used in a cruise service for tourists from San Pedro. It was intended to have been used between San Pedro and Catalina Island, but operators of the Avalon have been unable to get a license for that service.

The bridge district may be able to charter the Avalon until the Catalina license is approved, now expected next spring, according to Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis.

The vessel is powered by gas turbines and cruises at about 20 knots. The district's ferryboat, the Golden Gate, cruises at about 15 knots.

Leonoudakis said that a six-month charter would give the district valuable experience wits gas turbines, as well as provide a back-up vessel in case the Golden Gate conked out again.

The suggestion that the Avalon be leased was made by L. E. Castner of Sonoma County, who rode on it last week. Castner has been sharply critical of the single ferryboat operation, arguing that a back-up vessel was needed.

No cost estimate was available for the charter.

Mustang Stolen

While he was out of the city on business yesterday, someone took his 1965 bronze Ford Mustang, license NKU 390, and $465 in business and household items from his home at 236 Center Street, San Rafael, Larry Leon Russell, reported to police.

IF YOU SEE A BIG LIZARD DON'T PANIC

If you see a yard-long lizard running around in Mill Valley, the Edward Faber family would very much appreicate it if you'd let them know.

Chances aer it's the golden tegu that disappeared from the Faber home at 145 Marlin Avenue last night.

The South American jungle animal is frightening to behold but quite harmless, Phyllis Faber said. "In fact, it's very shy. It would retreat very quickly if threatened," she said.

Pedro (that's what they call it) is about three feet long, black with white splotches. It probably got out an open door last night as the Fabers, just arrived from Connecticut, moved into their new home.

Notary Issue

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The office of the secretary of state today announced issuance of a natary public commission to Floris M. Mickley of 11 Lillian Lane, San Rafael.

Boy, 9, Is Found Dead In West Marin

Sean Joseph Rector of Fallon died from a shot fired into his ear, Keith Craig, coroner's investigator said today.

The boy, who lived with his divorced father, Robert Rector, and another man, Gerald Wiebe, had walked to a grocery store in Fallon with the men about 5 p.m., Craig said. After being bought a treat, he told them he would go home while his father kept a doctor's appointment.

At home, the boy apparently used a chair to climb up to the top shelf of a dining room cupboard, where he took out a .22-caliber pistol and shells kept there by his father.

Craig theorized the child sat on the front steps shot at cans in the front yard and then, for some reason, pointed the gun into his ear and fired it.

The father said that the child was happy and "had no problems" and had not been despondent.

Three other children in the family live with the boy's mother, Susan, in Upland, San Bernardino County, Craig said.

The boy's body was found by two young men, Greg DeCaro of Fallon and William Rossi of Isla Vista, who had gone to the Rector home to ask permission to shoot .22-caliber pistols on the property.

Funeral arrangements were pending at the Redwood Chapel in Novato.

Miskimen Still Holds Council, Board Seats

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in its front page report on Marin's representative to the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District Board in reporting John A. Miskiman had resigned from both the board and the San Rafael City Council.

Councilman Miskiman last spring presented his resignation to the city council but later rescinded it and continues to serve.

12 Apply For Rights Position

Twelve applications were submitted by yesterday's deadline for the $1,000 per month job of Director of the Marin Human Right's Department.

County personnel director Maren Rinne said her staff will review the applications, and if enough are qualified, an oral board will be set up to interview the qualified candidates.

A screening committee of the human rights commission will then make a recommendation for appointment by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The position of human rights director has been vacant since Austin J. Thompson quit under fire last June.

New Height Limit For Ferry Building Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Planning Commission adopted a 550-foot height limit Thursday for new building between the Ferry Building and the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

The move was sought to encourage U.S. Steel Corp. to build a 40-story office building and a 1,000-room hotel in that area.

Super
Turf
Builder

Do something for your environment this weekend!

It's simple. All you do is fill a spreader with Scotts new SUPER TURF BUILDER and take a stroll over your lawn. Super Turf Builder provides twice as much greening power as Scotts famous Turf Builder. It goes right to work on grass or dichondra—makes them green up, thicken up and stay that way longer.

Right now is a great time to spread new Super Turf Builder too. Not only because it will help your lawn "bounce back" from the ravages of summer, but also because it's on special sale now. So this weekend why not join the movement to better the environment? Right in your own front yard.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

If At First You Do Succeed, Try A Second Good Play

In most hands of any difficulty at all you can assure your contract by making just one intelligent play. In the rare hand you may have to look for a second good play after the first has succeeded. Don't begrudge the effort: if at first you do succeed, try , try again.

LEAD TO DUMMY

West leads the three of hearts, and dummy's queen is covered by the king. You win with the ace and see the danger of leading a club from your own hand.

East would be glad to capture a club honor with hie ace. He would return a heart to clear that suit. Then the bad club break would limit you to eight tricks: two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs. Whenever you led a spade, the defenders would take the ace of spades and the rest of the hearts to defeat the contract.

The safe plan is to lead the low diamond to dummy's ten at the second trick in order to lead a low club from the dummy. If East plays the ace of clubs, you can play low and take four club tricks later. You can run 10 tricks before the opponents know what hit them.

If West had the ace of clubs, he would capture the queen but could not safely resume the attack on hearts. You could develop a spade trick before the opponents could get five defensive tricks.

NEXT STEP

When the queen of clubs wins, you cannot afford to lead another club. Enter dummy with the queen of diamonds to lead a low spade. If East steps up with the ace, you are sure of the two spade tricks you need. If East plays low, your queen will win; and then you can resume the clubs to develop your ninth trick.

Even if West had the ace of spades, and captured your queen of spades, he could not make a damaging attack. You would have time to get your club tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ K 10 5 3
♠ — Q
♦ Q 10 5
♣ K J 9 5 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

The hand is not quite worth an opening bid. You have 11 points in high cards and two points for the singleton, but should deduct one or two points since a singleton queen is simply not worth two points in high cards and another two points for shortness.

Branson School Opening Is Set

Katharine Branson School in Ross will start its 51st year Wednesday with an opening assembly at 8:30 a.m. for alumnae, parents and friends.

Students representing 14 states and several foreign countries will attend the girls' school this year, Headmaster H. Leonard Richardson has reported.

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, Sept. 11, the 254th day of 1970 with 111 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1941 all members of President John Tyler's cabinet resigned except Secretary of tSate Daniel Webster. They were protesting the veto of a banking bill.

In 1940 in the early days of World War II, Buckingham Palace in London was damaged by German bombers.

In 1963 all 81 aboard an Indian airlines Viscount died when the plane crashed near New Delhi.

A thought for the day: Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "Life is not so short but that there is always time for courtesy."

Immigration Head Giving Up Post

Cecil W. Fullilove of Greenbrae, will retire on Oct. 31 as district director of immigration in San Francisco, a position he has held since 1963.

Fullilove, 51, started his career with the Immigration Service in 1941 as a border patrolman at El Paso, Tex.

After his retirement, he will take a position of general manager of a San Francisco realty investment company. He resides at 1 La Cuesta Drive.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Switch To Growth Fund Not A Benefit

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own 1,430 shares of Massachusetts Investors Trust as a result of a $15,000 investment in 1958. Because the fund is large it doesn't seem to make much head-way. I like mutual funds and hesitate to move into another company altogether. What do you think of switching to Massachusetts Investors Growth Fund? — A.W.

A. The $15,000 which you invested twelve years ago has a net asset value of $17,500 on today's market. Apparently you have taken all distributions in cash through the years rather than reinvesting in shares. The switch to Massachusetts Growth may not be as advantageous as you imagine, if past performance is any indication. A comparison of a $10,000 investment made in 1960, with all distributions taken in cash, shows a value 10 years later approximately 60 per cent greater for Massachusetts Growth Fund. However, dividends and capital gains distributions would have made up one-third of the difference in value at the end of the decade. Furthermore the drop in net asset value in the first seven months of this year would also reduce the disparity, since your shares have declined 17.5 per cent compared with a 26.5 per cent decline for Massachusetts Growth. In the most recent twelve months you have received about $280 more in dividend income and $300 more from capital gains distributions than if you had owned Massachusetts Growth.

Q. I understand that General Foods has bought Viviane Woodward which is growing fast. Do you think I should buy in light of this? — S.G.

A. This development is only one of several reasons for purchasing this quality growth issue. Viviane Woodward, a door-to-door cosmetics firm, had sales last year of $7.3 million, less than one-half of 1 per cent of General Foods. More important, however, is the company's high — over 12 per cent — profit margin. This, combined with General Food's aggressive merchandising methods — distributors have been increased by 50 per cent so far this year — could add to the long-range growth potential in these shares.

NEW TORONADO — For 1971, the wheelbase on Oldsmobile's front-drive Toronado is 122 inches — three inches longer than previous models. It is a roomier car — particularly in front and rear seat shoulder room where measurements are increased over five inches. Cars will be sold in Marin County at Scripture Oldsmobile, Inc., San Rafael.

DODGE NEW COMPACT — This little Demon is in the Dodge compact famly for 1971. Smaller than its 111-inch wheelbase Dart "big brother," it will be available in two series — a standard two-door and a performance version, the Demon 340 shown above. Cars will be on sale in Marin at Marin Dodge, San Rafael and Nave Dodge, Novato.

Fiat-Citroen Link To Challenge VW

BONN, GERMANY (GF) — Can Volkswagen of West Germany keep its position as Europe's biggest auto manufacturer in view of plans for a closer link-up between Fiat of Italy and France's Citroen? The question is heard here frequently nowadays.

In 1969, Fiat and Citroen together produced 1,965,000 passenger cars and trucks, some 60,000 more than Volkswagen in the same period.

In terms of these figures at least, a Fiat-Citroen grouping could replace VW as the world's third biggest auto maker after General Motors and Ford.

In Germany itself, VW should stay at the top for the foreseeable future. Last year, the company increased sales by 19 per cent to 3.8 billion dollars. This year sales are expected to climb to 4.3 billion dollars.

Joseph Van Poppelen Jr., formerly vice-president and general manager of the division was named a group vice-president.

Stocks Rise During Mixed Turnover

Shortly before the final bell, the Dow Jones Industrial Average was up 1.09 at 761.84. Of the 1,554 issues on the tape, advances topped declines, 771 to 479.

Turnover around 11 3-4-million shares compared with 11,900,000 shares Thursday.

Demand for stocks was restrained by normal profit taking following the sharp mid-August rise and by a number of news factors, including the threat of strikes in the automotive and rail industries at midnight Monday and concern over the airline hijackings in the Middle East.

At the close, trading was mixed. DuPont closed at 122 up 1-4 General Electric 80 1-4 up 1-4; General Motors 72 1-8 up 1-4; IBM 268 3-4 up 1-2; Southern Pacific 29 7-8 off 3-8; Standard Oil of New Jersey 64 3-4 off 1-2; and U.S. Steel 31 5-8 off 1-4.

One analyst said belief that a cut in the prime bank lending rate is close at hand helped divert traders' attention from an otherwise unfriendly news environment.

Auto stocks generally moved narrowly, while a few point-sized gainers were noted in the oils and electronics. Airlines and chemicals showed scattered strength.

Among the most active issues were Federal National Mortgage (Fannie Mae), Marathon Oil and Natomas. Marathon traded a block of 170,200 shares at 30, off 3-4.

Packing Resumed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Universal Container Corp. announced resumption of operations at the Texas Meat Packers Inc. livestock slaughtering facility in Lubbock, Tex. Activities at the facility were suspended on July 22 because of economic conditions. Texas Meat Packers is a subsidiary of Universal Container.

Construction Of Shopping Area Planned

Construction on a major shopping center in the central business area of Petaluma is expected to get under way next spring.

Walter Kiechhefer of Ignacio, developer of the Pacheco Plaza Shopping Center in the community, said he has completed acquisition of approximately seven acres on East Washington Street, near Redwood and Levee Streets, Petaluma and is going ahead with his architectural plans and leasing for 95,000 square feet under roof to be completed by Christmas of 1971.

Kieckhefer said he plans on biulding a large continuous structure to contain a major supermarket, a large drug store and a number of "shoppers' goods" stores. There would also be an additional freestanding building to house a bank and he said a savings and loan company possibly could be among the tenants. The remaining ground would be used for common ground and parking. Architectural plans are now being prepared by Mitsuru Tada of San Francisco.

Agency Questions Lee's Purchase

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The Missouri Public Service Commission has rejected a plea by Lee National Corp. to dismiss proceedings initiated by the commission inquiring into the firm's right to acquire and own over 10 per cent of the stock of Kansas City Southern Industries, Inc. Kansas City Southern disclosed the action.

The public agency, which opens a formal hearing Oct. 2, wants to know whether Lee National's purchase of more than 20 pre cent of the outstanding shares of Kansas City Southern violates a regulation requiring a company to obtain the commission's approval before acquiring or holding more than 10 per cent of the stock.

Two-Thirds 'Yes' Needed In Bond Elections Tuesday

Voters in two Marin school districts and one southern Sonoma district will ballot Tuesday on bond issues.

Only one of the elections — that in Bolinas-Stinson School District — involves a new bond issue. The others — in Mill Valley and Old Adobe districts — are on increasing the interest rate on previously approved issues from 5 per cent to 7 per cent.

The elections are being held at a time when the requirement for approval of bond issues is in considerable doubt. The California Supreme Court has held that requiring two-thirds favorable vote is unconstitutional. However, the matter is before the U.S. Supreme Court, and its ruling is not expected for several months, since it will not go into session until next month and is to hear cases involving school desegregation, the 18-year-old vote, and the death penalty before considering the two-thirds bond approval matter.

Because the state court's decision has been challenged, school districts have been advised by county counsels to proceed on the assumption that two-thirds approval still is required.

THE ISSUE in Bolinas-Stinson involves enlarging the Bolinas School property by one-quarter acre and building a new school there to replace the present Bolinas School and the abandoned Stinson Beach School. The district has been working toward this end for several years, but has failed to pass bond issues for the purpose.

The Bolinas-Stinson district undeniably needs new and better school facilities. Whether the issue is approved must hinge on whether the people of the district desire a single school. If they do, they should vote "yes" to make an adequate single school possible.

THE ISSUE BEFORE voters in the Mill Valley district in Marin and the Old Adobe district in the Petaluma area is very simple.

Neither case involves adding or relocating any facility not already approved in previous elections. It is simply a matter of making the bonds saleable so the money can be raised to complete projects already approved.

When the bond market early this year reached the point where school bonds no longer are saleable at 5 per cent interest, the state legislature raised the permissible rate to 7 per cent. However, a limit of 5 per cent was included in bond proposals at previous elections. Therefore, the districts must go back to the voters to get approval to sell the bonds at higher interest.

Even those voters who opposed the original plans for which the Mill Valley and Old Adobe bonds were authorized have little reason to balk at the interest increase. The issues were approved, the building programs have been started, and it would be impractical to abandon them now.

CORRECTION: In Tuesday's editorial, the projected speed of the SST (Super-sonic transport) was given as 800 miles per hour. This should have read 1,800 miles per hour. This would be 400 miles per hour greater than the speed made in a flight test by the French-British Concorde.

New Book Tells Full Story Of California Political History

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Every so often comes a book on California which has unlimited value as a reference volume, as well as being filled with interest and written readably.

Such is "The Rumble of California Politics, 1848-1970," published by John Wiley & Sons, Inc., New York, and written by a group of politicians and professors, as well as one newspaperman who had much to do with co-ordination of the work.

This newspaperman was Earl G. Waters, founder and former editor and manager of Western News Service, the predecessor of Capitol News Service. The other general editors were Royce D. Delmatier, chairman of the department of political science, and Clarence F. McIntosh, professor of history, both of Chico State College.

BOTH WATERS and Delmatier were state employees when they decided to write a book about California politics. Waters was chief of the division of investigation of the Department of Professional and Vocational Standards, and Delmatier headed one of the departments.

Both had their troubles when the Republicans took over from the Democrats and Ronald Reagan became governor.

The personal connection of the two with California politics, however, has no influence on the content of the book, which is a highly factual chronicle of events from 1848, the beginning, to 1970, by no means the end.

PERHAPS the book is ill-named, being called "the rumble" of California politics. As a matter of fact, the book is more a living history than a "rumble," beginning with the Indians and ending with the Republicans, who were in full power in 1970.

Probably in no book on California politics is there so much of the drama of life among the high and mighty rulers who made California history.

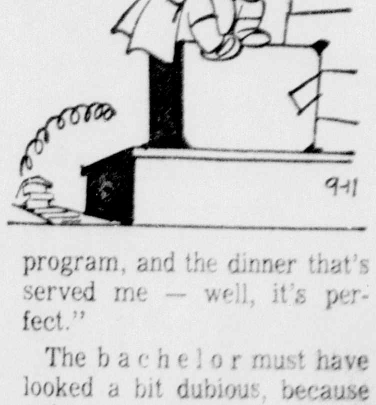
Not only are the chiefs dealt with in the book, but aside of those who played secondary roles make up a good part of the action. Thus names which might have been forgotten in the long and sometimes ponderous history of California are brought back to life.

Also, the age of "panaceas," including EPIC and "30 Dollars Every Thursday," is dealt with in detailed manner. This was a highly important era in California history, as it depicted in a measure how foolish people can get when they try to get something for nothing.

All in all, this is a book not only worth reading, but also worth possessing, as it is bound to settle many an argument over what happened when in California politics. The editors have done their work well, and the state is fortunate in having such an accurate chronicle available.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF



In Nancy Milford's "Zelda," the fascinating story of the Scott Fitzgeralds' madcap but ultimately disastrous careers, she tells how one day, traveling by train through Europe, the beautiful, irresponsible Zelda suddenly clutched her husband's arm and exclaimed, "Good God, Scott! We forgot the baby!"

A confirmed bachelor ran into an old pal who had deserted the ranks of the unmarried two months earlier and inquired, "Well, Dick, how's married life?"

"Wonderful!" enthused Dick. "You're a sucker not to try it. Every evening I come home to a house that's shiny and clean. My paper and slippers are laid out for me, the TV is turned to my favorite program, and the dinner that's served me — well, it's perfect."

The bachelor must have looked a bit dubious, because Bridegroom Dick hastened to add, "Maybe I forgot one detail: we're living with my mother."

(Frank Interlandi, who draws "Cynic's Corner," has suffered a heart attack. It is not known when he will be able to return to the drawing board.)

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Sept. 11, 1960

Bob Hope, 18-year-old Mill Valley resident, won the 50th running of the Dipsea Handicap Race in 47 minutes, 41 seconds.

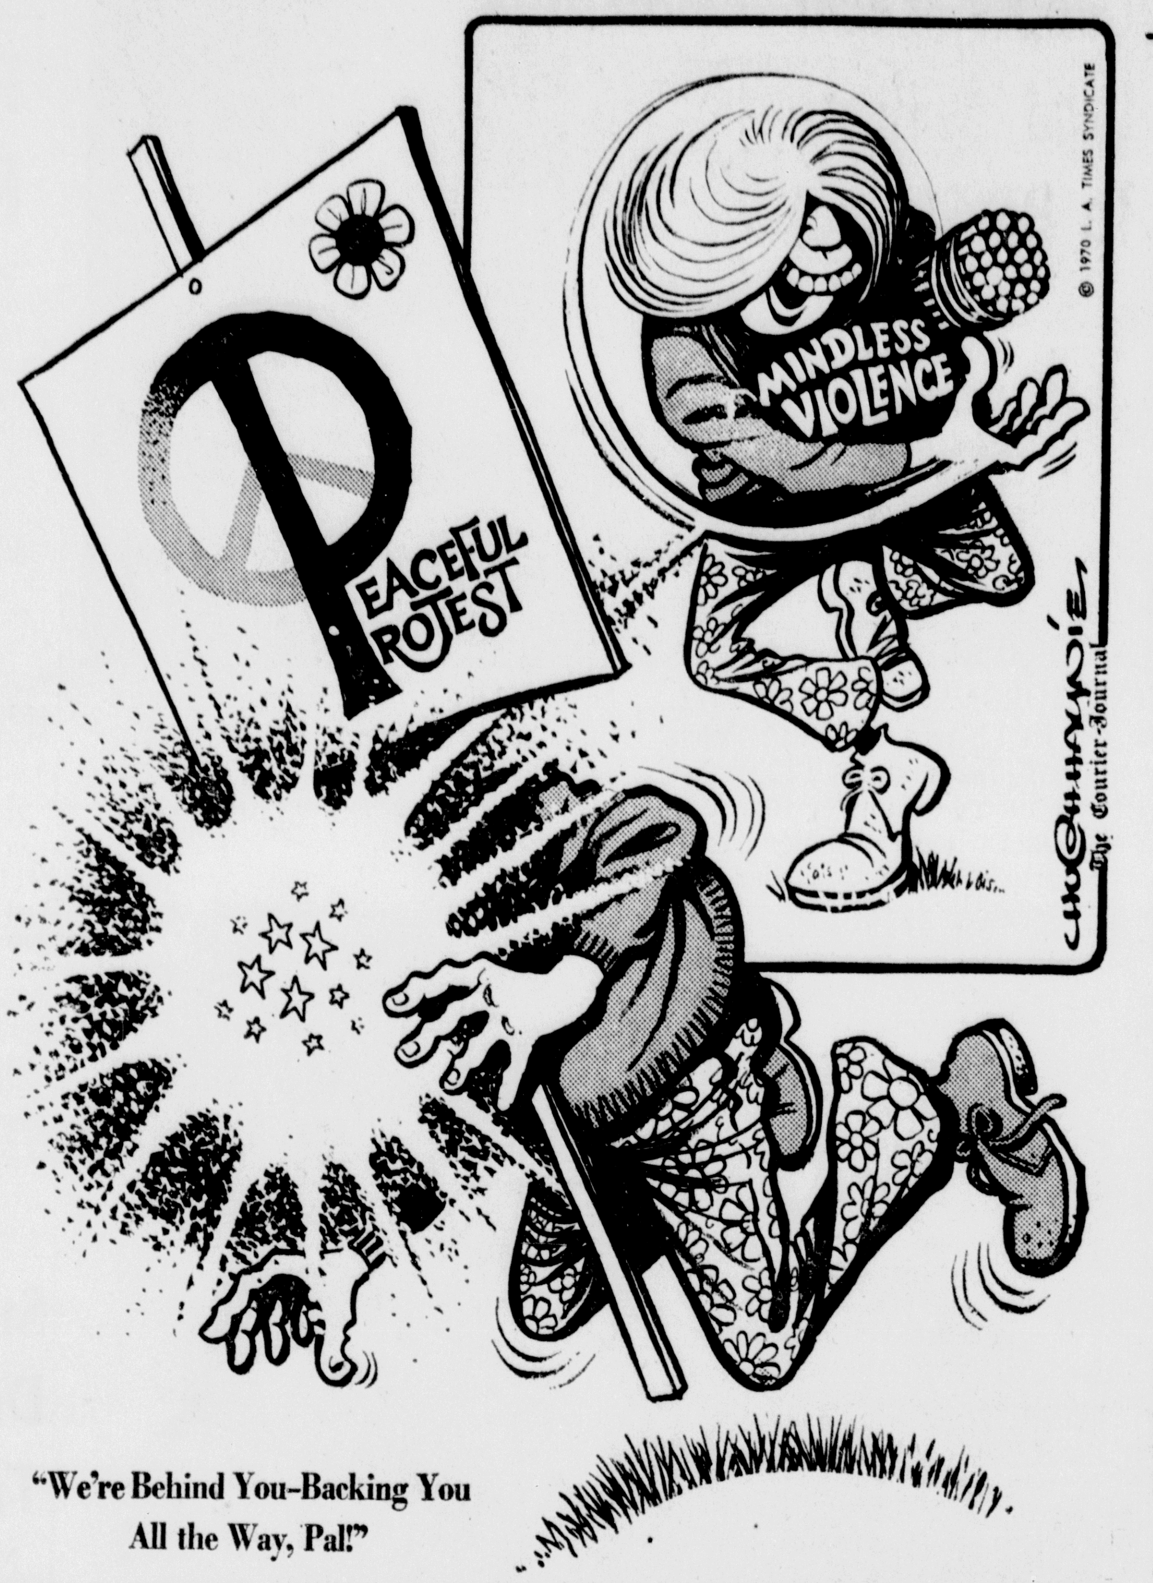
The Marin County Planning Commission approved overall rezoning of the Bolinas Mesa to "upgrade" its residential aspects.

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 11, 1950

Marin County supervisors asked the district attorney's office to draw up a loyalty oath for county employees.

Larkspur and Corte Madera city councils talked about agreeing on boundary lines between the two cities, but the session ended when tempers flared.



"We're Behind You-Backing You All the Way, Pal!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Plague Of Noisy, Reckless Drivers

Noisiest city in Marin County? Beautiful, tranquil Mill Valley is getting to be just that. They are the new breed of screwball drivers, who now flagrantly disregard all noise abatement laws. They drive recklessly with open cut-outs blasting, night or day.

Carmelita Avenue is a prime example of it. One dare not open their bedroom windows. The din emitted from these racy cars and motorcycles (makes it) impossible to get restful sleep, and it is getting consistently worse.

There are no traffic caution signs nor cross-walks for the adult pedestrian or their children who go to and from school . .

Our worthy mayor and members of our city council must be alerted to the dangers of this new crop of reckless drivers now taking over our narrow streets . . .

Our city traffic control is inadequate to handle this ever-growing menancing situation. We need more traffic officers.

ROBERT A. McLENNAN

Should Not Have To Plead For Pay

It is too bad the sheriff's department had to buy a full page ad Aug. 28. in the I.-J. appealing to the citizens of Marin to help them by writing their supervisors telling them how they feel about a raise of 15 per cent and other well deserved benefits.

I am not alone I am sure in writing my supervisor, nor perhaps in wondering at the irony of things: Alan Bruce was appointed by the supervisors and then he turns around and usurps them of all their power. So how much good our appeals to the supervisors will do remains to be seen.

Bruce has always been so generous with his own raises I am surprised he would stoop to dicker with the infinitesimal 15 per cent raise asked by our safety employees. God knows they are the most important people in their valuable service to this or any community.

Harmless Trap For Yellow Jackets

I would like to share with your readers a method I have devised for killing yellow jackets. It uses no poisons, costs next to nothing, and, while it doesn't snag every one of the pests, we have found it wonderfully effective in controlling the adults that roam over the lawn.

Take a broad, shallow pan — a pie plate, an old TV dinner plate, or even the dog's dish — and put one-half inch to three-quarters inch of water in it. Put in a few drops of ordinary detergent, and mix gently. Then put in a few scraps of raw or cooked meat, the right size to barely be above the level of the water in the pan. Tie up the dog(s), place the pan on the grass in the sun, and come back later to count the drowned yellow jackets!

WASHINGTON WINDOW

That Dependency Ratio Is Sneaking Up On You

By LOUIS CASSELS, UPI Senior Editor

But if you're a middle age, middle income American, it's time you got acquainted with it. It's putting a financial squeeze on you.

Dependency ratio is a term used by economists to denote the relationship between the number of people of working age, and the number who are too young or too old to work.

ONE WAY or another — directly through private support or indirectly through funds which the government takes in through taxation and dispenses through aid programs—the working age population picks up the tab for the maintenance of the non-working population.

If the working age population grows faster than the non-working population, the dependency ratio declines, which reduces the burden of support carried by people in their productive years. But when the non-working age groups grow larger relative to the working age group, the dependency ratio rises and there is increased financial pressure on those who draw paychecks.

IF YOU'VE GOT all that clear in your mind, you're ready for the bad news revealed by a study condusted for the Senate's special committee on aging.

During the past generation, there has been a sharp rise in the dependency ratio. And the trend is still upward.

As recently as 1950, there were two people in the so-called productive ages of 18 through 64 for every one child under 18.

Because of a big jump in the child population, resulting from high birth rates in the 1945-1960 era, the ratio is now about 3 to 2, instead of 2 to 1.

Moreover, economists now recognize that it's unrealistic to use age 18 as the dividing line between non-productive and productive years. More and more young people are going to college, or into the armed services, or otherwise remaining out of the civilian labor force beyond 18.

MEANWHILE, the number of non-productive persons also is growing at the other end of the age scale. In 1940, there were 11 people aged 65 or older for every 100 in the productive 18-64 age bracket. Today, the ration is 17 over 65 for every 100 in the 18-64 group.

And it is becoming increasingly doubtful that 65 is a realistic age to mark the beginning of retirement. In recent years, nearly half of all the men starting to receive Social Security benefits have been under the age of 65. If this trend toward earlier retirement continues, there'll soon be 28 non-productive older people for every 100 in the working age population.

Taking both trends together — the increasing number of young people who haven't started to work and the increasing number of older people who've stopped work — the United States seems to be heading toward a 1 to 1 dependency ratio.

That means that for every person of working age (whether or not actually employed), there'll be one who is considered too young or too old to work.

WITH GROWING automation and rising industrial productivity, that may be an economically feasible and socially desirable arrangement. Certainly, the prospect does not call for rushing into rash "remedies" such as discouraging college attendance or postponing the age of eligibility for social security benefits.

But it's a long-term factor which needs to be understood, pondered and taken into account in both social and personal planning.

THE DRUMMONDS

Two Proposed New Constitutions –Both Worthy Of Examination

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Two new U.S. constitutions are being drafted.

One is radical and democratic. The other is drastic and totalitarian. Both should be examined.

One draft comes from the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, a nonprofit educational organization at Santa Barbara. Its principal author, aided by some 150 experts, is Rexford G. Tugwell, a political scientist who was considered quite a far-out national planner in the early New Deal.

It is thoughtful, preserves the democratic process, reduces the states from 50 to 20, strengthens the presidency, weakens the judiciary, and creates a more powerful national government.

It is destructive, destroys the democratic process, proposes to come to power by gunfire and to retain power by putting arms into the hands of "the people" — the people who would want to keep such a government in power.

The Panther draft is not yet in final form, but its whole thrust is Marxist in ways which horrify Marx and dictatorial in ways which would gladden Hitler.

It can be all to the good that both proposed constitutions come along at the same time. The Panthers' constitution makes the Tugwell constitution seem modest and moderate.

CONSIDER BOTH:

— The Tugwell constitution because our present institutions are not responding adequately to the stressful problems of today's society. It may be that it is the politicians and not the institutions that often are stuck and stagnant, but it won't hurt to look at both.

— The Panthers'constitution deserves consideration because it is a precise and timely warning of what the most militant, violent-minded group in the United States is prepared to do to impose its will.

WE CAN UNDERSTAND some of the motivation of the Panthers.

They feel that because our democratic government has been horribly unfair to blacks in the past, the only way to end unfairness is to end democratic government. They see the remaining consequences of discrimination, not the tremendous progress which has been made in civil rights laws and equal rights actions during the past two decades.

The speeches delivered and the proposals made at the recent Philadelphia convention of the Black Panther party show that its leaders reject majority rule, reject persuasion and popular elections as the means of peaceful change. They call for Viet Cong-style guerrilla warfare in America as the next stage in their projected revolution. Their motto: Shoot the police, shoot the authorities, shoot the opposition.

THE FULL POWER of the law must be brought to bear against the Panthers' resort to violence. Their ideas will stand or fall in the arena of free speech where the rights of all to speak out should be protected. However, society can and must protect itself, and it is time to appreciate more fully the personal peril in which the police are operating and to give them the support they need.

But if the public focuses its hostility primarily at the Panthers and others who share their purposes, we will be hitting only at the lesser danger. The extremists won't have either a case or a following if the nation acts responsively and responsibly to redress just grievances and to demonstrate that democratic government can do its job.

The violence-prone extremists don't want reform. They hope that the democratic government won't respond to what needs to be done because they hope that lethargic government will win them converts.

As democratic government transacts the public business effectively and humanely, the violent extremists will have little to feed their cause.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

'Don't Blame The Criminal, It's All Your Own Fault'

(Reprinted from Kitsap County Herald, Poulsbo, Wash.)

The voice on the radio carries the kind of low-budget sincerity that goes with free public service announcements.

The speaker wants me to lock my car.

If you leave your keys in the car, he says, some kid may steal it and get himself arrested and thrown in jail. And it will be all your fault.

Then there is a little 15-second testimonial in which a tough-sounding criminal type explains that he would be a respectable citizen today if somebody hadn't tempted him by leaving a car where he could steal it. That car, it develops, carried him into a life of crime.

By now the announcer is almost sobbing.

THIS LITTLE spot announcement made me realize I wearing out my credentials as a do-gooder.

Good boy? If he is a good boy, why is he stealing my car?

Lock him up, officer. My conscience is clear.

THE IDEA of blaming the crime on the victim offers a lot of possibilities.

Once the public service guys have abolished car thefts by their appeals, perhaps they will turn to new fields.

Don't walk in the city at night. You may tempt some good boy to clobber you over the head and steal your billfold.

Don't leave your rural mailbox out there by the road. You might encourage some good boy to become a vandal by knocking it down.

Never leave anything of value in your home. You might be responsible for a whole bunch of good boys organizing a burglary ring.

THINKING ABOUT IT, there's almost no limit to the number of mean tricks people play on good boys — and on adults, too.

Don't leave your groceries out there on the open shelves, merchant. You may be encouraging some nice middle-aged housewife to try her hand at shoplifting.

If this public service thing really works, somebody should try directing it toward the good boys instead of their potential victims.

"Listen, you punks," the announcer can say, "don't steal cars. Instead grow up and go into politics. It pays better."

Short Respite In Sausalito Between School Board Campaigns

Sausalito residents who are hoping for some kind of stability in the membership of the Sausalito School District Board after next week's election had best not hold their breaths.

Two seats, those formerly occupied by trustees C. Gerald Clear and James E. Muldoon (who resigned this summer) are up for grabs in Tuesday's election.

The two new board members, who will be chosen from four candidates, will join trustees Nathaniel Johnson, Delta Christ and Jerry L. Whitcomb. Johnson is the only remaining member of the former board. Mrs. Christ and Whitcomb were elected in June in a successful recall of trustees David E. Freedheim and Martha Freebairn-Smith.

"It's getting to the point that I almost don't care who is elected, just so long as we can have a full board and get on with business," one Sausalito woman said last week.

BUT THE WOMAN, and many other residents of the district, may not realize that two board seats will be up for election again in less than seven months and the entire campaign hoopla will begin again.

As simply as possible the situation is this: Mrs. Christ ran for Mrs. Freebairn-Smith's seat in June. Since Mrs. Freebairn-Smith's term was due to expire in April of next year, Mrs. Christ's term will expire at that time.

Since Whitcomb replaced Freedheim, who was elected in 1969, his term of office will run until 1973. The person who receives the most votes Tuesday will be given Clear's unexpired term which will also run until 1973. But the other winner Tuesday will fill out Muldoon's term, which is also up in April of 1971.

This year's flurry of recalls and resignations will mean there could be two entirely new board members again next April. And, since campaigns tend to start about three months before the big day, politicking could begin again as early as January.

All of which will make the district's fervent hope of "de-politicizing" during the next year hard to realize.

IF - WE - ONLY - KNEW - then - what - we - know - now - department: The City of Sausalito (thanks to voter approval of a recent bond issue) plans to purchase six waterfront lots for the princely sum of $560,000.

Even though all of the land but approximately two acres is under water, the city is getting a pretty fair deal, at least if one considers current prices in Southern Marin's boom town.

But in 1945 — not all that long ago — the city council of the day had a chance to purchase all the waterfront land between the old Purity stores building (adjacent to Princess Park) and the old San Francisco Yacht Club.

The asking price of $6,000 (with terms of $1,000 down and $1,000 a year) included the attractive yacht club building which now houses the Ondine and Trident restaurants.

The offer — at which the council turned up its collective nose — was made in a letter to Councilman Randolph Petterson from William A. La Violette, then staff commodore of the club.

This frustrating piece of Sausalito history came to light recently when Capt. Ralph K. Pedersen of the Sausalito Fire Department was going through some old letters which belonged to Petterson, the captain's uncle.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Let's Apply A Little Logic As To Who Pays For Insurance

Fusselman

The front-page story in the Tuesday I-J, "Supervisors Reject Two-Man Patrol Plea," startled me no end. Judging from the phone calls, I wasn't the only one alarmed.

The vote was Gnoss and Barr, aye — McInnis, Wornum and Arrigoni, no. The noes each gave their reasons. Most of you must have read the article.

The sheriff asked for five new deputies so as to have two-man patrol shift. Since the sad and terrible Aug. 7 shootout, he has been operating that service by working men overtime.

Those voting against the request all admitted the need, but pointed to the dwindling county reserve which they said must be protected.

Of course there was the long-time objection of city officials to pay for services in the unincorporated areas. John Barrows, assistant to the administrator, as always threw roofing nails in the path.

WHAT FOLLOWS is an attempt to cause some logical thinking about the attitude toward the unincorporated areas. This attitude is about as ancient as the fixations of the Middle East. The present officials are merely carrying on the rituals they inherited. Perhaps some day it will change. I hope so. It's time we realize that we are one people, with overriding, interlocking needs and obligations.

Of course no one should have to pay for public services that in no way benefit him whatever. However, there must be a determination as to whether or not there is any degree of benefit involved.

Suppose we consider a few situations in this determination.

SHOULD COUPLES who have no children be taxed for schools? Should families who are never involved in court cases, civil or criminal, pay taxes to maintain the courts? This "maintain" in the broad sense would include the cost of construction of a Hall of Justice, any bond interest that may be outstanding.

Naturally when one says "courts" there is the inclusion of the judges' salaries and those of the attendants. The district attorney and staff must be included. The jails must be considered a part of the overall activity.

Should property owners who have not achieved their citizenship, pay for election expenses? They can't vote.

Should residents of the cities pay for the activities of the board of supervisors and their satellites? They have no jurisdiction within city boundaries. The budget cost is $1,317,599.

Should the residents of the cities pay construction costs and maintenance of the elegant quarters housing this group?

Should the people in West Marin, who had the National Seashore thrust upon them, bear the responsibility of maintaining law and order and the protection of the thousands who are attracted?

ISN'T IT A FACT that many hundreds, perhaps thousands who are attending are residents of the cities of Marin and their relatives and friends? Is it or is it not fair that these city groups pay for the standby service which they might need desperately one day?

Isn't it a fact that in central, northern and southern Marin, boundaries are so intermingled that sheriff patrol cars are constantly traversing the city streets and are available as backup for the local police departments?

My friends, I know about these things. When I was mayor of San Anselmo I proposed and worked for the establishment of the first police radio system in the county. I believe it was the first, for a small city, in the state. About 1950, while I was supervisor, I proposed a sheriff's roving patrol. It was opposed by one element of the board and it took three years before I could get it going.

WHY DO WE ALL carry insurance? The answer is simple. We carry it for the day we hope will never come. The same is true of the sheriff's roving patrol.

When we listen to the newscasts and read the stories daily, it would seem to me that the supervisors should be more concerned with safety and protection of the individual than nursing the reserve for other contingencies such as putting on a big show for the opening of the auditorium. If necessary, that and other things could wait a year without disaster.

From the very beginning I sat and listened to the administrator try to ding the activity of the sheriff's department. It always puzzled me.

Clipper Yacht Land Switch To Be Studied

Clipper Yacht Co. may drop its plan for a yacht harbor in Strawberry Cove if the county will allow it to use county underwater property for expansion of the present Clipper Yacht Harbor at Gate 5 in Sausalito.

This possibility will be discussed Monday morning by the Marin County Planning Commission. The all-day meeting will start at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell said a land swap has been suggested by Clifford M. Pederson, owner of Clipper Yacht Co., and by developer Paul J. Broman of Peacock Gap.

The county now owns about six acres of land within clipper's breakwaters. This could be swapped for part of the 20 acres owned by Clipper in Strawberry Cove, on the Bay side of Seminary Drive. Clipper has been trying to install a yacht harbor, restaurant and apartments at Strawberry Cove.

Broman, developer of the Japanese Trade Center in San Francisco, has purchased Leonard B. Fleischman's property on the northeast side of Strawberry Cove and wants to include the adjacent land owned by Clipper for joint development.

Marin County Planning commissioners will also discuss the 186-page housing report prepared by the county planning staff. The report warns of a housing crisis that is squeezing all but the wealthy out of Marin County.

Other items on the commission agenda include:

LAND DIVISION — Requests for lot splits by Laura Mackin, who has 18,650 square feet at the corner of Rydal Avenue and Melrose Avenue, Homestead Valley; and Ethel Steiner, who owns 16,000 square feet on Bolinas Mesa on the east side of Juniper Road between Alder and Larch roads.

STREET ABANDONMENT — Developers of Ocean Marin, north of Dillon Beach, want four roads within the subdivision abandoned by the county and turned back to a private corporation so that the subdivision will remain rural and vandals and trespassers can be controlled.

MOTEL — Donald R. Telford, who owns 33,000 square feet at 6 Thomas Drive on the east side of Highway 101, North of Alto, will ask for rezoning for a motel.

HOUSEBOATS — Commissioners will continue discussion of Donlan J. Arques's application for docks and berths for 225 houseboats at Gate 6, and George Kappas' request for 72 more berths just to the north. This is in the houseboat area at Waldo Point in Richardson Bay.

VW Will Offer Economy Model

DETROIT (UPI)—Volkswagen is increasing its standard VW price to $1,899 in 1971 models but will market a stripped-down $1,790 model to undercut new American subcompacts, the Detroit News reported Thursday.

Automotive writer Robert W. Irvin said the stripped-down model would undercut all domestic subcompacts unveiled to stop foreign inroads, particularly by Volkswagen, into the U.S. market.

The standard VW model would undercut Ford's Pinto, which goes on sale today, by $20, and Chevrolet's Vega, which went on sale Thursday, by $129.

Pedestrian, Driver Hurt In Wrecks

A pedestrian and the driver of a car were to see their own doctors for injuries received in two accidents, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Elvira Salazar Bailey, 23, of San Francisco, received a minor scrape on her right elbow and complained of back pain, according to police.

She was crossing Lincoln Avenue at Third Street at 3 p.m. Tuesday, and collided with a car going south on Lincoln and turning onto Third, police reported. Driver of the car was Stanley Shrout, 33, of Clovis, Fresno County.

May Francis Farrell, 60, of 25 Nova Vista, San Anselmo, received minor injuries to her right ankle and right arm in a two-car accident at 1:15 a.m. Wednesday at Fourth and H Streets, police reported.

The Farrell car was going south on H Street when it collided with a car going east on Fourth Street. It was driven by Stephen Darol Williamson, 18, of 49 Terry Circle, Novato. Williamson was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Tunney Center

Cleaver Unsure Where Angela Is

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Eldridge Cleaver, Black Panther Party leader who fled to Algeria, says he does not know the whereabouts of Angela Davis.

In a long-distance talk Thursday with the San Francisco Chronicle, he called the hijacking of our aircraft by Palestinian guerrillas "a truly revolutionary act."

Miss Davis, a negro militant, disappeared as she was charged in the killing of a Marin County judge during an unsuccessful courtroom escape attempt. Police say she bought the guns that were smuggled into the court.

MRS. ROBERT CAMPBELL

Knitting, Creative Stitchery Teacher

By DOROTHY NEWELL

For the first time a course in knitting and creative stitchery will be offered at College of Marin.

It all began eight years ago when Mrs. Sylvia Campbell of Novato began a knitting class at the Novato High School adult education evening program. Her creative stitchery classes were started six years ago.

Mrs. Campbell was the first accredited teacher in Northern California to teach the adult program at the evening high school. This was when recently retired Robert McKeay was the principal, and the knitting classes became one of the most popular.

Last month, Sylvia Campbell's ideas were listed along with other teachers throughout the country in a teachers knitting exchange bulletin sent to teachers from the "Popular Needlework Magazine," and it outlines her course in brief.

Sylvia said "This was the most satisfactory class I have ever taught."

Her classes involve 12 three-hour sessions, and her first class consists of "show and tell" demonstration of various handcrafts that can be considered, showing all the handwork she is prepared to teach. Final choice is given the class members, and last year her class decided on crochet, latchet hook, rugs and embroidery.

According to Peggy Chester, columnist with the "Popular Needlework Magazine," "This gal (Mrs. Campbell) has some marvelous ideas, and her students are extremely fortunate to have her services available to them."

Many of the crochet patterns of doilies are being revived that were used during grandmother's day as table covers.

As a child, Mrs. Campbell spent some time in a convent and was taught crocheting and embroidering by the nuns. By the time she was married to her husband, Robert, she had quite a stock of pillow cases and towels, she said.

However, it was her husband's mother, the late Mrs. Alice Campbell, who had no daughters, who taught her how to knit. She learned quickly she said and had a knit wardrobe within a year.

"Knitting is really my thing," she said.

She now knits professionally, and her hands are never idle when she sits down. She knits while riding in the car, in movies, while reading and while visiting with guests.

She and her husband have been married 16 years, and they have three children. Cheryl, 13, now also knits professionally, Laurie, 11, doesn't care much about knitting but loves to study "bugs," and Andrew, 5 years old, likes to embroider and spells words out. His mother says she doesn't believe embroidering is feminine.

"There are more men designers than women in this field, over one-half the proof readers are men, and almost all sales are handled by men, she said.

"My own husband is interested in the creative field, and his help in invaluable in design and picture framing."

Mrs. Campbell says she stresses to her students and her friends, "If it's worth making, it's worth using."

With her classes in her home every day, the Creative Needle craft Studio, a licensed business, the University of California graduate keeps a busy schedule.

Her classes will begin at Novato High School, Monday from 7 to 10 p.m. and every Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. for a 12 week session. College of Marin class will begin on Sept. 23 and run every Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m.

This busy woman not only finds time for the classes but also runs a well organized home.

"I'm regimented," she said, "but I couldn't do it without the help of my family."

She bakes bread twice a week and cans several hundred quarts of fruits and vegetables from their garden.

"I hope I'm never too busy to be an 'ordinary housewife,'" she said.

"I can't really take credit for everything," she said, "as both of the girls help with cooking and canning."

As a family group, they all enjoy 4-H work and playing musical instruments. "And square dancing is 'our own thing'," she said, as "his and her" pleasure.

The creative woman says her first interest has been music. She sang for a number of years with the Novato Choraliers and the Winifred Baker Chorale.

Her teaching of creative needlecrafts, she said, is not a business but a way to stimulate the students to paint with yarn.

Mrs. Campbell's needlecraft art can be seen at the Novato General Hospital, where they are on display.

(I-J photos by Alfred Arn)

"KNITTING is really my thing," says Mrs. Campbell as she models the knit pants she designed with the vest now so popular. She also made the white knit suit with gold sequins knitted into the fabric, embroidered the stitching on the square dance dress and gave color to the plain black dress with stitchery.

THE CREATIVE and talented Mrs. Robert Campbell of Novato displays some of the needlecraft in the living room of the home. Mrs. Campbell will be teaching classes at the Novato Adult High School evening program and for the first time, at College of Marin. The large afghan with the American eagle motif was designed esecially for her husband. The picture on the wall with the rope frame was inspired by a trip to the beach. It has a sentimental value for Mrs. Campbell and is the only piece of her needlework she will not sell.

Couple Wed Twice On The Same Day

By MOLLY MARIN

Penelope Ann Worth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Worth of Stamford, Conn., formerly of Larkspur, was married to Robert James Genise twice on July 25.

The first ceremony was at 8 a.m., in a chapel at John F. Kennery International Airport in New York.

Following the ceremony the couple and the bride's parents flew to California for 2 p.m. wedding rites at St. Catherine's Church in Burlingame.

This second ceremony was followed by a reception at the Villa Hotel in San Mateo and the couple left for a wedding trip to Hawaii. They are now living in Stamford.

Penelope attended Redwood High School and was graduated from Sacred Heart Academy in Stamford. She is a graduate of Briarcliff College in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. and has a master's degree from Manhattanville College in Puchase, N.Y.

Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence Genise Jr. of Greenwich, is a graduate of St. Mary's High School in Greenwich and New York University and is studying for a master's degree in business administration at the University of Connecticut.

ACCIDENTALLY ABANDONED by her husband and son at a gas station in Sonoma, wearing only her bikini bathing suit, Mrs. Larry Brink of Mill Valley can enjoy the joke now that it's over. They had stopped for gas, Leatha got out of the car, and Larry and Kevin drove off without noticing she was gone. She was stranded for two hours until her men noticed she was missing.

The family was returning after a four-day cruise on their "Brink's Brig III" power boat at the Delta Yacht Club in Sonoma.

They leave for Tahoe this week to stay at the Castle Lodge as guests of the American Motors Company. They will also spend a few days at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ireneaus Tucker. His practice is in Mill Valley.

BOX HOLDERS for the 1970 San Francisco opera season are Mmes. and Messrs. Rudolph J. Drewes and William Cavalier Jr. of Ross. Verdi's "Tosca" will open the season next Friday night.

Lamborn-Hermann Rite Is Held In Kentfield

A ceremony in the garden of the Kentfield home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hermann united in marriage their daughter Anne Gabrielle Hermann and Richard Lamborn of Sunnyvale. A reception followed, also in the garden.

Anne was attended by her sisters, Kit as maid of honor and Robin as bridesmaid. Norman Vollert was best man, the bride's brother, Mike Hermann of Kentfield, ushered.

The bride was graduated from Redwood High School, attended the University of Madrid in Spain and was graduated from the University of California at Davis. She was in the Peace Corps and spent two years in the Indian village of Calderas in Guatemala. Anne teaches foreign languages, guitar and art at Scott's Valley School, near Santa Cruz. Mrs. John Hermann of Kentfield is her grandmother.

Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lamborn of Erie, Pa. He was graduated from the University of Ohio and is the plant controller for Fairchild Corp. in Sunnyvale. Anne Baker of Milwaukee, Wis., is his sister.

The couple are living in Sunnyvale following a wedding trip to the California gold country.

Martha Martin Places Fifth In Adams Cup Race

Flying the burgee of San Francisco Yacht Club in Belvedere, Martha McDougle Martin placed fifth in the Adams Cup Races held Aug. 31 through Sept. 3 in Victoria, British Columbia.

Winner of the highest woman's sailing championship in North America was Jan O'Malley of Mantoloking Yacht Club in New Jersey.

TO PUBLISH ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING STORIES IN THE I-J

Forms for engagement and wedding story information to be printed in the Independent-Journal are available from the I-J offices in San Rafael, Novato, Mill Valley and Southern Sonoma.

Wedding forms should be returned promptly to the I-J office in your area and information will be printed immediately after the wedding. Photographers should be urged to submit a print of the wedding picture promptly. Color photographs cannot be used.

The Independent-Journal does not print wedding stories or photographs received more than seven days after the wedding.

An engagement form may be accompanied by a professional black and white photograph, which may be picked up at the I-J office after publication. Snapshots, polaroid or color pictures are not suitable.

What To Do With Pitchmen Who Say They Are Taking A Survey

DEAR HELEN:

We recently moved to this city, and I wish someone had warned us about the salesmen and women that come flocking to our door.

At least five different pitchmen have used the same tactic: They say they are "taking a survey," and please would I answer a few questions? Of course it's more comfortable to sit down, so they get inside. And then I discover they're selling encyclopedias, magazines, etc.

The fifth salesman who came got a switch: I asked him the survey questions. He left fast.

I realize people must earn a living, but I wish they would be honest about it. What to do? — ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED:

Get the names of the companies the sales people represent and send in complaints. If enough do this, they'll ditch the pitch. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This is for "Stutterer" and millions of other stutterers:

You don't stutter when you sing because you use the lower part of the larynx. So practice talking deep down in the throat, with sentences using many "Ms" and Ws" and other consonants, especially those you stumble on most often.

Have air in your lungs before speaking, talk slowly, form your words before you speak, as your mind is apt to run ahead of your ability to enunciate. Practice before a mirror in a closed room where no one will hear you. Reading a book out loud helps. Every time you speak, think, "Deep down in the throat!"

One summer I was sent to a boys' camp. Riding from the train to the camp I met a new group of friends with whom I could relax. I lost my stutter for the entire summer. The people you associate with — and what they expect of you — has a psychological effect.

Sometimes becoming aware of your own worth or getting very involved in what you're doing will cure that stutter.

At any rate, give yourself ten minutes' practice every day, and you can help yourself much more than can all those expensive stuttering courses. — FRED

DEAR HELEN:

I am a middle-aged widow and lucky, I suppose, to have dates.

However, my present gentleman friend puzzles me. We get along beautifully until he realizes he is spending money. He never leaves me without crying over the money he has frittered away. It isn't that much, frankly. When he parts with a dollar, he holds a requiem over it.

I like his company, but this obsession about money bores me. Should I drop a hint? — IN A QUANDARY

DEAR IN:

Why not? But don't expect a drastic change. (And don't "think marriage" unless there is.) — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Signe Seastrom, John Lando Wed In Ross Church Rite

Signe Seastrom and John Stephen Lando were married Saturday at St. John's Episcopal Church in Ross. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Edwin Seastrom of San Anselmo and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Remo S. Lando of Greagle.

The bride's twin sister, Karen Seastrom of San Anselmo served as maid of honor. Bert Lando, the bridegroom's brother was best man and ushers were Ken Porter of San Luis Obispo, Steve Warner of Fairfax and Jeff Tether.

After a reception at the Meadow Club in Fairfax the couple left on a wedding trip to Hawaii. They will live in San Jose where John is a senior at San Jose State College.

Signe, a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, College of Marin and San Jose State, is employed by Security Pacific National Bank in San Jose. Mrs. Eugene Toulouse of San Rafael is also her sister, and Mrs. Charles W. Goodwin Jr. of Hillsborough is her grandmother.

John is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and the College of Marin. Barre Lando of Washington is his other brother.

Babies' Cribs, Nursery Items May Not Be As Safe As They Look

NEW YORK (UPI)—Safe as in a baby's crib, 'tis said.

But a lot of persons interested in baby welfare are taking another long look at the crib and other nursery items to check just how safe—or how dangerous—they are.

One case history: An eight-month-old girl, smaller than average, cried out in pain at a time she was supposed to be napping in her crib. Hurrying to the room, her mother found her outside the crib hanging by her head and one shoulder, fortunately not seriously hurt. But the wee one had managed to wriggle her legs and torso between slats of the crib's side. The manufacturer should have placed the bars closer together.

"If a baby's body can slip through the spindles of a crib, there's danger of strangulation," says the National Safety Council. The head, you see, is non-compressible, so in such instances baby is left hanging.

Examination of hundred of case histories has led to the conclusion that improper design of infant furniture—cribs, playpens, high chairs and dressing tables especially—plays a key role in thousands of serious accidents babies suffer each year. So reports the safety council, which finds that cribs play a key role in infant falls.

And of all crib complaints, the most frequent seems to be the ease with which a child can hook his toes into some type of horizontal member and boost himself over the top. Infants, it seems, just naturally like to climb.

What can a parent do, while the industry works toward safety standards and safer models? The safety council suggests, among other measures, don't depend on dressing table straps. always keep one hand on baby—pick him up and take him with you if the phone rings.

Never leave baby unattended—on a bed, couch or dressing table. Avoid shallow carriages. Use plastic infant seats only in the playpen or on the floor. Don't use an infant seat in a playpen after baby can stand.

Latch the crib side to prevent it from falling, if there's any danger of an older child being able to release the rail from outside the crib.

Male Domain, The Barber Shop, Is Best Place For Natural Haircuts

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

A hail of hearty male laughter flooded from the open door as we approached the barbershop. Once my daughters and I were inside the all male group became politely, nay, painfully silent.

Perhaps we were in the wrong shop? No, the sign on the wall advertised natural trims and cuts for women. We sat down to wait our turn.

In one corner a little boy of about 3 sat watching his father in the barber's chair. Obviously, accompanying his dad to the barbershop was a big deal — a real man-to-man activity. In any case, even the boy looked at us with some puzzlement.

THE SHOP was very tastefully appointed — unlike what I remembered seeing years ago when I would peep in the windows while my brother got a haircut. There were no nude calendars or risque post cards.

What with the present-day unisex look for blacks — the natural hair for men and women — I suppose it is natural that women should go to the shops that specializes in this style. Many of the beauty salons do not. Still, as I sat there, I was reminded of the women's liberation movement. And, indeed, it would appear that we females have invaded one of the males' last strongholds — the barbershop.

Yes, that place where, reportedly, men use obscenities and speak of female conquests; where they solve political and racial problems and determine who will win the World Series — all by themselves, without female intervention.

Honestly, I felt kind of sorry for the guys. But my sorrow was short-lived and I was able to quickly rationalize our presence in this domain. After all, the male stylists do an expert job on getting a natural "together." They just have a certain touch. A Sister leaves the shop looking like a million dollars.

Not only that, it was sheer delight to watch a black male come into the barbershop shaggy (and believe me, a shaggy natural is shag with a capital S) and be transformed into a neatly trimmed, scented and sprayed, exquisite-looking Adonis. And talk about vanity — they walked in 6 feet tall and walked out 7 foot 7!

WHILE WE were in the shop, several women did come in for haircuts, but basically the environment was male. And, as a member of the majority sex, it was nice to be in the minority for a change. Hmmmm, and they did such a good job on the "moss" that, of course, we'll have to go back.

Polyester

The polyesters are noted for their wash-and-wear qualities. This fiber has the best wrinkle-resistance and recovery of all the fibers used in clothing. Like nylon, the polyesters are sometimes not as cooling to wear as cotton because of their nonabsorbent properties.

ON THE AGENDA

Gates To Brookside School Tot Lot To Open Sunday Afternoon

The Brookside School Tot Lot will officially open its gates Sunday at 3 p.m. with a ribbon-cutting by the San Anselmo City Councilmen. The program will also include a welcome for Kenneth Lowry, a new school superintendent and community singing.

The Tot Lot is the first public playground in the city designed specifically for pre-school children and the first such playground to be located on elementary school property. It is felt that familiarity with the school in children's younger years will make for a smooth transition into kindergarten when they become school age.

The Tot Lot was funded partially by the school district and partially by personal donations from Councilmen Woodrow Capurro, James Anderson, James Reed, Lewis Stewart and Warren Perry. Several local merchants donated building materials. The playground was designed by parents in the community and built by them in three weekends. In addition to the conventional slide, swings, sandbox and igloo-climbers the parents constructed an original climber and tunnel-box.

The opening day is being planned by Brookside School Parent-Teacher Association Mmes. Fred Faulkner, Richard Metz, Leonard Sesky, Robert Maddux and Graham Franks.

THE SISTERHOOD of St. Nicholas Russian Orthodox Church in San Anselmo will have a rummage sale on Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church, 105 Ross Avenue, San Anselmo. Also on sale will be piroushki coffee and Russian pastries made by the members of the church sisterhood. Mrs. Eugene Y. Orloff is sisterhood president.

Also on the schedule at the church are classes in Russian language, beginning on Monday. Classes will be held for beginners, taught by Mrs. S. Rojdestvensky, and for advanced students taught by the pastor's wife, Mrs. Boris Symeonoff. The classes are open to children and teen-agers, and are schelduled Mondays from 4 to 6:30 p.m. Father Symeonoff also will give classes on Russian history and religion during those hours.

SECOND ANNUAL rummage sale will be held at the Mill Valley Community Center by Strawberry Guild II of Sunny Hills from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow. Chairman is president, Mrs. Taber Kopan. Donations may be brought that day or contact Mrs. Kopan for pickup of white elephants, knick knacks, clothing or furniture.

TOP SAN Francisco Yacht Club women sailors will instruct 12 students of Rhodes 19 sailing in a program for the Women's Auxiliary members. They are Mmes. Robert Potter, Benton Mathews, Harvey Rogers, Bruce Jacobs and Herb Ross.

Chairman Mrs. James Morgan has planned four Monday sessions, 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 14. Basic-sailing course graduates will bring their lunches and life jackets to the Belvedere yacht club.

A TEA honoring new members of the Marin Country Club Garden Club will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at the Marin Country Club in Novato.

Mrs. Robert Ferguson is chairman and Mrs. Kenneth Borchardt is president of the club.

PATHFINDERS AT Marin Art and Garden Center, have set Tuesday as the opening date for their current season of luncheon service at the Tea-room in the center grounds at Ross.

Tuesday and Thursday are the regular luncheon dates open to the public at noon and 1 p.m. Since many club groups book space, it is advisable to reserve ahead at the Center office.

THE FEMINEERS WILL have a luncheon meeting at Trader Vic's — Trafalgar Room in San Francisco Wednesday at 11:30 a.m.

Rolfe Peterson, KPIX television personality will present a program entitled "Behind the Scenes in Television — News Headlines and Commentary."

The reservations chairman chairman is Mrs. Samuel Seifert of Mill Valley.

THE WOMEN'S Auxiliary of the Corinthian Yacht Club will celebrate its 10th Birthday in the Belvedere clubhouse on Wednesday. Social hour begins at 11:30 a.m., luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. followed by card games.

MRS. J.E. Hurley, San Francisco District Alpha Chi Omega Alumnae Club chairman will make a formal visit to the Marin club at its meeting Wednesday at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Richard J. Mahar in Terra Linda.

THE MARIN County Legal Secretaries Association will meet Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Edward M. Larson in Terra Linda for cocktails at 5:30 p.m., dinner at 6:30 and a meeting at 7:30.

A representative of the California Highway Patrol will demonstrate the use of the Breatholator, which is used to determine drunk driving. The members will be used as "guinea pigs" in the demonstration.

Also scheduled is a report on the association's 1970-71 program by president Constance Mauk, who is also an officer of the National Association of Legal Secretaries. Mrs. Mauk has been appointed executive secretary by the new NALS president, Helen E. Harney, of Stockton.

PRESS GUIDE IS AVAILABLE

A guide for press chairmen of organization interested in getting news to the Marin Women's Section of the Independent-Journal is available at the San Rafael main office and the Novato, Mill Valley and Southern Sonoma I-J offices.

The booklet, "Getting News Into Your Newspaper," is issued as a service of the Independent-Journal Women's Section to assist press chairmen for women's organizations.

The booklets at the San Rafael office may be obtained from the switchboard on the main floor.

Cheryl Levine Wed At Rodef Sholom

Debby Levine of San Anselmo was her sister's honor attendant and Jackie Calder of San Rafael and Chris Davis of Ukiah were the bridesmaids.

A reception followed at the temple.

The newlyweds will make their home in San Pablo on their return from a wedding trip to San Diego and Mexico.

Cheryl, who is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Moosa of San Anselmo, is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and Sonoma State College. She is employed with the Bank of California.

Mrs. Frank Zuckerman of San Francisco is her grandmother.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Helko Elsinga of Deventer, the Netherlands, and he has a brother, Neils, in the Netherlands.

Ichor is a graduate of Deventer High School and is a senior at the University of California.

TV Project Teaches English To Children

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (UPI) —Subliminal education is just one facet of a unique television project initiated by the Bowling Green University television station this summer to teach English to Spanish-speaking children of migrant farm workers.

The project, by WBGU-TV, an educational television station, is aimed at teaching the children numbers, letters, basic English, grooming and health habits through puppets, cartoons and such programs as "Sesame Street."

The program teaches children who know no English various inflections and a few simple phrases. Children who do well with the language benefit by hearing the correct pronunciation as well as the "rhythm" of the language.

All the children benefit from the program by hearing Spanish spoken correctly. Many of the youngsters may never have heard even their native language in its correct form, officials of the project said.

"Sesame Street" was designed originally for pre-school children in disadvantaged homes. The coordinator of the university television station, Burt Benefiel, suggested the show be run as "background noise" during playtime to act as subliminal education.

Another program used by WBGSU-TV in the project is called "Cover To Cover". It presents, in brief forms, novels and classics, introducing the youngsters to good books.

ABORTION REFORM

Patricia Maginnis Leads Fight

(UPI) — A 41-year-old Sausalito woman, educated in parochial schools in Oklahoma, seems an unlikely nomineee as the Carrie Nation of the movement for unrestricted abortion.

But Patricia Theresa Jean Maginnis comes as close as anyone. She has been in and out of jail, has had three abortions, two self-induced, and estimates she has helped over 15,000 other women secure abortions.

For many women, a stay behind bars epitomizes disgrace. But for Miss Maginnis the arrest marked the start of a series of court cases — none of which have been resolved — and an assault on the medical profession and abortion laws.

SHE WAS jailed after their counseling classes led to 1,200 abortions in only six months.

Since that initial arrest three years ago, Miss Maginnis has stopped lecturing women on how to abort. But she continues the crusade against abortion restricting laws.

"The issue is simple," Miss Maginnis says. "Either women have the right to control their reproductive system or they don't."

The answer, she believes, rests within the judicial system and not in the hands of government.

"We're counting on the courts in the country to bail us out," she says. "The medical profession is not prepared to give abortions and the politicians are not eager to pass laws making abortions legal for every woman.

"OUR FIGHT will not end until all women have the right to receive abortions at any time and for any reason.

"The public has largely been left in the dark concerning the endless double-talk of lawmaking authorities and law enforcement personnel.

"No other medical concern of womankind has been more brutally degraded by sectarian beliefs and laws than abortion. No other women's right has suffered more at the whim of clergy and politicians than this issue."

Miss Maginnis equates her campaign with the civil rights movement of the 1960s.

"We believe our fight is one for civil rights, just like the blacks waged a few years ago. And it was the courts that eventually gave them their rights, not laws. We believe the courts will do the same for us."

She points to the recent California State Supreme Court decision that the killing of a fetus at any time is not murder because a fetus is not a human being.

THERE ARE two other California cases which Miss Maginnis believes will bear heavily upon liberalizing abortion laws in the nation.

The first is the case of Los Angeles physician John Gwynne who was arrested five times within six months for performing abortions. His case is expected to go to the United States Supreme Court where a landmark decision is expected.

Miss Maginnis says if the courts rule in behalf of the two defendants, the barriers restricting abortions will go down once and for all.

Miss Maginnis maintains that the crux of the fight is for women's rights.

"WOMEN CAN'T show they are responsible about reproduction until they have the choice in not continuing a pregnancy. Most states require that the pregnant women be in danger of death from a pregnancy in order to qualify for legal medical care for abortion," she said.

"This shows that women are not emancipated. It's an insidious society which sets up social control over our private lives."

Man Made Fibers

Of the manmade fibers, acetate has a silk-like quality. Because it doesn't absorb moisture readily, it is a quick-drying fiber. However, acetate is one of the weakest manmades, so careful hand washing of acetate garments is recommended. Dry cleaning is even better.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Cholesterol Still Unproved As Sole Hardener Of Arteries

Van Dellen

The cholesterol controversy which has gone on for more than a decade, is far from settled. Sill lacking is definitive proof that the fatlike substance is the sole cause of hardening of the arteries or that reducing the level will prevent heart attacks and stroke. We know that atherosclerosis ensues when cholesterol is added to the diet of laboratory animals and chicks. In addition, 80 per cent of persons who develop heart attacks due to coronary atherosclerosis have a high cholesterol level.

The controversial nature of the problem is evident from several articles and comments that appeared in a recent issue of Medical Counterpoint. One author believes there is a definite correlation between diet, cholesterol, and hardened arteries. In his opinion, man should have remained a vegetarian and consumed cereals, tubers, shoots, fruits, berries and vegetables.

AN EQUALLY astute physician gave his reasons why he believed that certain carbohydrates were responsible for atherosclerosis. He recommended a diet restricting all sugars and sugar-containing foods, such as fruits and fruit juices. Starchy foods were allowable, but he suggested fewer saturated fats and oils (butter and coconut oil). Alcohol (a carbohydrate) was taboo.

Under Clinical Comments, reference was made to the high incidence of atherosclerosis among people who eat refined white sugar. Still another author consider the hydrostatic force of the flow of blood to be responsible for the location of the hardening process. Parts of the artery where the flow was rapid and forceful were more susceptible to hardening. This was how he explained the more extensive atherosclerosis where the vessel branches or curves.

DR. W. RABB, University of Vermont, pointed out that the heart muscle could degenerate even though the coronary vessels were normal. In his opinion, chemical and hormonal changes, triggered by daily stresses, could affect the oxygen needs of the heart muscle. This leads to a local loss of potassium in the heart muscle, leading to degeneration of the organ, angina, irregularities of the pulse, and sudden death.

DISCONTINUING DRUGS

Mrs. L.T. writes: My 13-year-old has epilepsy. However, since taking Dilantin he has not had a convulsion for three years. Our physician recommends stopping the drug and seeing what happens. What is your opinion?

REPLY

Follow your physician's advice. Many doctors gradually withdraw the medication after a child has gone two to three years without a seizure provided the brain wave tracing (electroencephalogram) is normal. Adults usually continue anticonvulsant drugs throughout life.

ACUTE HEPATITIS

H.C. writes: What is acute hepatitis?

REPLY

An infection of the liver which is manifested by fever, lack of appetite, weakness, and indigestion. The skin and the whites of the eyes may turn yellow. A virus is the most common cause.

NASAL MASSAGE

L.J. writes: Will massaging a fat nose every day make it smaller?

REPLY

No. The old proboscis cannot be molded like putty. If you are not satisfied with what nature gave you, consult a plastic surgeon.

Judge, Militants Try Ending School Strikes

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A Philadelphia judge, using the law, and an East St. Louis, Ill., black militant organization, using street tactics, each are trying to solve teacher strikes.

Other teacher striges continued around the nation today.

Teachers in Hammond, Ind., and three Connecticut cities stayed off the job in defiance of court orders. Nine teachers were arrested while picketing in Toledo, Ohio.

Meanwhile, one of two Michigan school districts which fired striking teachers reached a contract settlement late Thursday and rescinded the dismissals.

A Philadelphia Common Pleas Court judge Thursday ordered striking teachers back to work immediately. He then postponed the order pending a hearing Monday.

School officials said two days of preparations were necessary before the city's 290,000 pupils could be brought back to the classroom, postponing any possibility of reopening until at least next Thursday.

The union is demanding a starting minimum salary of $8,500, $400 more than the school board has offered.

In East St. Louis, Ill., where the start of school has been delayed two weeks, members of the Black Egyptians chanted, "negotiate negotiate, negotiate," and said they would keep school board members in their offices until they resumed talks. They later let the members leave after 4 1-2 hours.

Defense minister Frank Smith said the Egyptians would reopen the schools themselves if the board did not.

The teachers demanded inclusion in their contract of three clauses the board said have been ruled illegal.

In Michigan, the Vassar Board of Education and the Vassar Education Association issued a joint statement late Thursday saying the 75 striking teachers there had been reinstated following the reaching of a contract agreement and would report for orientation today. Classes were set to open Monday for the 2,113 students in the Vassar school district.

The Michigan Education Association said it expected 178 teachers who had been fired from their jobs in the Westwood school district also would be reinstated when agreement was reached ending a walkout there which has affected 5,125 students.

Also in Michigan, agreement was reached early today on a new contract between the New Haven Education Association and local school officials, ending a two-week strike by 69 teachers which kept 1,739 students out of school. New Haven teachers plan to vote on the tentative settlement today. Classes were to resume Monday.

The settlements by New Haven instructors and by teachers in the Vassar district left 15 other Michigan school districts and almost 4,400 striking teachers in the Wolverine state without contracts.

About 91,000 pupils were still out of their classrooms in Michigan today.

Hammond, Ind., teachers defied a court order prohibiting continuation of their strike. The Hammond Teachers Association said "hundreds" of the teachers marched on the school administration offices Thursday as 24,000 students remained on an unscheduled vacation.

Teachers in New Haven, West Haven and Milford, Conn., also defied court orders Thursday. In other parts of the state, schools were closed in contract disputes at Stamford and Bristol, Middletown schools were dismissed early and schools were only partially staffed at New London and Somers.

Nine Toledo, Ohio, teachers were arrested while picketing a school bus garage Thursday as most of the city's 2,500 teachers stayed off the job. School officials estimated about 80 per cent of Toledo's students attended classes despite the strike.

Delmar, N.Y., members of the Bethlehem Central Teachers Association promised to strike today. Teachers already have walked off the job in Niagara, Suffolk, Westchester and Putnam counties in New York.

Ann McGirty operated the first spinning wheel in the West at Fort Harrod, Ky.

Students' Findings On Air Pollution

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Strong support for greatly increased taxes to fight air pollution has been found in a poll by Stanford University students. (Another pollution control story, page 1.)

Curiously, however, only 40 per cent of those polled said they would be willing to give up burning trash in backyard incinerators. The poll was conducted months after all such backyard burning was banned by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

This general ignorance of the law apparently was related to another finding of the poll — only 10.7 per cent could name the district.

Results of the poll were released yesterday by the students as part of a 380-page report they did on their nine-month study of air pollution.

They made 1,436 man-on-the-street interviews in 17 communities around the Bay Area late last spring, and found that 96 per cent felt air pollution was a "very serious" or "somewhat serious" problem. Of the persons sampled, 88 per cent believed that the air pollution problem is growing worse — a suspicion documented by the students' report.

A large majority, 69.4 per cent, said they would be willing to foot the bill for cleaner air, and gave an average figure of nearly $5 a month as the price they would be willing to pay. In contrast, the present, budget of the district amounts to less than 10 cents a month per household.

Asked to suggest solutions to air pollution, most persons called for tougher regulations on polluters and for stricter enforcement of such laws. Only about 15 per cent, however, suggested curtailing automobile traffic. Most of these favored more development of rapid transit systems.

The student researchers concluded that most of the public is extremely poorly informed, both about details of pollution and of the available political mechanisms for generating corrective action. They urged a massive public education to promote solutions to air pollution.

Race Conflict Halted At School In Mobile

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

White students and blacks scuffled at a desegregated high school in Mobile, Ala., Thursday, but police moved in quickly to break it up.

"It had all the making of a pretty good free-for-all," said one policeman.

A white youth wearing a football jersey said the incident started when a black student jumped a white student and a white football coach chased him. "Then a group of blacks started chasing the coach," the youth said. "They all ganged up on us and started hitting us. We didn't strike back." A black student said some 15 Negroes and several whites were involved in the scuffle. "Nothing really started it," he said. "We just started jumping on whites."

Seven patrol cars and a paddy wagon rushed to Murphy High School, which has an enrollment of 1,283 blacks and 844 whites, but no arrests were made and no injuries were reported.

At Charlotte, N.C., the final grades opened today in the district's alternating schedule aimed at getting maximum usage of a limited number of school buses. The school system, North Carolina's largest, has begun a desegregation program requiring the busing of 20,000 of its 83,000 students.

Also in North Caroolina, the Lumbee Indians gave up their defiance of a federal desegregation order and agreed to send their children to public schools. About 500 Indian children had been appearing daily at Indian schools in the Lumberton area, but their parents said they would fight the desegregation order in the courts.

North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott Thursday called for "reason and restraint" in the new school term of total integration in order to "make the transition as smooth as possible."

Officials at Jackson, Miss., said Thursday enrollment in city elementary schools totaled 15,965, a drop of 3,969 from last year. A recent survey showed that 12,000 children had registered in 21 private schools in Jackson, compared with 7,000 last year.

Six Coffees Set For Smallman

The coffees will be held at 8 p.m. today at the Larkspur home of Joseph Warner, 6 Tamalpais Drive; at 2 p.m. on Monday at the Novato home of James Smith, 36 Los Alondras Court; at 8 p.m. on Monday at the Novato home of Peter Rohrer, 772 St. Francis Avenue, at 8 p.m. on Tuesday at the San Rafael home of Frank Peebles, 35 Maywood Way, at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday at the Larkspur home of Jack Van Wart, 131 Elm Avenue, and at 8 p.m. on Wednesday at the San Rafael home of Ervin Tipton, 25 Sunset Way.

Watson Denied Extradition Stay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black today denied a stay of the extradition of Charles D. Watson, one of four persons indicted in the Tate-Labianca murders, from Texas to California.

He took the action without comment.

Watson, 24, a former high school honor student and star athlete, was accused of carrying out most of the killings under the direction of cult leader, Charles Manson, with the aid of three young women members of the nomad group.

The goldeneye duck is commonly called the "whistler" because of the whirring noise made by its wings.

I-J Praised For Coverage Of Pollution

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Independent-Journal was one of two Bay Area newspapers commended yesterday for new coverage of air pollution after a nine-month study by 70 Stanford University students.

The I-J and the San Jose Mercury were singled out for their assignment of reporters to cover the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District on a regular basis. Both have been covering the district consistently for several years, the students' report noted.

Their 380-page report was released at a press conference in the board room of the university's trustees.

The rest of the news media in the Bay Area generally were critizcized by the students for ignoring air pollution, and for burying what little news they carried.

Their report said that "the I-J also has given BAAPCD top priority and has taken editorial stands on the issues."

Ballet Canceled After Defection

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Soviet Moiseyev ballet company canceled its farewell performance in Mexico Thursday night following the defection of two male dancers.

The performance at the palace of fine arts was scheduled as a gala windup of the company's month-long tour of Mexico. Its next stop is Cuba.

Giennadi Simonovich Vostrikov, 22, appeared Thursday at the interior department with a Mexican girl identified only as Cristina and asked for political asylum, officials said.

Last week in Guadlajara, 300 miles west of Mexico City, Aleksander Silippov defected from the company and asked for asylum two days later. He emerged from hiding this week in the company of Brazilian singer Lucy Tristao.

Pleads Innocent To Manslaughter Counts

Lionel Raymond Hall, 25, of Cotati pleaded innocent yesterday to two counts of manslaughter and one of felony drunk driving following arraignment in Marin Superior Court.

The charges against Hall arose from an April 13 one-vehicle accident north of Novato in which two passengers in Hall's pickup truck were killed.

Charges Of Sinatra Assault Are Dropped

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Charges of assault with a deadly weapon have been dropped against a casino executive who had a gun-waving altercation with Frank Sinatra.

Sanford Waterman, executive vice president and casino manager of Caesars Palace, had been booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon Sunday after he allegedly waved a gun at Sinatra in a confrontation over the entertainer's gambling credit.

As a result of the fight, Sinatra left town and canceled his engagement at the $25 million gambling resort.

"My reports indicated Waterman still had finger marks on his throat where Sinatra grabbed him," said District Attorney George Franklin. "There seems to be reasonable grounds for making the assumption that Sinatra was the aggressor all the way."

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Gene Kelly Shows His Smooth Ability

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The television networks, using this week to warm up viewers for the new season that starts Sunday, offered a number of specials Thursday night. They included an amiable variety show with Gene Kelly, a quietly intelligent documentary on Eskimos and a rather awkward contemporary musical hour called "America," inexplicably hosted by good old Glenn Ford.

Kelly's contribution was as host of an ABC-TV hour called "Changing Scene," which apparently is the first of four such fast-paced musical-comedy shows with a sort of modern minstrel tone. And the opener was, if not quite in the class of those great Kelly movie musicals, at least a lively surprise—one of the few recent variety outings to combine new and old sounds with good taste and some style.

There are few performers, of course, who can bring such instant amiability to a show as can Kelly, one of Hollywood's genuine gentlemen. And his top-name guests Thursday—James Garner, Arte Johnson and Barbara Eden—are all very pleasant performers themselves. So the mood was set in part by the simple process of casting, not to mention the handiwork of producer-director Robert Scheerer.

As with other recent variety shows, this one also was influenced by "Laugh-In." But it had its own touch, as well as an exceedingly nice and talented group of young singers and dancers who kept the hour happily swift and lightheaded. The skits, by the way, included a musical version of "Hamlet," with Johnson as the great Dane.

"America," meanwhile, was a CBS-TV special that was shot around the nation and offered pop singers with lyrics that purportedly were relevant to the state of the country. But Mr. Ford, alas, got stuck with the written narrative, which tried so hard to be hip in talking about America, and came out instead like a Madison Avenue pamphlet.

As you may have noticed recently, by the way, it now is very fashionable to show the positive side of America on video, so there were lots of positive comments about the nation. Hollywood is adaptable. You name it, we've got it.

Well, anyway, NBC-TV's contribution Thursday night was an hour called "The Ice People," and its study of Eskimos as they are compelled to enter the world of the 20th Century white man—in jobs, housing, education, transportation and culture—was compassionate. A people, a minority, that has not the funds or the muscle to maintain its cultural heritage in the midst of the majority is a basically sad story, and the hour told it well, and with point.

The Channel Swim: Orson Welles, for the second time this summer, will be the only guest on Dick Cavett's 90-minute late-night ABC-TV series Monday . . . Cavitt's show will be cut to 45 minutes for 13 Mondays starting Sept. 21 because of ABC-TV's weekly, prime time, pro football games.

George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," which was set in Charleston, S.C., finally had its first production there this summer, and CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" reports on the event in its season premiere Tuesday . . . The same broadcast offers a rundown on cable television and its possible expansion into a two-way home communications center.

Southern Marin Horseman's Show Will Be Held

The Southern Marin Horseman's Association's 11th Annual Junior and Open Horse Show will be held tomorrow and Sunday at the arena on Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue, according to manager Bruce Bartlett.

The Saturday program will involve western division competition, with a halter class beginning at 8:30 a.m. Other events, including open, bareback, trail and equitation will continue through the afternoon.

The English division competition will be held Sunday, with jumping classes beginning at 8:30 a.m. and equitation continuing through the afternoon.

Food, drink, seating and ample parking will be available for spectators. Bartlett said.

Coming this Saturday in Marin Magazine

Special features you'll enjoy:

With Marin County's thousands of public school students having just returned to their classrooms this week, the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine salutes that occasion tomorrow with a history of the public schools of the county, written by Florence Donnelly, the late historian of the I-J, prior to her death. It is a fascinating insight into an era when public education had a very different look and meaning than it has today.

Skilled artisans from throughout the Bay Area are demonstrating crafts, many of them centuries old, at the Renaissance Pleasure Faire and Ha' Penny Market on North San Pedro Road these September weekends. None is more interesting than the craft practices by David Adams — the making of leaded stain glass windows. How he goes about it, and why he took up this old art, make up a featured story in tomorrow's weekend supplement.

Proud Pop Ready For TV Watching

Just for kicks I invited San Anselman Bob Alvarado to a golf match tomorrow at 3 p.m.

"You kiddin'?!" he screamed.

You see, Mr. Alvarado will have things other than golf on his mind tomorrow. A team of wild horses couldn't drag him away from his television set which will be tuned to Channel 7.

Mr. Alvarado's No. 1 son, Don, will be with the Stanford University varsity football squad in War Memorial Stadium, Little Rock, Ark. to do battle with the Arkansas Razorbacks. As it isn't often one's son has the opportunity to appear on national television, in living color yet, one wouldn't want to miss it, would one? Golf indeed !!!

Mr. Alvarado, however, doesn't expect to see much of his boy. "Just for No. 85," he suggests rather modestly,"he'll be on the bench. Oh, maybe he'll get in for a play or two if he's lucky, but Stanford has to go with its first string in this game."

Second String Wide Receiver

Well, maybe the first stringer ahead of Alvarado will stub his toe. Who knows?

Actually, Don Alvarado might feel fortunate even to warm the bench because last week he suffered his first injury in seven years of football. It happened in a non-contract drill when he was contacted, suffering a hip pointer.

Don missed last Saturday's important scrimmage; but latest from Palo Alto is that he will be available for duty tomorrow on Little Rock's Astro-Turf.

"We were afraid that because he missed Saturday's scrimmage he'd lose his second string status," said father Bob, "but on Monday he was still listed as second team. Don says his hip hurts, but it will be better by Saturday. He's been applying crushed ice to the injury an hour at a time, two or three times a day."

Flashy Offense Vs. Rugged Defense

The 1970 national television collegiate football inaugural could be one of the best attractions of the season for it pits two of the country's most exciting teams in their first time ever football meeting. Statistics from last year indicate the old immovable object of Arkansas versus Stanford's irresistible force.

Arkansas in 1969 led the nation in defense against scoring, yielding 7.6 points per game. Stanford, you will recall, scored an average of 34.9 points per game. The Injuns throw the ball around like a hot potato.

Many of the stars who contributed to those fine records will return. While its defense won most of the honors last year, it must re memembered that Arkansas had a flashy offense built around busy quarterback Bill Montgomery, sensational wide receiver Chuck Dicus and slashing back Bill Burnett, all back this season.

But, of course, Stanford has Heisman Trophy candidate Jim Plunkett, the incomparable quarterback with the laser passing accuracy, along with All-American candidates Bob Moore at tight end and John Sande at center.

Maybe '70 Will Be Stanford's Year

Only a few points and some incredibly bad luck kept Stanford from an undefeated record last year. Maybe 1970 will be it.

Anyway, we'll learn a lot tomorrow over the video. Let us hope Mr. Plunkett has Mr. Alvarado available to catch a couple of tosses.

And, with such an attractive game opening the collegiate season, with a local angle yet, my adrenalin is fairly flowing. I am ready to position my rotund posterior in front of my Big TV from now until Super Bowl time in January. Do not disturb.

(I wonder if they have plugs and antennae in the Oakland Coliseum so I can see Terry Bradshaw and the Pittsburgh Steelers against the Raiders tomorrow night, all the while suffering along with the 49ers against the Rams in L.A. over the coaxial.)

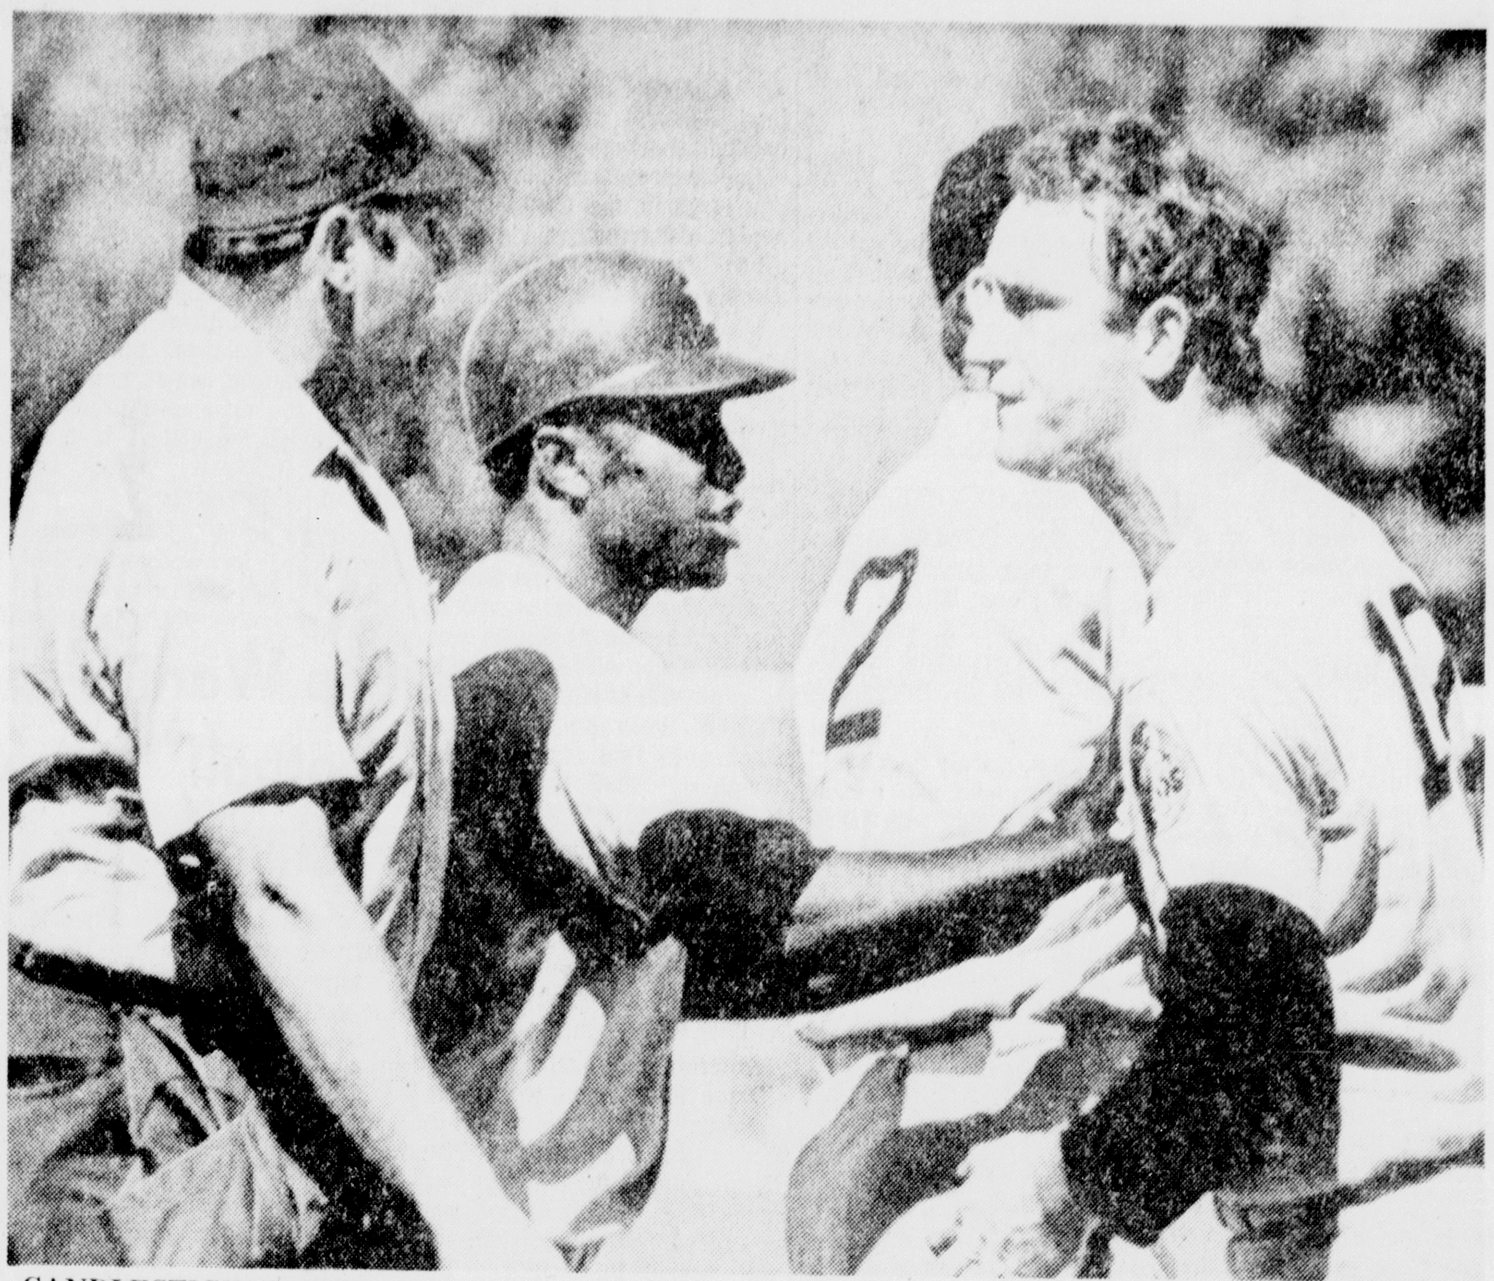
Perry Boys Make Baseball History



CANDLESTICK CAPERS — Umpires were busy at Candlestick Park yesterday when San Francisco walloped Houston Astros, 11-0 on pitcher Gaylord Perry's 20th victory of the season. Above, Umpire, Dick Stello is about to eject Houston's Doug Rader who complained about being called out at home plate in seventh inning. Teammate Joe Morgan vainly tried to calm down Rader. Below, umpire Augie Donatelli checks Perry's pitching hand for any foreign substance. The Astros complained that Perry's pitches were doing strange things. After thorough examination, Donatelli came up — uh — empty handed. High and dry.

TWINS SWEEP

A's Hopes Arc Jolted

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The suspense, whatever there was of it, has ended. The Oakland A's have proven they are not a championship team.

The A's came into Minnesota a few nights ago riding an eight-game win streak. Hoping to climb closer to first place in the American League West, they instead dropped three straight games and now stand a big 8½ games behind the pace-setting Twins.

SEGUI TONIGHT

Minnesota beat Oakland 6-1 and 7-2 Thursday night following a 3-1 decision Wednesday night. Oakland tries to regain some dignity tonight when Diego Segui 10-10 pitches in the opener of a four-game series against Wally Bunker 1-9 of Kansas City.

The A's took it on the chin in Minnesota when the Twins came up with a four-run rally in each contest.

Charlie Manuel drove in two runs with a bases loaded single after Tony Oliva and Brant Alyea had driven in single runs earlier in the third inning of the opener against A's starter and loser Jim Hunter (16-13).

FANS 10

Tom Hall allowed Oakland's lone run on a double by Sal Bando and a single by Dick Green. Going the distance for the first time this season, the little lefty

Terra Linda Prep Gridders In Debut

Terra Linda's Trojans, heavier and with more depth than last year when they were voted 10th best high school team in Northern California, kick off the 1970 football season tonight at Foothill Junior College in Los Altos against the Palo Alto Vikings.

This will be one of three preseason games the Trojans will play prior to the start of the Marin County Athletic League season Oct. 3 against Drake. Their schedule includes tough Riordan of San Franicsco next Saturday night and Hogan of Vallejo Sept. 26, both games to be played in San Rafael. If the Blue and Gold expect to improve their state rating in 1970, they will have to beat some good out-of-league clubs.

Don Lucas, who has led the Trojans to three successive MCAL championships, calls Palo Alto "a pretty sound football team fundamentally," but feels his team has the edge.

"We'll beat them in the line," he said today, although he noted the Viking backfield is equal to or better than Terra Linda's.

Lucas today announced his starting lineup. Offensively it will include ends Bill Lahaye and Bill Sherbert, tackles Bruce Little and Scott Seefeldt, guards Pete Meier and Steve Cupples, center Steve Umphreys, quarterback Mike Sanderson, fullback John Scozzafava, tailback Matt Bowman and flanker John Buckley.

Defensively the Trojans will have Lahaye and Umphreys at ends, Little and Ed Alves at tackles, Cupples at middle guard, linebackers Meier and Larry Kerr, monsterman Larry Mandin, halfbacks bowman and Kevin Purcell and Buckley at safety.

All MCAL teams except Terra Linda open with games next week. On Friday Drake will be at Petaluma at 8 p.m. and San Marin meets Encinal in Alameda at 3:30 p.m. Saturday games include Montgomery at Novato at 1 p.m., Redwood against Sacred Heart at Washington High School in San Francisco at 2 p.m., and Tamalpais at Salesian in Richmond at 8 p.m.

Good Idea, But Rozelle Says Nope

Halas said Thursday that he would bet $15,000 at 220-1 odds being quoted by Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder against the Bears winning the National Football League's Central Division title. The 75-year-old Halas said he would donate the money, which would have amounted to $3 million, if he won, to cancer research.

However, Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle has rejected the idea. "It would be wonderful if such a sum of money could go to these funds," Rozelle said. "But such a wager cannot be permitted. I appreciate George Halas' sentiments and his confidence in the Bears."

49ers To Be Healthy For Tomorrow's Game

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Riddled for weeks with injuries, the San Francisco 49ers may finally be at full strength Saturday night against the Los Angeles Rams.

Defensive lineman Charlie Krueger missed practice Thursday with a pulled thigh muscle. He may recover in time to play in the preseason contest at Los Angeles.

Running backs Jimmy Thomas, Doug Cunningham and Ken Willard, linebacker Dave Wilcox, defensive lineman Stan Hindman and cornerback Bruce Taylor appear to have recuperated from nagging injuries.

With Thomas, Willard and Cunningham back at full strength, offensive backfield coach Ed Hughes says the Forty Niners' reluctant running attack may finally generate some steam.

"We have good running backs and we should be much better than we've shown so far," Hughes said. "We feel we can make yardage against the Rams, based on last year. But if we lose yardage or get penalized the Rams will make it tough."

Giants To Open Dodgers Series

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sept. 10, 1970 is a day Gaylord Pery will never forget, and neither will baseball since it wll be properly recorded somewhere in the sport's record books always to be printed to.

For on that date Perry helped set an all-time record. By himself he won his 20th game of 1970 on a four-hit shutout over the Houston Astros as the San Francisco Giants scored an easy 11-0 victory.

A FIRST

The significance of the feat was that with Jim Perry winning 22 games for the Minnesota Twins, it became the first time in big league history that brothers had won 20 or more games in the same season.

"Will I remember this day?" Gaylord asked.

"You bet your life I will," he answered himself. "It's something I can tell my grandchildren about one day. Winning this 20th one gives me a good feeling, one of pride, as I'm sure my brother feels."

Gaylord hasn't talked to brother Jim, who is older by a couple of years, since he won his 20th for the Twins on Sept 1.

CALLED

"We don't talk much during the season," Gaylord said of Jim, "but I called him when he won his 20th. That's quite an accomplishment."

Did Gaylord expect Jim to call him now that he has his 20th?

"Oh, I'm sure he will," Gaylord replied. "He's a little busy now trying to help his team win a pennant, but he'll call. I'm sure he's as happy about this record as I am, and it sure as heck took the two of us to set it."

Only once before in baseball history have two brothers won 20 games—in different seasons, though. That was way back in 1916-17 when Harry and Stanley Coveleski turned the trick.

ALMOST

The Perry boys just missed setting their record a year ago. Jim did his job winning 20, but Gaylord won "only" 19, which was a source of disappointment to him. "I really wanted it last year," Gaylord said. "I did nothing all winter long but think about the record and what our chances were of setting it. I'll say this, along about the middle of the season when I wasn't pitching very well I thought we would not get it after all."

The Perry boys set another record this year when they both were named to pitch in the All-Star game. Never before have brothers been named to either the same or opposite team.

LUCK

Perry said he didn't have his good fast ball or his hard slider against the Astros but had a lot of luck with his breaking pitches, primarily a changeup curve, which is a new pitch this year for the durable righthander who is one of the hardest working pitchers in baseball.

"That just goes to show you that luck plays a big part in winning," Gaylord said. "If had better stuff in games which I've lost. It helped, too, in this one to get all those runs."

Willie Mays, Willie McCovey, Hal Lanier and Bobby Bonds were the teammates who struck the big blows.

Mays, on a tear of late, lashed his 27th homer, a towering shot far over the leftfield fence with one on. He

Petaluma Vs. Reno In Opener

The Petaluma High School Trojans, with three new coaches and only five returning lettermen, start their 1970 football season tomorrow night against a team they know virtually nothing about.

Head coach Howard Cadenhead will be playing things by ear when his North Bay League team meets a squad from Reno, Nev., at Durst Field in Petaluma beginning at 8 o'clock.

SURPRISES

The Trojans, who finished last season with a record of three wins and six losses, will be, Cadenhead says, "an inexperienced team, but one which may surprise a lot of people." The experience consists of center Jerry Tenenbau, quarterback Dan Hart, End Don Billings, defensive lineman Chuck Kendricks and linebacker Chuck Holmes.

Cadenhead will be joined by Frank St. Peter, who will be in charge of the varsity backfield; junior varsity coach Larry Lethrop; and assistant John Pappas. Myron Ringstad and Tony Kehl will be returning as assistants.

Hart, who backed up all NBL star Fred Klemenok last year, is but one of three candidates for the signal-calling job. Junior Ken Griffith and Jim Sampietro have shown promise in practice sessions to date.

BUILDING YEAR

Under Cadenhead the Trojans have yet to have a winning season (his first year, 1968, they were 9-9), and this year it seems will be another building effort. Newcomers who may help include ends Chris Court and Kevin Gillmore, lineman Mark Ross and running back Bob Gillis.

Mike Swallow a senior tackle who saw limited action last year, is expected to become a defensive mainstay.

The Trojans will confront Marin County Athletic League teams two successive weeks to wrap up the preseason when they host Drake next Friday night and Novato Sept. 25.

The first NBL game for the Trojans will be Oct. 2, when they host Vallejo.

Story About Lombardi, The Basketball Coach

Vince Lombardi was buried Monday. He will be best remembered as the football coach who reorganizd the down-and-out Green Bay Packers into champions. The stories about Lombardi's success at Green Bay were told and re-told. They were all football stories.

This is a story about Lombardi, the basketball coach. Bobby Riedel told it in Atlanta during the last baseball trip there by the Giants this season.

RIEDEL, NOW a distributing executive with an Atlanta firm, played high school basketball at St. Cecilia's in Englewood, N.J., 25 years ago. Lombardi was the only male teacher in the small school and coached all sports in addition to teaching Chemistry, Physics and Latin.

"He was incredible," said Riedel, a basketball player of more than ordinary ability. "He really didn't know too much about basketball but, being a perfectionist, he would write letters to Clair Bee and Joe Lapchick, then coaches of New York college teams, asking about certain situations.

"THEY WOULD write him back and we would practice those letters all week long. We won the New Jersey State Catholic basketball title in 1945. He was proud of what he did with St. Cecilia's basketball team.

"He couldn't stand losing then just as he couldn't tolerate it later at Green Bay. He'd go crazy at times. You never were good enough for him. He'd scream at you, grab you and shake you, and rap you behind the head with his knuckles."

RIEDEL RECALLED one game he never will forget. St. Cecilia's was playing Xavier in New York City. Xavier was a basketball powerhouse. At one stage of the game, Riedel was out of position when an orange hit him in the back of the head.

"Lombardi had thrown it," Riedel said. "He was standing there screaming 'Dammit, Riedel, where are you supposed to be?' "

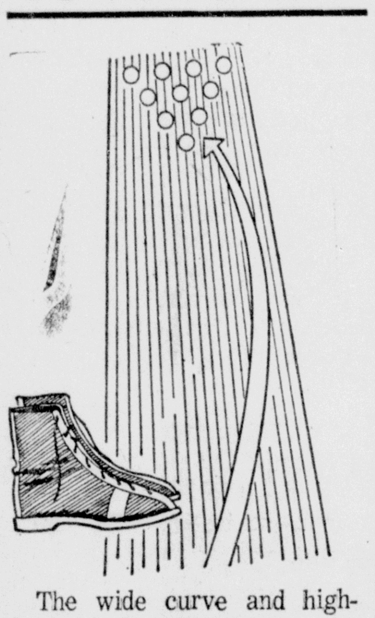
By halftime Xavier had all but blown Lombardi's team off the court and he was in a rage in the locker room when Father Moore, pastor of St. Cecilia's, came in and said: "Vince, after all they're only boys."

"THAT MAY be, Father," Lombardi replied, "but you never saw Christ himself get crucified like we did out there in the first half."

Lombardi, a devout man who went to church daily, was incredible.

"I never met a man like him," said Riedel, "but he was the finest teacher I ever had and one of the finest men I ever knew."

BOWLING TIPS



The wide curve and high-buckled shoes are both in the same class . . . out of date. The big curve simply will not bore into the pins deeply enough to produce the maximum score. A ball tha comes into the 1-3 pocket at less of an angle is more likely to be more powerful.

Police Softball At Albert Park

Action in the second annual Marin County Peace Officers Softball Tournament returns to San Rafael's Albert Park this weekend.

Marin County peace officers will take on Santa Clara Sheriff's team in a battle of unbeatens at 3 p.m. tomorrow. Other games will be Daly City vs. San Jose at 1 p.m. and Modesto vs. Napa at 11 a.m.

California Highway Patrolman Dan George pitched Marin to two victories in the opening weekend of the tourney, a 3-0 no-hitter against Berkeley Police Saturday and a 7-1 two-hitter against Napa Police Sunday.

Admission to games is free.

GIANTS

also singled and doubled in four at-bats. That gave the superstar three homers, seven RBIs and six hits in nine at-bats in the last two games.

BIG START

The Giants put the game away in the first, rocking Wade Blasingame (3-2) for four hits and four runs. Lanier's two-run single was the big blow. Mays hit his homer in the fifth for a 6-0 lead and the Giants put it away with five runs in the eighth. A double by McCovey, a single by Alan Gallagher and Bonds' base clearing double did the most damage.

The Giants, who have posted the best record in the National League (33-24) since the All-Star break, open a three-game weekend series against Los Angeles tonight with second place their immediate goal.

Juan Marichal will pitch for the Giants and Joe Moeller or Don Sutton for the Dodgers.

Toughies For USC, Stanford

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The strengths of the top two teams in the Pacific-8 Conference may be given severe pressure this weekend during the opening round of 1970 football action.

The University of Southern California, a supreme defensive force, must prove itself Saturday against explosive Alabama. Stanford University, among college football's most devastating offensive teams, faces the challenge Saturday evening of an Arkansas defense which was the stingiest in the nation last season.

ON ROAD

Both the Trojans and Indians will be playing away from home while a promising University of California squad travels to Oregon, inexperienced UCLA goes to Oregon State and Washington State journeys to Kansas. Washington draws a bye.

Southern Cal, champion of the Pac-8 four years in succession, must contain Alabama quarterback Scott Hunter. The muscular dropback passer already has surpassed 13 school records previously held by Joe Namath, Ken Stabler, Steve Sloan and others.

A beefy, quick and seasoned defensive front four of Charlie Weaver, Tody Smith, John Vella and Scott Weber will try to put the pressure on Hunter. USC quarterback Jimmy Jones and will lead an assault on Alabama's leaky defense.

STINGY

Jim Plunkett, Stanford's potential Heisman Trophy winner, must diagnose an Arkansas defensive unit which allowed merely 7.6 points per game in 1969.

Seals Open Training Camp

OSHAWA, Ont. (UPI) — The Oakland Seals opened training camp today, hoping to improve a mediocre fourth place finish in the National Hockey League West last season.

"It's going to be a wide open camp," Seals coach Fred Glover said Thursday. "There will be a lot of young guys battling to make the club. Of the 60 in camp, 31 are first year pros or younger."

ATHLETICS

struckout 10, scattered seven hits and raised his record to 8-6.

Another lefthander, veteran Jim Kaat, allowed seven hits and two runs through seven innings of the nightcap. Joe Rudi, who hit safely three times against Hall in the opener, singled twice for two runs batted in against Kaat.

Leading 2-1, the Twins put the second game away with four runs in the fifth. Productive singles by Alyea, Paul Ratliff and Frank Quilici highlighted the outburst. A's starter John Odom (8-6) brought on the damage with his own wildness.

SECOND YEAR

Oakland has failed for the second year in a row to overhaul the first place Twins. Each year, the Twins themselves drove the decisive nail into the Oakland coffin by refusing to lose crucial games to the A's.

Minnesota, a truly clutch ballclub, had preceded the victories over Oakland with three straight wins several days earlier against California to also knock the Angels out of contention.

Cal Grid Captains

BERKELEY (UPI) — Coach Ray Willsey has appointed linebacker Phil Croyle and offensive tackle Bob Richards as captains of the 1970 University of California football team.

Bradshaw, Steelers In Oakland

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, muddled by an unusual shortage of personnel, complete preseason play Saturday night in the Coliseum against dangerous rookie quarterback Terry Bradshaw and the surprising Pittsburgh Steelers.

In an effort to protect injured players, the Raiders waived several healthy men earlier this week. As a result, Oakland will face the Steelers without its top field goal kicker and with as few as 38 able bodies.

Placekicker and reserve quarterback George Blanda, guard Wayne Hawkins and defensive lineman Al Dotson were waived along with several other to protect injured players Dan Conners, Pete Banaszak, Fred Biletnikoff, Rod Sherman, Carl Weathers, Marv Hubbard and Ray Chester.

Blanda is a sure bet to be reactivated in time for Oakland's season opener Sept. 20 at Cincinnati. Punter Mike Eischeid, however, will have to handle the placekicking chores against Pittsburgh.

Veteran free agent tight end Jacque MacKinnon was signed Thursday. If he is not put on the active list prior to the Pittsburgh game, the Raiders will have to go with a second year pro Lloyd Edwards at tight end, with rookie fullback Ted Koy providing backup help.

Russia, Japan Head Weightlifting Field

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Russia and Japan lead 32 countries into the 1970 World eWightlifting Championships which begin here Saturday.

The Soviets will have three defending champions from the 1969 meet at Warsaw, Poland, while the Japanese will be represented by two 1969 winners.

Guy Rodgers Bows Out

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Guy Rodgers, who earned the nickname "Magic Man" by being one of the best ball handlers and playmakers in National Basketball Association history, announced his retirement yesterday.

Rodgers, a 12-year veteran who turned 35 Sept. 1, played pro ball for Philadelphia, San Francisco, Chicago, Cincinnati and Milwaukee, which obtained him in the expansion draft of 1968. He played college ball at Temple University, where he was an all-American.

Rodgers holds the single season record for assists in the NBA with 908, and ranks behind Oscar Robertson and Bob Cousy for career assists with 6,907.

Baseball

MILWAUKEE — The Boston Red Sox have obtained pitcher Bob Bolin from the Milwaukee Brewers in exchange for cash and a minor league player to be named later. Bolin, who played until last year with the San Francisco Giants, was used by the Brewers mainly in relief.

Football

WASHINGTON — The Washington Redskins have acquired Roy Schmidt, a 248-pound guard in his fourth pro year, from the Atlanta Falcons.

Golf

OCEAN SHORES, Wash. — Little Jan Ferraris shot the only sub-par score in a field of 60 yesterday to take the first round lead by a stroke in the $40,000 Wendell-West Golf Tournament.

Miss Ferraris combined a good putting game and a fine club selection to card a one-under-par 71 over the 6,021 Ocean Shores course.

General

SAN FRANCISCO — A three-man committee will begin screening applicants soon for the post of Pacific-Eight Conference executive officer. Thomas J. Hamilton, the first and only executive director of the conference, announced yesterday he will retire next June.

The committee will be headed by Washington State Athletic Director Stan Bates and will include Southern California Athletic Director Jess Hill and California professor Robley Williams.

Pop Warner Football Festival

Six games are on the schedule this weekend when Marin County youngsters compete in the annual Pop Warner Football Festival on the Marin Catholic High School field in Kentfield.

There will be three varisty games and three junior varsity (boys under 105 pounds) games.

Tomorrow it will be Tamalpais vs. Drake at noon, the varsity game followed by a 2 o'clock junior varsity game. There will be a junior varsity game between San Marin and Petaluma at 3:45 p.m.

Sunday it will be San Rafael vs. Novato at noon, the junior varsity game at 2 p.m. Then it will be Terra Linda vs. Redwood, 3:45 p.m., followed by the jayvee game at 5:45 p.m.

Halftime activities during the San Rafael-Novato game will feature presentation of the 1969 All-American Scholar-Athlete award to San Rafael's Gary Jordan.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Cool Hand Luke Wins For Bucs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Pittsburgh Pirates have their own Cool Hand Luke and they are mighty thankful.

Luke Walker began the season with a lifetime major league won-lost record of 4-10 but his current 1970 mark of 12-6 is one of the main reasons why the Pirates are tied for the National League's East Division lead with only 19 games remaining.

A record of 12-6 hardly makes Walker a candidate for the Cy Young Award but it does give him the best mark among the Pirates' current rag-tag crop of starters. Only Dock Ellis with a 12-9 record has won as many games for Pittsburgh and Ellis is currently sidelined with a sore right elbow.

12TH WIN

Walker posted his 12th triumph, a personal high for him in pro ball, Thursday night as he stopped St. Louis on two hits in the Pirates' 2-0 victory over the Cardinals which kept Pittsburgh tied for first place with the New York Mets and one game ahead of the Chicago Cubs.

The only other season Walker won as many as 12 games was in 1965 with Asheville of the Southern League. "Maybe I'll break my own record the next time out," Walker joked after beating the Cards. "My fastball is the best it's ever been and it makes the curve better.

The Pirates knew they had to win to remain tied for first since the Mets had beaten Philadelphia 3-2 in 14 innings in the afternoon while the Cubs defeated Montreal 9-3, also in a day contest. Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco shut out Houston 11-0, San Diego shaded Atlanta 3-2 and Cincinnati routed Los Angeles 13-4.

A.L. SCORES

In the American League, Minnesota swept a doubleheader from Oakland 6-1 and 7-2, Kansas City beat Milwaukee twice 10-2 and 2-0, Boston walloped Detroit 14-0, Cleveland whipped Washington 13-4 and Baltimore edged New York 2-1. Chicago and California were not scheduled.

Willie Stargell backed Walker's pitching with his 28th homer and Bob Robertson scored Al Oliver with a sacrifcie fly for the Pirate runs. Only one Cardinal got as far as third base against Walker who pitched out of his most serious jam when he retired Richie Allen with two runners on base in the seventh inning.

HERBEL'S WIN

Cleon Jones' triple scored Tommie Agee with one out in the 14th inning to help the Mets past the Phils. Bud Harrelson's steal of home and Art Shamsky's RBI single gave the Mets two runs in the third but the Phils tied it in the sixth on Johnny Briggs' eighth homer with a man on base. Ron Herbel, who pitched the final inning for the Mets, got the win and Hoerner took the loss.

Ernie Banks batted in four runs with a three-run homer and a single to lead Chicago over Montreal. Banks' homer was his 12th and snapped a 2-2 tie in the fourth. Milt Pappas, with seventh inning relief help from Juan Pizarro, won his 12th game. Rusty Staub slammed his 30th homer for the Expos.

FIRST HOMER

Al Ferrera's two-run double highlighted a three-run fifth inning that gave San Diego its win over Atlanta. Southpaw Dave Roberts, who had lost 10 straight games, gained his sixth victory with relief help from Gary Ross. Atlanta's two runs came on Oscar Brown's first major league home run in the third inning.

Johnny Bench ripped his 44th homer and Lee May chipped in with his 31st, a grand slammer, in Cincinnati's rout of Los Angeles. The Reds collected 19 hits, including eight for extra bases, as they widened their lead in the West Division to 14 games over the second place Dodgers. Jim McGlothlin, who gained credit for his 13th victory, had to leave the game in the seventh inning when his right arm stiffened up.

'Series' To Start Oct. 10

NEW YORK (UPI)—The World Series will open on Oct. 10 at the home park of the National League pennant winner.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Thursday that the first two games of the series will be played on Oct. 10 and 11 in the National League Park with the next three games to be held Oct. 13, 14, 15 in the home of the American League champion.

If sixth and seventh games are necessary, they will be held in the National League city on Oct. 17 and 18.

The league championship series will each open on Saturday, Oct. 3.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., is the lone American man remaining in the U.S. Open Tennis championships. Today, his sister Nancy will try to bring the family name into the finals of the Women's division.

Nancy faces a formidable task. In her semifinal match, she opposes Margaret Court, the Australian great who has her sights firmly set on becoming only the second woman to register the Grand Slam of Australia, France, Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

IN 1969

Nancy last met Margaret in the 1969 final here, and was brushed aside, 6-2, 6-2. If Margaret can repeat that triumph, she need only defeat the winner of today's other semi involving Rosemary Casals of San Francisco and Virginia Wade of England.

Nancy's brother came through on Thursday against fellow American Dennis Ralston, winning 7-6, 6-3, 6-4. Americans who challenged the Australian contingent went down to defeat. Arthur Ashe of Gum Springs, Va., rallied too late to upset second seeded John Newcombe, who used the sudden death weapon in a 6-1, 7-6, 5-7, 7-6 victory.

Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calfi. could do nothing with third seeded Ken Rosewall, going out meekly when his service deserted him, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

WORKOUT

A third Australian, fourth seeded Tony Roche had a satisfying workout in eliminating Brian Fairlie of New Zealand, 6-3, 7-5, 7-6. Tony said he didn't mind meeting Richey in Saturday's semifinal. Cliff lost to Tony in their only 1970 encounter, in the Philadelphia indoor event in February.

The Newcombe-Rosewall semifinal will be a replay of this year's Wimbledon final, in which Newcombe won the first five-setter there in 21 years. It will also be a replay of the Welsh Open final, in which Rosewall was the winner in their last encounter.

Ralston Runs Indians Through Final Drills

STANFORD (UPI) — Coach John Ralston runs his Stanford Indians through their final practice at home today prior to the season opener Saturday night at Arkansas.

Ralston drilled his squad on short yardage and goal line work Wednesday in a thorough practice during which the entire game plan was reviewed.

FISH AND GAME

Marin Has Lost Some Prime Deer Area; Why?

By AL GIDDINGS

When I took those stripers to Sacramento last week for pollution tests, I was momentarily cornered by Wally Mac Gregor, the big game official of the Department of Fish and Game.

He asked about the drop from the 393 bucks taken last year in Marin as compared to the 250 bucks taken to date this year. I don't think the answers are too hard to figure out. The loss of about 40,000 acres to the National Seashore at Pt. Reyes has removed the most prime deer hunting area in the county from all hunting efforts. Last year, traveling through a small section of the 8,000 acre Bear Valley Ranch, I counted 60 deer in a two mile stretch with 20 of these 60 deer all legal bucks. One was a four pointer, both sides with eye guards; another was a huge three pointer; and the forked horns were generally older heavy horned bucks, larger than the usual two-year-old forks generally seen in Marin. The take of bucks from the Palamarin Ranch, The Bolema Club, the Bear Valley Ranch, the Murphy Ranch and the others now in the seashore probably was close to 300 animals.

Losing these hunting areas certainly has a lowering effect on the overall count. Secondly the fog of this season has been a real problem. And thirdly, I'm sure there are a number of ranchers who are waiting for the game wardens or some validating officer to come by.

Other than those reasons, I don't think we are having any deer shortage. I'm sure it's not that hunters are saving their tags to go north in the late season; there have always been plenty of tags for local bucks. In our family, the kids still have their "B" tags, and about six friends are in the same fix. It's been tough filling out with the darned fog almost every morning and evening.

Somehow, I feel it's a shame that some hunting hasn't been permitted in some parts of the National Seashore, especially on those ranches that have been bought, then leased back to the rancher, with no trespassing permitted except by the rancher, but no hunting! Why? The deer herd will build up for perhaps a 10 year period, then an extensive die off will occur with a waste of thousands of pounds of prime venison. There would be no danger as the public is not permitted access to the ranches leased back to the rancher. It will be this way, possibly for years, until the day the government can build proper access roads and facilities. So really, nothing has been changed, except ownership, but the hunting has been stopped!

Originally, at the meetings I attended when the Seashore was in the making, it was broached, discussed, and promised that hunting would be permitted wherever feasible! What better time than now, while the public is still excluded from the ranches that are being solely used by the ranchers doing their ranching, but being unable to hunt, though no danger exists.

HELEN JACOBS OF CALIFORNIA BECAME THE LAST TO WIN THE U.S. NATIONAL WOMEN'S TENNIS SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP FOUR CONSECUTIVE YEARS WHEN SHE DEFEATED SARAH PALFREY FABYAN, 6-2, 6-4.

Endurance Race At Point Reyes

Fifty miles of rough riding is in store for Northern California horsemen tomorrow in the Point Reyes endurance race beginning at 6 a.m. at Five Brook Stables, Point Reyes Station.

Among the contestants are a pair of talented Novato riders, Don Brown and his ranch hand, Gerald Russell, 19. Brown, a stables owner, set a record of three hours and nine minutes last July in San Pablo during a 50-mile endurance victory and Russell has been a consistent finisher among the top 10 in various endurance races.

Sad Tune At Tam: Where Have The Gridders Gone?

(Seventh in a series on Marin County high school football prospects.)

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley, which has been leading the way in the Marin County student revolution of the last few years, can as a direct result add a new verse to the folk song, "Where have all the flowers gone?"

Head football coach Mike Davlin could have lamented on the first day of practice, "Where have all the players gone?"

He must have felt like a general in the army of Gran Fenwick when he first gazed upon all 27 candidates for the varsity team and 16 for the junior varsity. That's a pitiful turnout.

No doubt about it, apathy has hit Tam's athletic program. Once the titans of Marin County football, the Indians have been hurt tremendously recently by lack of interest in football by both players and student fans.

This was to be a banner year for the Red and Blue, as 18 players from last year were slated to return.

SEVEN MISSING

Only 11 of those have shown up, however, and now it appears that the team will have about as much depth as Tiny Tim's voice. Davlin says that if the Indians don't suffer any serious injuries, "we'll give everybody trouble." But if they do, it could mean another year like 1969, when they won only two of nine games.

What makes it all most unfortunate is the fact that this season the Indians possess some of the finest backs they've ever had, plus a couple of all-league caliber linemen — as solid a core as can be found in the Marin County Athletic League. But the stars are no good without a supporting cast.

At the top of the Tam list is Clifford Hall, who could become the league's best halfback in this, his junior year. Last season he established himself as one of the premier defensive backs in the league, and was without a doubt his team's finest player.

RUSHING LEADER

Bill Washington, another halfback, promises to be among the league leaders in rushing. A senior, he has gained 20 pounds from last year and tips the scales at close to 200.

The other outstanding back on the Indian roster is Mark Costello, a senior fullback whose exceptional blocking and inside running make him invaluable to Davlin's plans for a strong ground game.

Quarterback is the only mystery position on the team. Three veterans of varsity competition — senior Mike Brennan and juniors Pat Lucey and Mark Dawson — are in the running for the job, and Davlin says he might platoon them. All three perform adequately on the ground, but less than spectacularly through the air.

If a Tam quarterback does develop into a good passer, he will not want for receivers. All-league candidate Paul Ringleman at one end and junior Greg Biber, up from the j.v.s, at the other are potentially as good a tandem as the league can offer. Ringleman has been especially impressive in practice. Davlin says he has "really come on this year."

FEW LINEMEN

As far as linemen go, the Indians are hurting, except at tackle, where senior Bill Rudolph should perform both offensively and defensively in all-league fashion. The rest of the line is the weakest part of the team, although veteran seniors Mike Johnson at guard and Jim Nelson at center should provide some stability, and junior tackle Terry Rutledge could help.

Lettermen Richard Brown and Leon Howard, a pair of seniors, will work with Hall and possibly Washington to give Tam a defensive secondary second to nobody in the MCAL. There may even by some depth in that department with the addition of sophomore halfback Tom Collins, who Davlin says has looked "real good in early drills."

The Indians have the quality. Whether Davlin can use it to fashion a winner with the fewest players of any team in the league will be one of the most interesting stories of the 1970 season.

[illegible] opens its schedule Saturday, Sept. 19 against Salesian High at Richmond, 8 p.m.

Two Cal Gridders On Injured List

BERKELEY (UPI) —Running back Steve Kemnitzer and defensive tackle Mike Doak, both reserves, may be withheld from the University of California's season opener Saturday night at Oregon.

COME TO DE LONG CHEVROLET AND DRIVE THE LITTLE CAR THAT BEGS TO BE DRIVEN.

You've probably heard a lot about the Vega by now.

Well, we want you to forget it all.

Forget that the Vega comes in four models: coupe, sedan, wagon and panel truck. Forget that it gets around 25 miles to the gallon. Forget that even the standard sedan comes with a 90-horsepower overhead-cam aluminum alloy engine, front disc brakes and front bucket seats.

Forget all that and just take Vega for a test drive. That, all by itself, will convince you.

Vega's tight, maneuverable. It's downright fun.

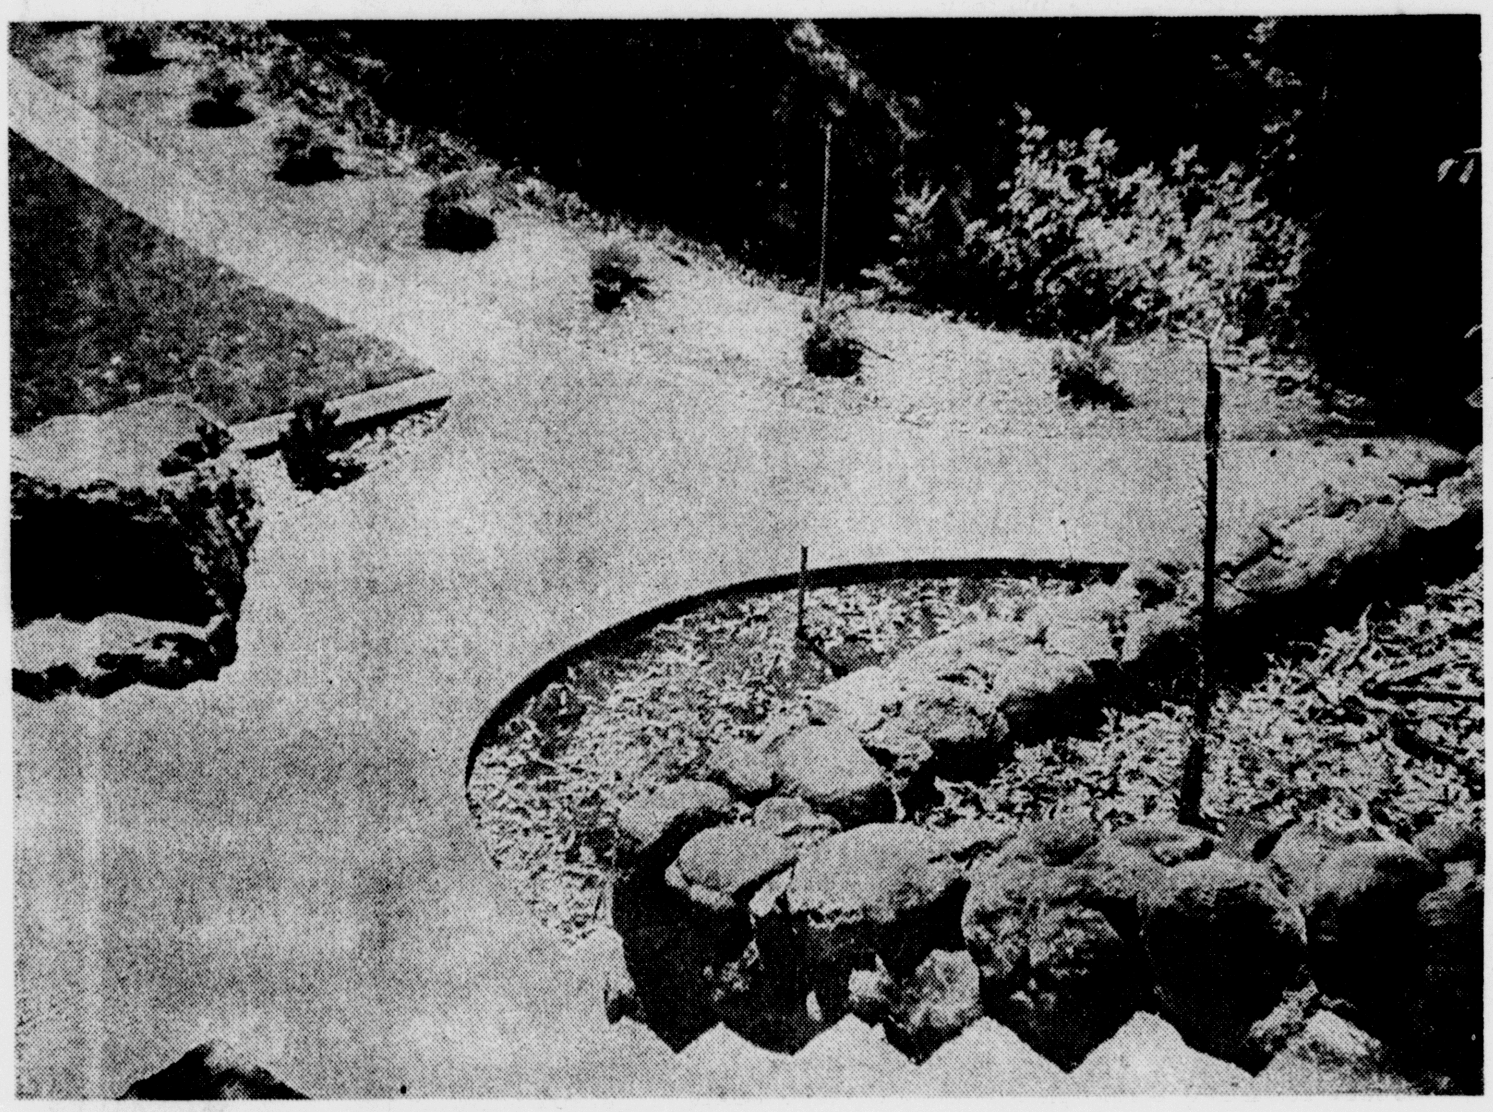
LANDSCAPING FOR COMPLICATED TOPOGRAPHY

Sidney M. Lewin and Associates in designing garden areas for the E.A. Farnworth home in San Rafael were faced with many existing trees, verying levels and little access to the rear of the house for equipment. All trees were saved and the natural grades at their bases allowed to remain. Large stones were set into the concrete paving.

MAIN GARDEN LEVEL — Concrete borders all grass areas of the Farnworth residence for easy maintenance. Main garden is connected to the house level by steps 15 feet wide. (Jim Martin photos).



ORGANIC DESIGN — Paving at the Farnworth residence was exposed aggregate. Sonoma field stones were used for low walls by the Lewin landscape architects to maintain a natural appearance.

More To A Window Than Meets Eye

Considering the fact that windows make up from 30 to 70 per cent of the average home exterior, it's clear that windows deserve attention in any modernization project.

Unlike the windows of yesteryear, which were made by hand and varied with the carpenter's ability, today's windows are precision - engineered for good fit, long-life, low-maintenance and high-style — as well as ventilation and visibility. Also important to homeowners is the ready availability of quality units, such as windows of ponderosa pine, in stock sizes at local lumber dealers.

Here, at a glance, are some of the benefits available in modern wood windows:

Durability — Factory — treatment of sash and frame with a chemical preservative gives high resistance to weather abuse. Under normal conditions, windows will last for the life of the house.

Weatherstripping — Tight weatherstripping is factory-applied to protect against air infiltration and help cut heat loss.

Insulating Glass — Once a custom feature, insulating glass (two panes of glass sealed at the edges to form an insulating layer of air between) is now obtainable in all styles. Tests show that insulating glass in weatherstripped wood sash offers maximum protection against heat loss and condensation. This means more home comfort and lower heating and cooling bills.

New Hardware — Modern balancing mechanisms and smooth-working metal and vinyl hardware have replaced the old hard-to-operate sash weights and cords.

Washing Ease—Most wood window styles are available with pivot or lift-out sash which allows safe and easy cleaning of both sides of the glass from inside the house. Other easy-clean features: insulating glass, which eliminates storm sash and cuts window washing chores by half; removable grilles, which snap in over the inside glass surface to give windows a handsome divided-light appearance, snap out to simplify window cleaning.

Design Variety — Beauty and style are essentials of modern windows. A wide design choice — including casements, fixed-sash, awnings, hoppers, double-hungs, sliders, bows and bays — allows easy selection of the right style to suit each room.

On the patio, planning shouldn't end with the choice of flagstones and all the usual exterior accessories. With proper planning, you can have a patio the family can enjoy year-round.

A patio can — and should — be an actual house extension. This means it should visually expand the home interior; provide an attractive "framed" view from indoors that can easily become the focal point of any room; and by creating the aura of outdoors make the home interior more pleasant.

The key to indoor - outdoor patio planning is the doors and windows in the wall between. Gliding glass doors are popular patio entries for good reason. They have large glass areas (for good views), and the better quality ones operate easily.

With extensive patios and wide walls, it's possible to open more than one room or a whole side of the house to the outdoors. Use patio doors in a series, or patio doors with adjacent wide-visibility windows. These might include a series of casements, casements flanking fixed sash, gliding windows or stacked awning windows. In at least one type of patio door, insulating glass made from two sheets of tempered safety glass is standard. The line also includes casement, awning and fixed-sash windows and features rigid vinyl cladding over a preservative-treated wood core. The units don't need painting and won't pit, rust or corrode.

A New Trend: Tub Seats For Showers

Among the strong trends in bathrooms are seats in tubs so the bather can shower sitting down.

One reason for this is the growing number of senior citizens who enjoy taking a shower sitting down simply because they enjoy it.

Major improvements in shower equipment have contributed to this trend. Old-fashioned showers had virtually no volume control. The mixing of hot and cold water to attain the desired temperature was done manually. Thus, during sudden pressure drops in the piping system due to water usage elsewhere in the home or even in the neighborhood, the flow of either hot or cold water could be affected — and the bather was likely to be doused with a sudden surge of icy cold or near-scalding water.

Today's equipment makes showering a safe and pleasant experience. Showerheads come equipped with as many as eight spray settings, from fine, needle and coarse to a full flow. You can get swivel arms that enable family members of various heights to shower either standing up or sitting. There are thermostatic controls that keep temperatures constant, regardless of pressure changes, once the desired temperature has been set.

It's recommended that the controls be installed near the front of the tub or shower stall, so the bather can make the necessary adjustment before entering. Then he can relax in the comfortable knowledge that the temperature will remain the same until he's through bathing.

When having a house built to order, arrange your financing so that the builder can be paid as he completes various stages of the job, a method which most builders insist on.

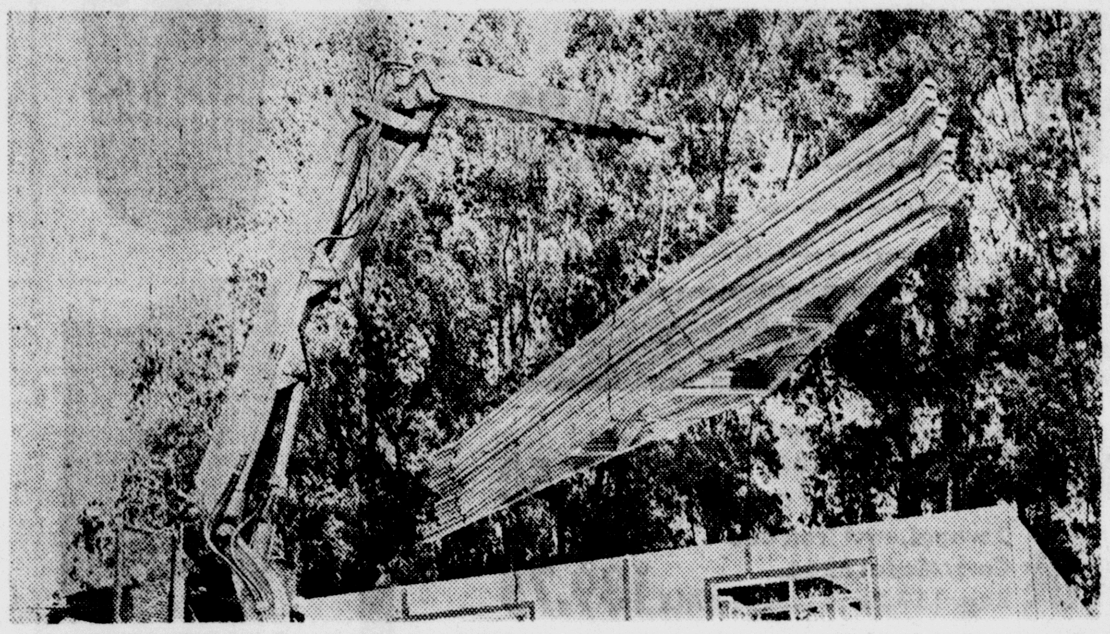
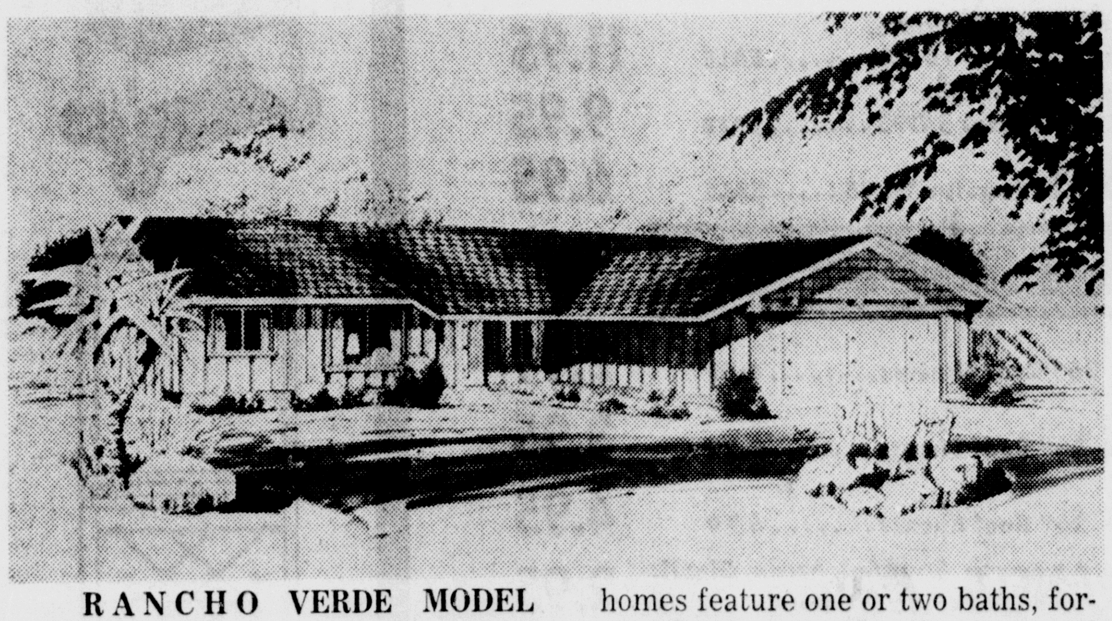
STEEL JOIST SYSTEM — Perimeter and center support jack saddles carry floor joists for homes at Rancho Verde. The new system is claimed to be 40-per cent faster to install and more economical than other methods of foundation and floor framing. The system is being used by Boise Cascade Building Co. which is developing the Petaluma Area. The development will include 400 homes with three to four bedrooms.



PREFABRICATED WALL SECTIONS — One crane has placed pre-constructed wall sections for a home at Petaluma's Rancho Verde development. Another is now lifting roof trusses into place. Sections and trusses are manufactured by Idaco Lumber Co., a subsidiary of Boise Cascade Building Co., and shipped to the site by truck.



RANCHO VERDE MODEL HOME — The Casa Bravo is one of two model homes now open for inspection at the Boise Cascade Building Co. Rancho Verde development off Highway 101 at State Highway 116 in Petaluma. New homes feature one or two baths, formal living room, family room and dining area. The development is the site of a new program using a steel perimeter foundation and floor framing system designed by United States Steel Co.

Rancho Verde Development May Help Curb High Building Costs

The opening of the Boise Cascade Building Co. Rancho Verde development in Petaluma may prove to be an important step in the spiraling costs of home ownership, according to regional manager for Boise Cascade, Frank R. Parks.

Rancho Verde is the result of community planning and development research with building product supplier Idaco Lumber Co., a Boise Cascade subsidiary, and United States Steel Co., which has produced a new steel perimeter foundation and floor framing system, as collaborators.

The system was designed to compensate for expansive soil conditions found in many parts of California, and is said to be nearly 40-per cent faster to install and more economical than other floor construction. If soil settles or rises, seismic steel jacks are adjustable. Galvanized steel joists and perimeter beams do not shrink or warp and are impervious to termite, dry rot and general insect damage.

For an average model, 35 pier holes are drilled to a depth of five feet. Concrete is poured into the holes to form a pier pad at ground level with threaded anchor bolts embedded in the pad. Screw jacks are positioned on each pad, aligned and fastened to the anchor bolts. A galvanized steel skirt retaining channel placed on the jack base above the leveling nut acts as a stabilizing feature.

After the steel mechanicals are installed a thick tongue and groove plywood floor is laid. Prefabricated wall sections and roof trusses are dropped into place by a crane.

Oak Flooring Used As Modern Wall Paneling

Oak flooring normally is used on floors — where else? But in recent years an increasing number of designers and home owners have been using it for wall paneling.

Both strip and plank oak flooring can be used for this purpose. It's easy to apply and finish, and quite economical. The result is a handsome wall of rugged, beautiful wood that will never need repainting.

You can finish such a wall of oak flooring simply by sanding it lightly and applying clear or colored penetrating sealer.

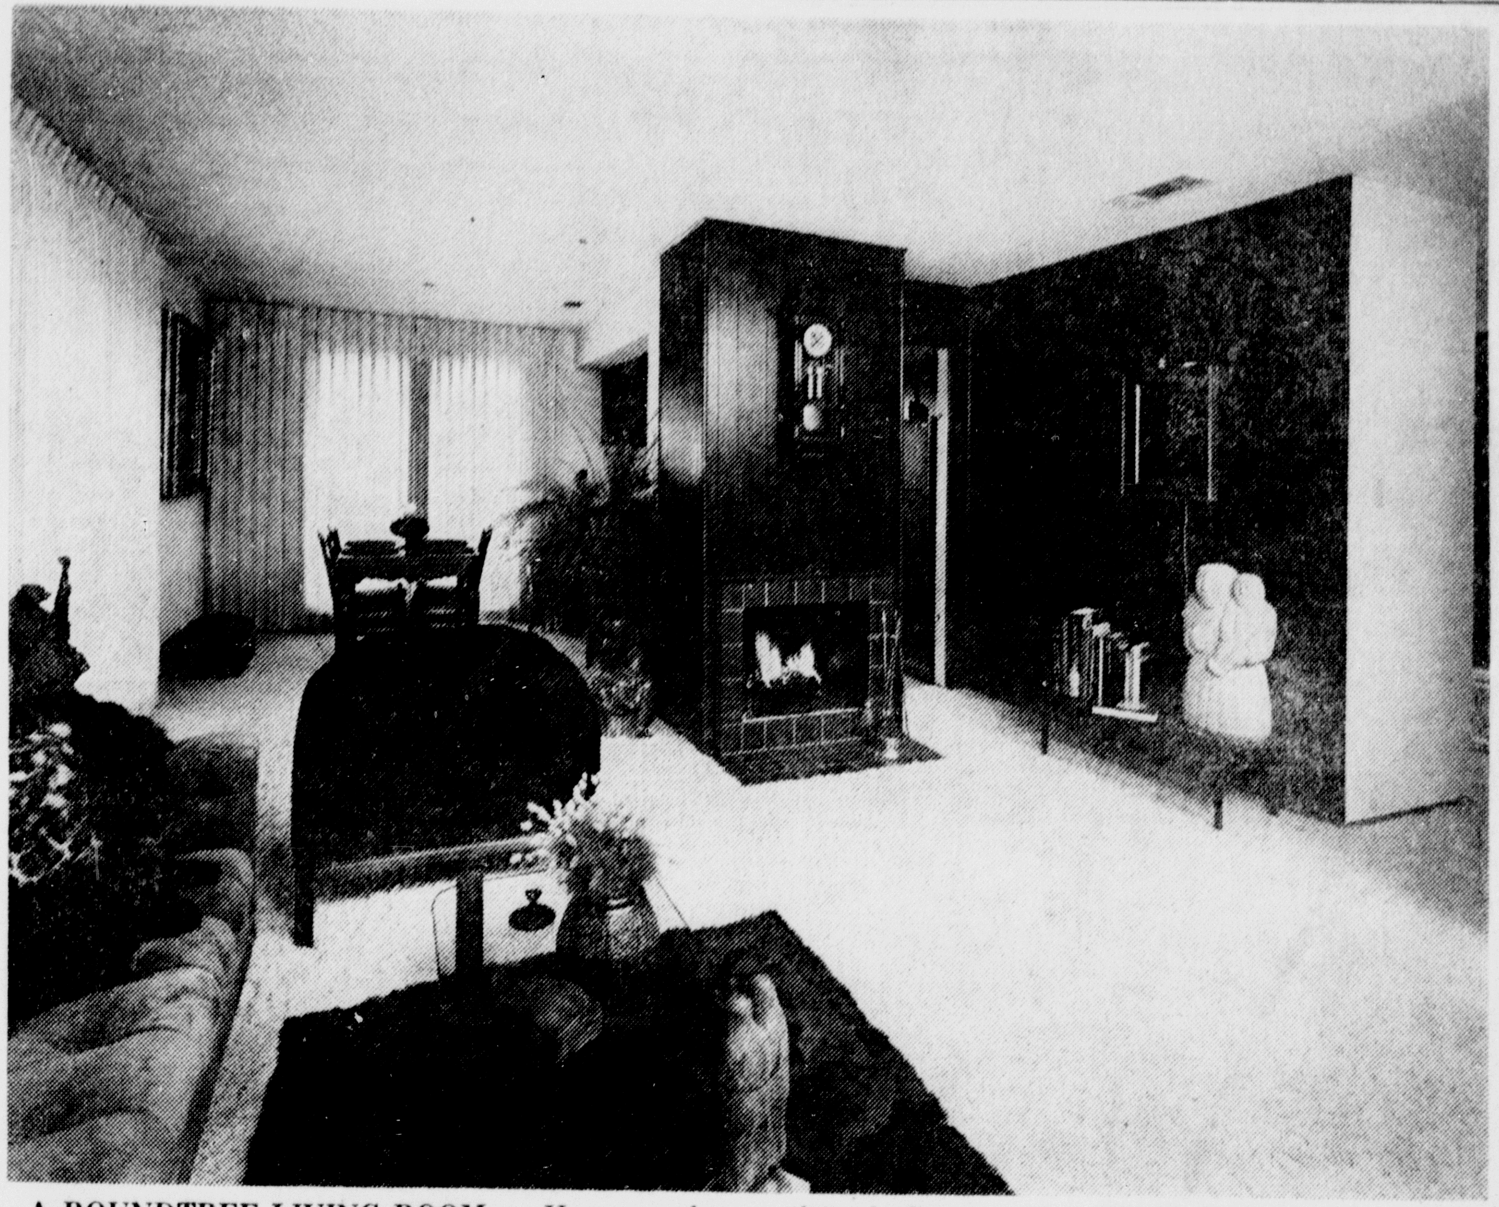
MOSTLY LAWNS AND PLANTS AT ROUNDTREE

Site planning at Roundtree Marin, subdivision at Marinwood by the U.S. Development Corp. allows structures to cover barely more than 20 per cent of the land. The rest is taken up by acres of lawn, shrubs, trees, streets and pathways. located at Miller Creek Road and Las Gallinas Avenue, Roundtree is only one of several projects by U.S. Development throughout the Bay Area.



A ROUNDTREE LIVING ROOM — Homes make much use of wood paneling. Houses vary in size from two-bedroom, one-bath townhouses to three-bedroom and two-bath single level homes. A recreational center has also been started at the development.

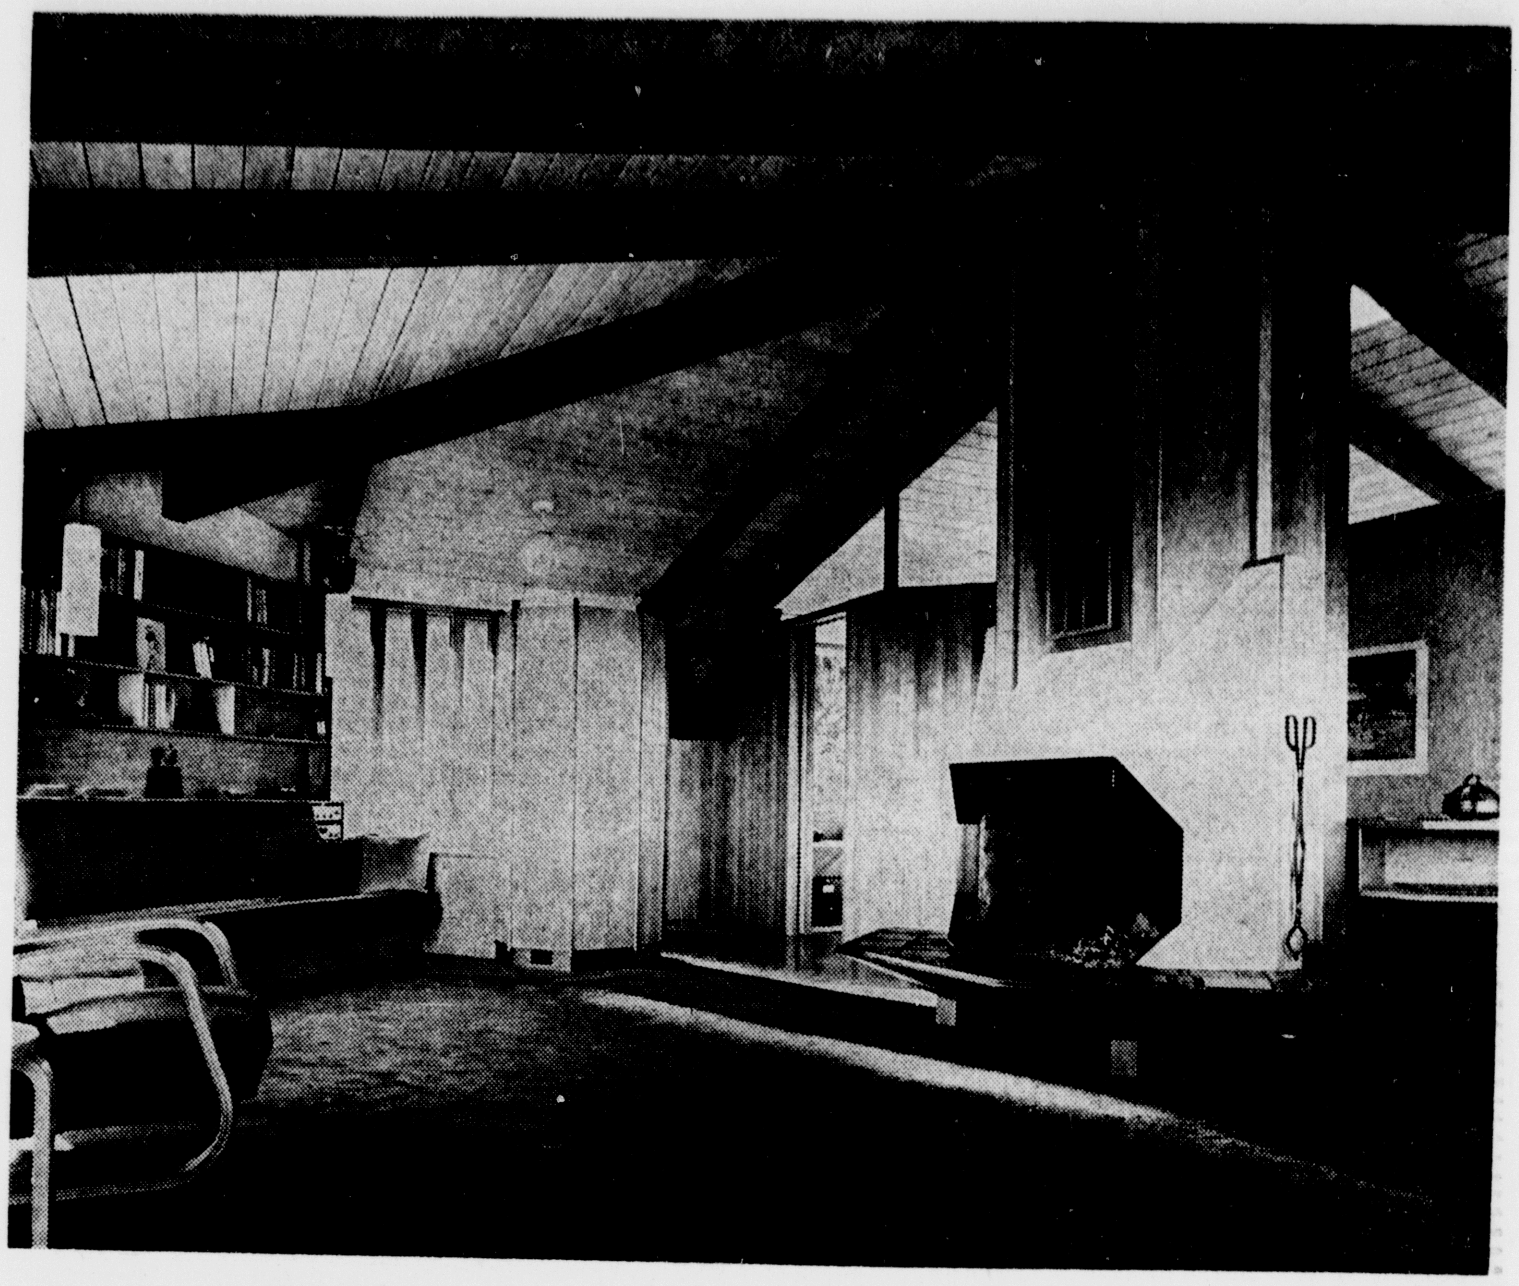
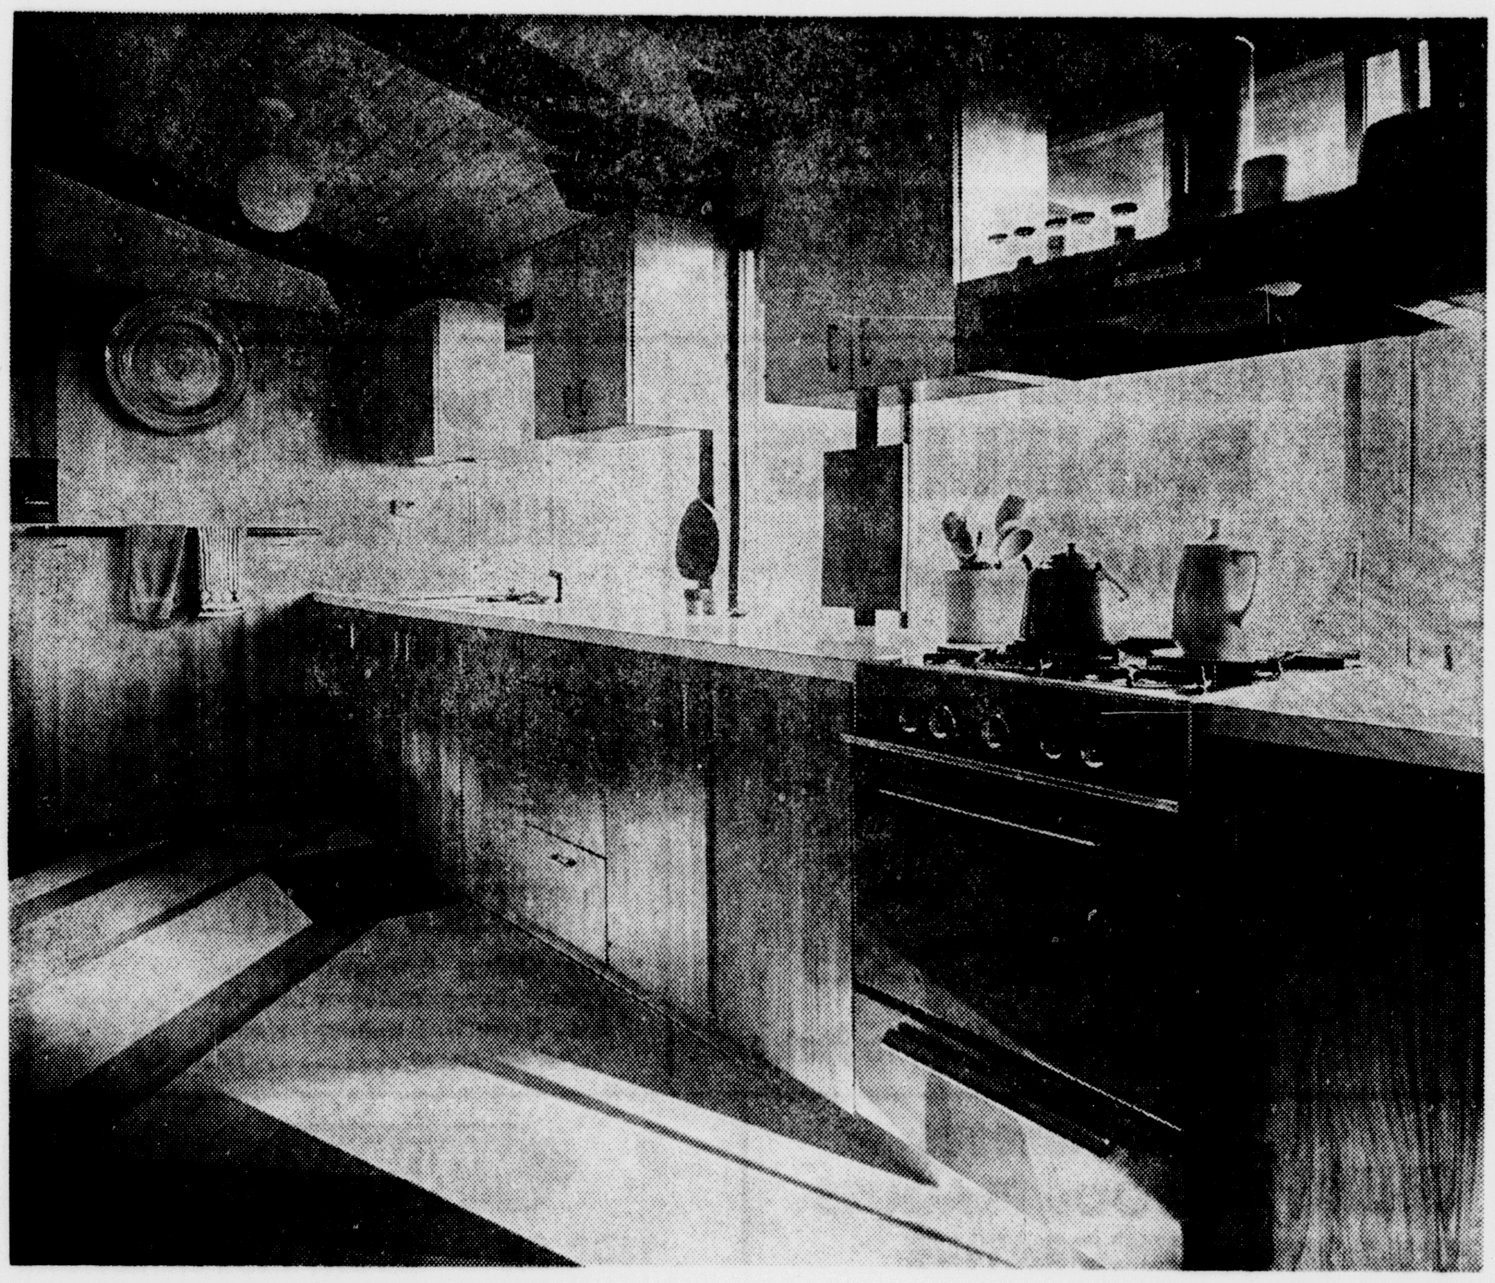
HOME ON 'UNBUILDABLE HILLSIDE'

Two buildings connected by a deck one level below the street make up this home on a steep lot at Strawberry Point designed by architect J. Martin Rosse. Foreground structure contains the garage. The house (background) has the living room on the deck level and two lower bedroom floors. Bay windows, uniform for every room, take advantage of the 180-degree panoramic view.



SOUTHWEST EXPOSURE — Western hemlock was used in wall paneling of this Strawberry Point home designed by architect Rosse. The ceiling is also hemlock, tongue and groove construction. A free standing coat closet separates the entrance area from the front room.



NORTH WALL OF KITCHEN — This area of architect Rosse's Strawberry Point home was planned to take advantage of a planted hillside view as well as a wide expanse of background hills. Average slope of this lot which was considered unbuildable is one and one-half to one. (Rondal Partridge photos).

An Efficient Laundry Is Time Saver

An efficient home laundry center with plenty of handy storage and workcounter space can be a real washday work and time saver for the lady of the house and a good home improvement project for the spring remodeling season.

Situate the laundry center where it'll be most convenient. That is, as close as possible to the area in the home where most of the washday work load originates. (Between the children's bedrooms and the bathroom is the most convenient location in most households.)

The laundry area should be outfitted with counters for sorting clothes and cabinets for storing soap, detergent and bleach and adequate lighting and a place for ironing should be provided.

When choosing the surfacing for the floor, walls and countertops in the laundry center, remember that accidents will happen.

Flowering Fireplace

An unused fireplace makes an excellent home for house plants. Fill the hearth with green plants of the leafy variety for the most interesting display. A good way to vary the height of the plants is to set some of them on inverted clay pots of different sizes.

INFORMAL GARDEN PLANTINGS AND TRELLIS

Landscape architect Michael Painter designed this trellis addition to his house in Mill Valley to carry out the existing beam and fascia alignment and provide sun protection on the west side of his home. Plantings are Meyer lemon, espaliered pococarpus elongata, yellow and orange gazania as ground cover and Monterey pine and olive in the bcakground. Potted plants are zinnias alternated with primulus.

Housewife-Builder Knows Solutions

Some women say builders don't give them everything they want in a home. The builders say that, if they did, the cost would be far above what most women and their families are prepared to pay.

But at least one home builder sees the problem from both sides. Mrs. Edmund Devlin is both builder and housewife. In fact she was responsible for a new home for her own family near Gaithersburg, Md., a Washington suburb. Mrs. Devlin got started building about five years ago because she couldn't get what she really wanted in a home.

On the basis of designing and supervising construction of about a dozen homes since, she offers the following tips to other women shopping for homes:

"Prepare yourself as adequately as you can before house hunting by reading, visiting homes of friends and asking questions.

"Buy or build a house to suit your needs and wants. Don't be overly concerned with resale value. If you like the house, chances are others will too.

"Buy or build with the future in mind. Get as much house as you can possibly afford. You'll be very happy you made the effort."

Mrs. Devlin adds:

"A lot of families are living in homes they really don't like because they simply didn't figure out exactly what they wanted and then insist on getting it. With anything as expensive and important as the home it's well worth the effort to try to get what you want. When I started building, I didn't know anything more about construction than any other women. But I did know what I wanted — and that's the most important thing."

Mrs. Devlin's average day is hectic. After getting her husband, a lumber company executive, and two children, 13 and 11, ready for work and school, she's off to the jobsite. The petite blonde housewife home-builder has no trouble with her all male crew and subcontractors. She's used the same basic construction crew all the years she has been building.

CURVED POOL DESIGN

POOL TIED IN WITH HOME DESIGN

WATERFRONT DEVELOPMENT UNDER WAY

Construction is progressing on the Warren Callister designed waterfront homes at Bahia in Novato, which was opened only last April. When completed Bahia will be a $100 million community offering single family homes and garden homes. Separate areas will be developed for fishing, water skiing, sailing and deep water anchorage for larger boats.

Common Drinking Glass Worst Disease Spreader

One of the worst offenders in spreading colds throughout a home is the old-fashioned common drinking glass, used in bathroom or kitchen by all the family. Because of it, Junior's sniffles too often become Dad's severe cold and Mother may easily "catch" influenza from germs roosting on it.

As millions of modern homemakers have discovered, this health risk can easily be eliminated by the use of disposable paper cups, placed in appropriate locations throughout the house.

Colorful and inexpensive home dispensers, made in a variety of handsome designs and holding 30 to 40 cups, are widely available to fit the decor of any kitchen, bath, powder room or playroom — wherever there's a faucet in the house. Sanitary paper cups to fit these jiffy-service dispensers come in an array of bright and pastel colors and patterns, to add a gay accent to any setting.

Always Check Mechanical Systems

The fastest way to end up a sad and sorry homeowner is to take the mechanical systems for granted when you buy a house. The value of a house depends only partly upon the quality of materials used. Most of the value lies in the ability of the mechanical systems to provide comfortable living for you and your family.

If you can't intelligently balance the price of a house against its true value, the chances are you won't get what you expected or what you paid for. With a car, for instance, you always investigate its important mechanical features and perhaps even test drive it before you buy. A house costs 10 or 20 times as much as a car and is probably the largest single investment you'll ever make, yet you can't try it before you buy it.

It's obviously far more important to know everything about a house, particularly the mechanical systems, before you make your purchase. The best procedure to follow is to have a complete investigation and appraisal made by a competent engineer. Although there is no substitute for this type of professional service, there are some indicators that point to value in a house and they can help you make a preliminary screening of the best buys.

One good indicator is air conditioning. The presence or absence of a central air conditioning system is, in itself, a reflection of the value of a house. This relationship is often overlooked by the prospective homebuyer who takes his mechanical systems for granted.

If the house you are about to buy has a modern central air conditioning system that cools and dehumidifies, filters out pollen and dust, and delivers fresh, healthy air, then you can be almost certain that corresponding value has been built into the rest of the house.

Marble Shelves Can Add To A Home's Atmosphere

A marble shelf combines both beauty and usefulness, and is easy to install and maintain. You can put one in any room in the house. In the foyer, it subs for a console. With a mirror or a group of prints above and a bowl of flowers on it, you have instant atmosphere. In the bedroom, it doubles for a dressing table. Over a studio couch or beside a bed, it holds reading light, tissues, books, radio, clock, a collection of whatever you collect.

In the living room, it displays art objects, family photos, plants. In the dining room, it doubles for a party buffet. In the kitchen, it's useful for herbs, spices, cookbooks; in the bathroom, it can hold jars, bottles, tissues, guest towels.

While imported marble can run fairly high, many varieties of domestic marble are comparatively inexpensive.

First thing to decide is size. An inch thick — the most-used size — weighs about 14 pounds a square foot, so be sure to choose brackets that will support it safely. The nature of the wall will, of course, determine what method or type of plug you use to anchor the bolts securely.

Most marble companies as well as hardware and department stores have brackets designed especially to support the weight of marble shelves. They're made of cast brass and come with through bolts.

Another interesting and highly decorative way to install a marble shelf is to use two strips of book-shelf standards. Fit a mirror into the space above and top it with shelves — either glass or wood — to hold glasses or a favorite collection, be it seashells, old china or small memorabilia.

After you decide on the length and width of your shelf, visit your local marble supplier. Be sure to specify which parts are to be polished. The top surface as well as the front — and side (if they show) edges — should be burnished. For shapes like a semi-circle or semi-oval, it's best to make a paper or cardboard pattern in the exact size and shape decided on.

Once it's installed, you'll want to keep your marble shelf looking its best. A regular treatment with paste wax will not only preserve the sheen but protect the surface from scratches and mars.

A new type of vinyl wallcovering has a rayon-type backing that permits it to be stripped from the wall at a later time without messy steaming or scraping.

Chandelier Back In Dining Room

From the edge of extinction, chandeliers have returned to add light, charm and beauty to dining rooms. The surge is due both to the generally increased acceptance of installed lighting fixtures in recent years and the trend to bring formality back into the dining room.

Furniture manufacturers and interior designers are combining to separate the dining room from the informality that characterizes modern living. Chandeliers are becoming a key part of the more formal ensemble. They coordinate furnishings, add focal high lights, provide light that flatters diners and adds sparkle to glassware and tableware.

Rooms facing North or East, which lack direct sunlight, will brighten with the use of reds, yellows and oranges. Cooler shades will achieve the opposite effect in rooms facing South and West.

LUXURY HOME AT LUCAS VALLEY

American Housing Guild designers have created many new features including this spacious living room for the Falley Oak model. Heavily timbered cathedral ceilings tops an extensive use of glass in windows and walls, archtecturally designed fireplace and a unique sunken conversation pit. Some 46 new homes will be built by American Housing in its new creekside section, affording interesting landscaping and recreational opportunities.

OUT OF THE TRAFFIC PATTERN

This kitchen was designed to be at the heart of the house, but is kept clear for efficient work with a bar area that is bypassed by traffic. All cabinets are within easy reach. Louvered door storage at the right contains home-canned fruits and vegetables as well as extra dishes and other household equipment.

Bathrooms Of The 70s Will Be Far From Drab

The bathroom of the 1970s will be as colorful and highly styled as it is functional. And because tomorrow's bath will be made up of mix-and-match fixtures that snap together like erector sets, the homemaker will take an active hand in planning and decorating this once neglected room.

New bath fixtures — tub-shower combinations, shower stalls, wall surfaces with molded-in vanities and cabinets — are a far cry from the sinks and tubs of yesteryear. Now molded into colorful and dramatric forms from a rainforced plastic, baths can be multicolored, uniquely styled rooms.

The plastic, reinforced with fiber glass yarns to increase durability, can be formed into one-piece shapes never before possible. The first bathroom application was in one-piece shower stalls and tub-shower combinations where seats, shelves and trays were molded into the structural sidewalls.

While this unitized bathroom construction may take over new home areas, much will be done to modernize bathrooms in existing houses.

One-piece tub-shower combinations will not fit through the doors of most homes already built nor will the single-piece wall cabinet sections of tomorrow's baths. Therefore, fixture manufacturers are developing snap-together bathrooms — component parts that will literally be dropped off at the customer's home, carried inside and snapped together into a totally new bathroom.

One manufacturer has already made this breakthrough with a four-piece tub-shower combination. Its designers say their reason for developing the snap-together combination was to make modern bath design and improvements available to to aid in the vast urban renewal problem. Most design experts say the molded fixtures are the first real change in bathrooms since the legs came off tubs. But they're not stopping there. They say homemakers will one day shop for bathroom fixtures much as they shop for an automobile. Showrooms will display complete bathrooms, and customers will select color, size, model and options to fit their needs. Then the complete room — tub-shower, basin-counter wall sections and so forth — will simply be delivered and snapped into place.

The snap-together bathroom will reduce installation cost. It lot of choice in design and decoration.

Check Color Schemes Of 'Prettier' Homes

When one house looks better than its neighbors, but you can't quite figure out why, check its color scheme.

Exterior color is often the secret of a more attractive, better-proportioned appearance. With a wide pallete of colors available today in both exterior paints and roofing materials, the appearance of any home can be improved and given individuality without making architectural changes.

Mistakes At Purchase Time Can Be Costly

The asking price may sound attractive — but are you sure the house is worth it? The great majority of buyers don't really know much about their dream house except that it "looks all right," and they can meet the monthly mortgage payments.

It's not wise to gamble with what is probably the largest financial commitment of your life. Doesn't it make sense to find out what that house is actually worth? If you don't know, the chances are seven out of 10 you'll be paying more than you should.

Make up your mind to be an informed buyer before you make an offer.

What you may need is the expert guidance and authoritative opinion of the value of that house today as given by a professional real estate appraiser.

When a professional appraiser finishes inspecting the house you want, you'll know whether the house had structural defects, and whether the electrical wiring is in proper condition. You won't have to "hope" the heating system is adequate. The professional appraiser will tell you, as he will tell you whether the existing plumbing is satisfactory.

Beyond this, he'll tell you about neighborhood conditions. The location of shopping centers, schools, churches and recreational areas affect the value of that house as it stands today —as do property taxes and special assessments.

But the best and most useful information the professional appraiser will give you is the dollars and cents opinion of the value of that house.

Face-Nailing Paneling Has Become Old Hat

Face-nailing paneling has become old hat with arrival of general purpose adhesive. It is clean, quick-drying and adheres firmly to all wood, gypsum board, hardboard, plywood, acoustical tile and concrete surfaces. Yet it gives the craftsman time to position the furring strips or panels exactly.

Applied directly to studding, furring strips or solid backing, it eliminates the need for face nailing, making the job easier, neater, quicker. One cartridge bonds three to four 4x8-foot panels.

Collect samples of wallpaper, paint, upholstery, carpeting before a major redecorating job. These will enable you to see at first hand how different color combinations will strike your fancy.

Winter Good Time To Air-Condition Home

Delays in completing the installation of a central air-conditioning system in the busy season are sometimes unavoidable, but they can cause unnecessary discomfort.

During winter months contractors welcome additional installation work to keep their crews occupied, and in some cases they will offer price reductions to encourage winter business. Usually they can do the job at your convenience and finish it up quickly and without interruptions.

Good Idea: Know The Valve System

There comes a time in every home owner's life when it becomes necessary to shut off the water at the point where it enters the house.

The chances are that he knows exactly where to go and what to do.

But what happens when he isn't there? Do the other members of the family know where the main shut-off valve is located? Do they know which valve to close when the cold water must be turned off without affecting the hot water? And vice versa.

The answer to the latter three questions is probably "no." The best way to avoid the trouble that can ensue when the water can't be shut off properly is to place tags on all the key valves. Each tag should tell what it controls and how the valve is turned to halt the flow of water. And each responsible member of the family should be adviesd that all such valves work the same way: when one is turned clockwise, the valve closes and the water is halted; when it is turned counterclockwide, the valve opens.

In addition to the main valves, there are separate shut-offs at some fixtures, especially in newer houses.

Redwood Is Ideal Siding; It Weathers Naturally

Remodeling should beautify and increase the resale value of a house, but it should also reduce maintenance. This is especially true in exterior remodeling, where maintenance can be a real chore.

For those who wish to remodel with wood siding and yet reduce maintenance, it is necessary to select a weather-resistant wood which, if desired, can be left as is. Redwood is such a material, since it weathers naturally into a soft, driftwood grey. It can, of course, be stained, bleached, painted or finished with a water repellent if some other effect is wanted. In any case, it has tremendous dimensional stability, shrinking and swelling less, and is almost totally esistant to decay and insect attack.

Once you've decided to remodel the outside — either the whole house or the facade—there are several things you must consider. The first is whether you want vertical or horizontal siding. Factors which may influence your choice include existing siding (ease of removal in preparation for new siding) and the architectural scheme of your house (the effect you want the siding to accomplish). No two houses are the same, so it's to your advantage to weigh these factors carefully before starting. A wise move is to consult a building or remodeling contractor for advice. Next, make a trip to your local lumber dealer and pick out the size, pattern and texture of siding you plan to install.

Only you know whether you have the skill and experience necessary to do the entire job yourself. If not, you should enlist the services of a qualified carpenter. His experience and know-how will prove invaluable. He will handle the more exacting steps of the siding installation — but there's still much for you to do. Professional help, with your assistance, will result in a topnotch job while saving you money.

After the decisions as to placement, coloration, grain and pattern, the installation of your redwood siding and trim may seem anticlimactic, but take your time to achieve best results. Although there is no such thing as "Five Easy Steps to Siding," the order in which you and your carpenter follow accepted procedures is important:

1. Trim should be removed from windows, doors, etc. where it will interfere with siding installation. The nailing surface must be smooth where siding will be installed. In some cases, siding may be applied right over existing coverings. In others (such as stucco and masonry), furring strips, into which the siding can be nailed, must be put up. Other obstructions, such as battens, must also be removed.

2. Cut siding. An electric saw is a good thing for many projects, but if you or your carpenter don't have one, a saw can be rented for a reasonable price. Siding forming corners should be carefully measured and cut.

3. The siding should now be nailed. If you previously hadn't given much thought to the type of nails to use, do so before the pounding starts. To avoid rust stains, use stainless steel, aluminum or top quality hot-dipped galvanized nails. Trying to save a few cents on nails might give you headaches next year.

4. After the siding is installed, the trim around windows, doors and vents should be nailed into place. Here's where the skill and experience of your carpenter really comes in handy. Redwood trim will best complement your new siding.

5. The final step is one that you can do yourself. Apply any appropriate finish you may have decided to put on your siding — or leave it as is. For best results, carefully read package directions.

Various kinds and colors of woods add interest to a room. The theory that all wood in a room should be identical has long since been disproved.

Outdoor Lighting—A Major Key

Outdoor lighting can be a vital part of your family's enjoyment of home. With light, the working members of the family can enjoy terraces and patios that are otherwise unusable after dark, and guests can share your pleasure at the entrancing scenes of a subtly-lit garden by night.

With properly placed lights, your home has extra security, since lighting discourages prowlers and provides protection against falls and other accidents.

Lighting fixture manufacturers have designed many handsome new fixtures for all residential outdoor uses. These include wall lanterns, post lamps, hanging fixtures, special floodlights and spotlights for outside illumination, and delightful low - to - the - ground path lights, for accent lighting.

Among the new post lamps and wall lanterns are authentic reproductions of pre-revolutionary days, fashioned in antique brass or copper. Reflecting the gracious heritage of Colonial America, these fixtures are hand-crafted with polished brass reflectors and crystal glass panels. Flanking an entrance, these fixtures enhance any traditional or colonial home, and cast a warm hospitable glow at your doorway.

Reminiscent of Charles Dickens' England are some of the new coach-style post lamps planned to brighten a flight of steps, a garage or a winding pathway through the garden. Designed in black, antique copper or brass, the fixtures are sometimes set with frosted or etched glass. Some models are available with telescoping posts which can extend from 4½' to 8' as needed.

To dramatize garden plantings, a pool or to edge a walkway, graceful path lights come in a variety of styles. There are shrub-shaped aluminum lights, curving flower bell fixtures, three - tiered pagoda designs, and sculptured mushroom lights, — all painted green to blend into the landscape, and all approximately 7" to 9" high for low-level viewing.

Other fixtures that will illuminate a front or side door are hanging chain-suspended antique brass lanterns with star-cut beveled edges. They are also designed in white or black to blend with all decors.

Spotlights and floodlights may be mounted high on the branches of trees or under overhanging eaves, and focused on certain areas, to create interesting shadows. Spotlights will create more exact and clearly defined patterns than floodlights, but if either kind of fixture is placed too close to the object, a fuzzy shadow will result.

The outdoor "living area" — your "garden room" — should contain the highest level of light on the outdoor scene. As a general rule, only 5 footcandles are required for dining, 10 footcandles for card games or craft work tables, and 20 to 40 footcandles focused on reading areas. A footcandle is a technical measurement of light when the foot is the unit of length — thus, the uniform illumination of one square foot of surface.

To create concentrated light, floodlights should be concealed in trees, fastened to roof overhangs or located in deep housings, but they should be focused directly on the terrace or patio for the greatest family benefit.

Remember that the chief difference between lighting within and outside your home is that light within the home is confined, whereas outside, the sky is the limit. Light does not bounce off walls and ceilings. It is absorbed by the night. Thus it becomes a challenge to the skill of the homeowner to light the out-of-doors.

SAFETY SUGGESTIONS

Consult your local lighting showroom for expert advice on planning your garden lighting, at no charge.

The American Home Lighting Institute suggests that the wiring be installed by an electrical contractor to insure that it is done properly. Underground circuits are the most permanent, but they must be protected from insect and rodent damage, be capable of surviving severe weather, and be insulated from moisture damage during freezing and thawing. Above-ground circuits are easier to install, but less attractive.

Other safety suggestions include: Ground all outdoor lighting with three-wire cords, a three-pronged plug, and a grounded electrical outlet box; weatherproof all switches, sockets, outlet boxes and other equipment before using; and install separate circuits for outdoor use, rather than overload existing indoor circuits.

Air-Conditioning Has Own Brain—

Your central air-conditioning system has its own brain — the thermostat. Give the thermostat a chance to operate effectively by making certain it is properly located where there is normal air circulation.

Thethermostat is designed to provide you with maximum comfort at lowest cost, automatically regulating temperature and, to an extent, humidity, but improper placement can prevent it from doing this.

Keep the thermostat away from equipment that produces heat, away from lamps, TV, radios, kitchen appliances. Don't locate it behind a door that will block air circulation. A thermostat should not be near large glass areas where excessive heat may enter.

Use Specialized Room For Specialized Life

The members of a lively, busy family tend to have highly specialized interests. One member may build ship models while another wants to toot a trumpet. And, if several of these interests are pursued simultaneously, some rather sharp conflicts may occur.

To solve the problem, the home should have a specialized room that frees the rest of the house for general living. An architect, lumber dealer or contractor can show you how a room of this type can be built right onto your present home. The room addition can blend in so perfectly that it will look like part of the original.

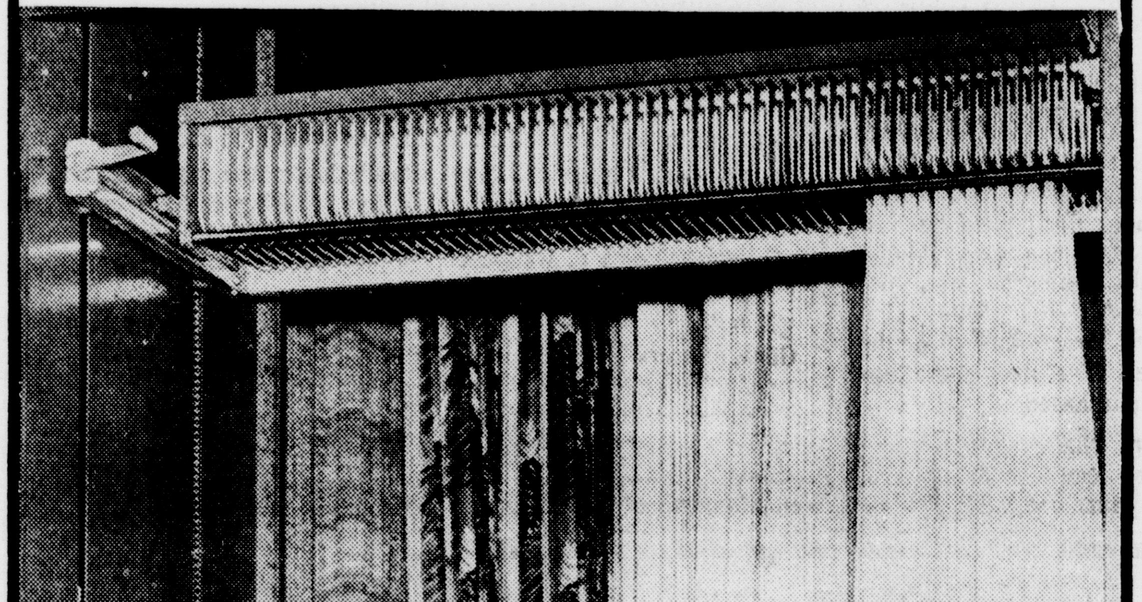
WHAT EVERY HOMEMAKER SHOULD KNOW ABOUT DRAPERY CLEANING.



It is a revelation to homemakers when Major Drapery Cleaners, San Rafael, explain what their drapery finishing machine can do. With this unit, pleats and hemlines stay even, with drapes kept to a predetermined length. All drapes are dried and deodorized in hanging position in drying cabinets. No harmful tumbling action! The machine also sizes (sprays) your drapes for proper body and texture. Controlled amounts of CS4, Hexachlorophene, bacteriostats, and fungicides are introduced leaving the drapes germacetically clean. Even moth and insect repellents are applied. Finally, draperies are coated with invisible non-toxic hydroscopic waxes to repel deterioration.

HOME THAT CAN GROW

A feature of this Foothill Manor house in Petaluma by Debra Homes, Inc. is a bonus space which can be utilized either for two additional bedrooms or a rumpus room. In this scene, going over plans for the development are Richard C. Corwin of Sonoma Mortgage Co., which finances the project, and Arthur Condiotti of Condiotti Enterprises, Inc., the builder. Foothill Manor consists of one and two-story ranch style homes.

'Sound-Conditioning' Home Model Proves Many Points

Noise control may someday be as important to the homeowner as climate control. A Dallas, Tex., builder is exhibiting a "sound-conditioned" home to prove the point.

There are more sources of noise in the home today than there were in grandfather's day. The electronic voices of television, stereo, and radio are particularly insistent and penetrating. But there are many other sources of unwanted sound.

Air conditioners whirr for hours at a time. Refrigerators, washing machines, and other heavy appliances add to the decibel level. And automobile and air traffic have increased mightly. Footsteps, voices, plumbing, and heating all make noise.

To compound the problem, modern building materials and techniques often produce buildings that deaden sounds less than did the solid building of a few years ago.

The problem is attacked in four ways:

1. By using sound absorbent materials.
2. By using devices that are noiseless, such as mercury light switches and noiseless flush toilets.
3. By situating noisy machinery far away from living areas.
4. By designing the house so that noise cannot travel freely from area to area.

Sound waves bounce off hard surfaces. That is why footsteps echo in long corridors, and voices sound loud in empty rooms. Acoustical ceiling tiles, draperies, and rugs and carpets soak up the sound waves.

According to one test of carpeting's sound absorbent qualities, carpeting teamed with an underlay of latex foam rubber or latex foam and hair will absorb more airborne noise than any other type of floor covering. In additon, the foam rubber underlay will almost completely eliminate "impact" noises from heels, chair scrapes, and dropped objects. This is especially important in apartment living.

Machinery is noisy. Central air conditioning equipment is best for making a quiet house, because it can be located in cellar or outside the home, away fram the living areas. The same is true of washing machines and dryers. If they cannot be placed out of earshot, they should be muffled by enclosing them in a sound reducing compartment. Simply building a "closet" of pegboard around machiners will muffle noise to a remarkable degree.

In the Dallas house, the kitchen exhaust fan is located in the attic, and operates so quietly that a warning light is necessary so that the owner can tell when the fan is turned on.

Design is important, too. Sound carries easily through pipes, straight hallways, and directly through walls and floors. However, a turn can easily baffle the passage of sound, and if closets shield a bedroom from the adjacent bathroom, noise will be muffled.

Guarantees, Warranties, Bonds Important To Remodeling Project

If you're house-hunting or remodeling your home, keep in mind the guarantees, warranties and bonds that many manufacturers of building materials issue to back up their products. These are important guides to the durability and performance of the products.

Any of these forms of guarantee usually is issued in writing. The certificate is given to the homeowner by the specalty contractor who does the work — a roofing contractor, for example — or the builder, if a new house has been purchased.

While slightly different in precise legal meaning, the words guarantee, bond and warranty all signify protection for the buyer.

Some materials available with manufacturers' guarantees, warranties or bonds are:

Fiberglass screening — guaranteed for 10 years against denting, shrinking, corroding, and rusting that results in sidewall staining.

Asphalt roof shingles —all heavyweight shingles carry written guarantee, bond or warranty covering homeowner against defective materials up to 25 years.

Garage doors — one year warranty against defects in material or workmanship, plus lifetime warranty against splitting, checking or delamination of the insert panels.

Wood house doors — one-year guarantee to be of good material and workmanship, free from defects.

Insulating window glass — warranted for five years against film formation or dust collection between panes, under normal circumstances.

Water heaters — warranted for five to 10 years against defects in workmanship or material under normal use.

Wood windows — material in windows guaranteed against factory defects and faulty workmanship.

Exterior plywood — guaranteed for the life of the building against delamination, regardless of weather.

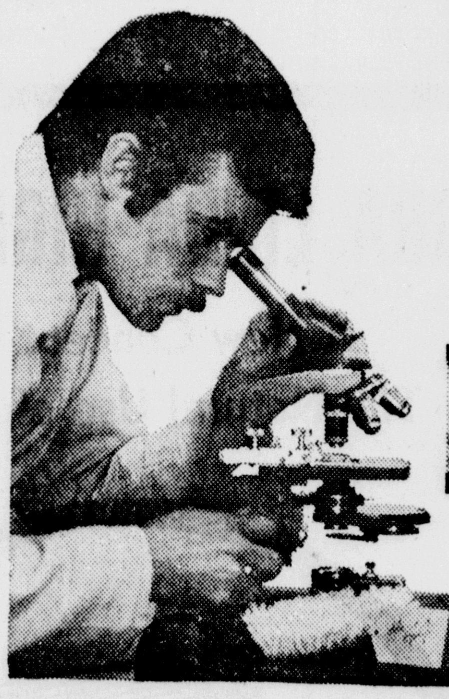
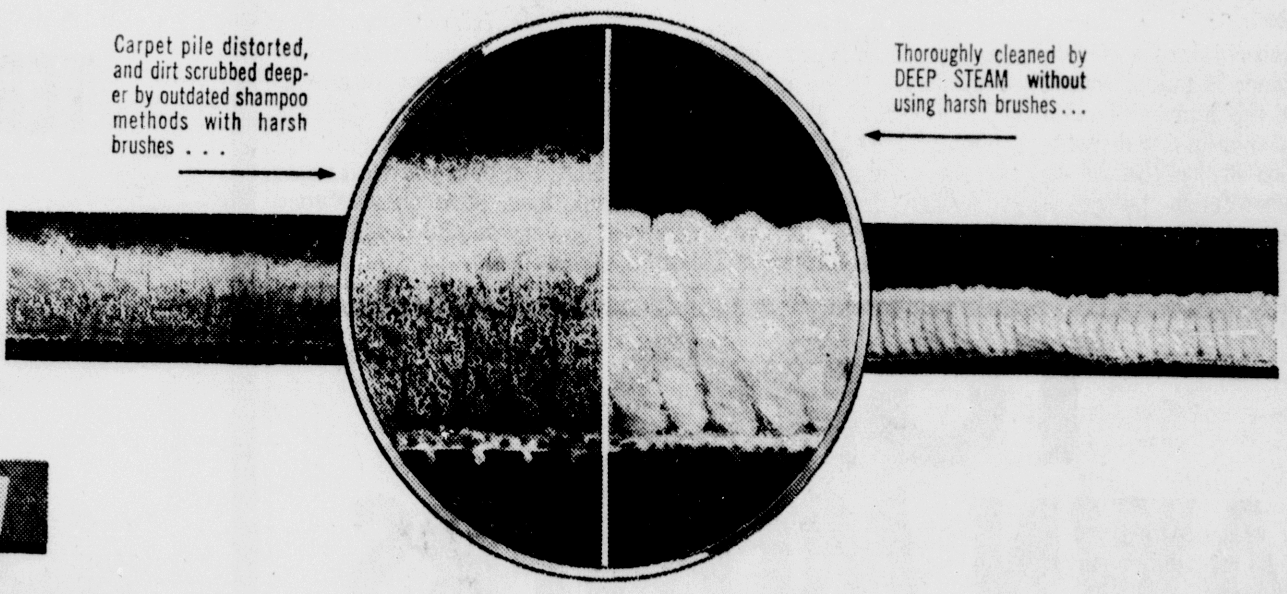
"You're In Good Hands With Allstate."

Some people will do almost anything to get your carpet cleaning business.
The important question is:
Will they really get your carpet clean?

Some carpet cleaners who still use the old fashioned shampoo method with harsh scrubbing brushes try to suggest that the original, time-tested, patented, DEEPSteam carpet cleaning process is harmful to your carpet.





Carpet pile distorted, and dirt scrubbed deeper by outdated shampoo methods with harsh brushes . . .
Thoroughly cleaned by DEEP STEAM without using harsh brushes . . .

Let's look at the facts and compare...

Outdated (and often damaging) shampoo methods with their harsh brushes claim they have as many as 15 different soil-removing methods. The only dirt that can be removed by these methods is the loose dirt on or near the surface of the carpet. Any dirt that is left in or around the carpet fibers is then scrubbed deeper into the carpet. This dirt and the scum-forming shampoo cannot magically disappear. For a carpet to be clean the dirt must be rinsed or flushed out. Would you wash your clothes without rinsing out the dirt and detergent?

DEEPSteam penetrates deep into the pile of your fine carpet.

A gentle bath of wet steam with a cleaning agent dislodges even the most stubborn particles of dirt, dust and grime and then immediately rinses them away into a waste tank. Not only is all foreign material removed from your carpet by DEEPSteam's powerful extraction method, but every fiber of the carpet is coated with protective soil retardant, deodorizer, and mothproofing at no extra cost.

With DEEPSteam there is no danger of frayed or loosened fibers because no brushes or harsh chemicals are used. There is no chance of a scummy, unpleasant detergent residue because no detergents are used. There is no possibility of scrubbing dirt and grime down into your carpet, hiding but not removing it, because DEEPSteam extracts all dirt and grime.

So why take a chance with old-fashioned second-class carpet care systems? Why risk harsh detergents that leave a residue, or damaging brushes that simply scrub the dirt deeper . . . out of sight perhaps, but not out of your valuable carpeting?

Since 1964 we have Deep Steam cleaned over 30 million square feet of carpet and have gained valuable information (that only experience can bring) in the effective use of Wet Steam for carpet cleaning.

Over these years we have constantly maintained our high standard of excellence by developing more effective cleaning agents, techniques, and equipment to constantly improve our service. Be sure you have YOUR carpet cleaned by the time-tested ORIGINAL DEEPSteam CARPET CLEANING METHOD, the finest, the safest, the best care for every kind of carpet. Don't Accept Any Imitations

Inflation Can Hurt Home Policies

The inflation which you have been feeling in the pocketbook may be undermining your security in a way you can't feel at all. It may be weakening the protection afforded by your home or apartment insurance policy.

Most insured home owners or apartment dwellers tuck their policies away with their deeds or leases — and then forget about them. This is partly understandable, since nobody likes to think about sudden, unforeseeable damage or loss to his home. In our economy, however, a policy that is just right at the time of issue offers less and less protection the longer it is forgotten.

The fundamental rule of property insurance is that it should put you in the same financial condition after a loss or disaster as you were in just before it. That is what each policy is designed to do when it is first calculated. But before the normal three-year renewal time comes up, inflation is likely to render the policy inadequate.

It can happen fast. In the five years from July 1964 to July 1969, the consumer price index for the nation rose more than 18 per cent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In just one year, from July 1968 to July 1969, it increased 5½ per cent. (Base is the 1957-59 period.)

How can you keep your property insurance protection at the proper level? Frederick Watkins, president of Aetna Insurance, has these suggestions:

1—Remind yourself of the date your policy was issued and the sums for which it provides. Then estimate the effect inflation has had on prices in your area. (It may vary from the national average.) Your insurance agent or broker may help you get this information, or you can check with the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Labor Department.

2—Don't feel compelled to wait until renewal to conform your policy to the new economic facts of life. You can do so any time. And consider providing for future, as well as past, inflation.

3—Make an inventory of the contents of your home or apartment and keep it up to date. On a room-by-room basis, list your possessions — from rugs and drapes to tables and chairs, from clocks to appliances, from clothing to jewelry. For each item, list the year purchased, the original cost and the present cash value. (This last figure should reflect replacement cost less depreciation). Your insurance agent or broker, or an independent appraiser, can help you with these calculations. Such an inventory can be very helpful if you suffer a serious loss.

4—Remember that some possessions appreciate, rather than diminish in value. Included are some antiques, works of art and jewelry. All the more reasons to keep your policy up to date.

5—If you own your own home, stay informed of its current replacement value. Since building costs have risen sharply in most areas, it would be more costly to replace than you may realize.

Remodeling Requires Planning

Spring remodeling should begin in winter. And if you're thinking about tackling a remodeling project next spring, stop thinking and start tackling.

No matter how small the job, it'll require planning which, in turn, will require time. And, notes the trade association of domestic ceramic tile manufacturers, the more time you allot to making plans the less trouble you'll have and the more money you'll save in implementing them.

Starting your spring remodeling project this winter will give you enough time to do some comparison shopping for services and materials in order to achieve a high degree of quality in the most economical way.

The object of comparison shopping is to get the most for your money and not simply to spend less money. So don't choose a service or a product just because it's cheap.

Oak Flooring Proves Ideal In Most Decors

Variety is the spice of life for home decorators, and oak flooring, because it can be refinished to blend with any changes in decor or a homeowner's mood, fits right in with this scheme of things.

Ordinarily, an oak floor can go ten years or more without need for refinishing. Then, a professional can do it for between 15 cents and 23 cents a square foot for a clear finish. But, it may be refinished more often than once a decade if you wish.

A finish should be easy to care for and should not hide the natural beauty of the floor. Homeowners should keep in mind that any refinishing should be done over a bare floor, sanded clean and free of earlier finishes

Penetrating sealer, either clear or colored, is suggested for final finish on most residential floors because it soaks into the wood. It wears only as the wood wears and will not chip or scratch. Best of all, when a worn spot does appear, it can be touched up or refinished without showing.

Varnish is a frequently-used final finish. Durable and fairly resistant to stains and spots, it comes in high, semi, and dull gloss. Varnish will darken with age, however.

Chief virtues of shellac are the speed with which it dries and the slowness it darkens with age. Glossy and transparent, shellac will spot if liquids are not promptly wiped away.

Lacquer is another quick-drying final finish, so quick that it must be applied with care. Glossy and about as durable as varnish, lacquer can be retouched fairly easily since the new coat will simply dissolve into the old one.

Manufacturers' instructions for applying any type of finish should be strictly followed. Waxing the finish with a good quality paste or liquid floor wax, then polishing, adds life to the finish and protects the floor from dirt and grit. Whichever wax is selected, it should have a solvent base, not a water base. All hardwood floor finishes have a degree of moisture-resistance, but water can spot the surface or cause the wood grain to rise.

Mortgage lending banks and agencies require you to carry fire, wind and other insurance on your poperty in order to protect their investment, but be sure the policy also protects your equity.

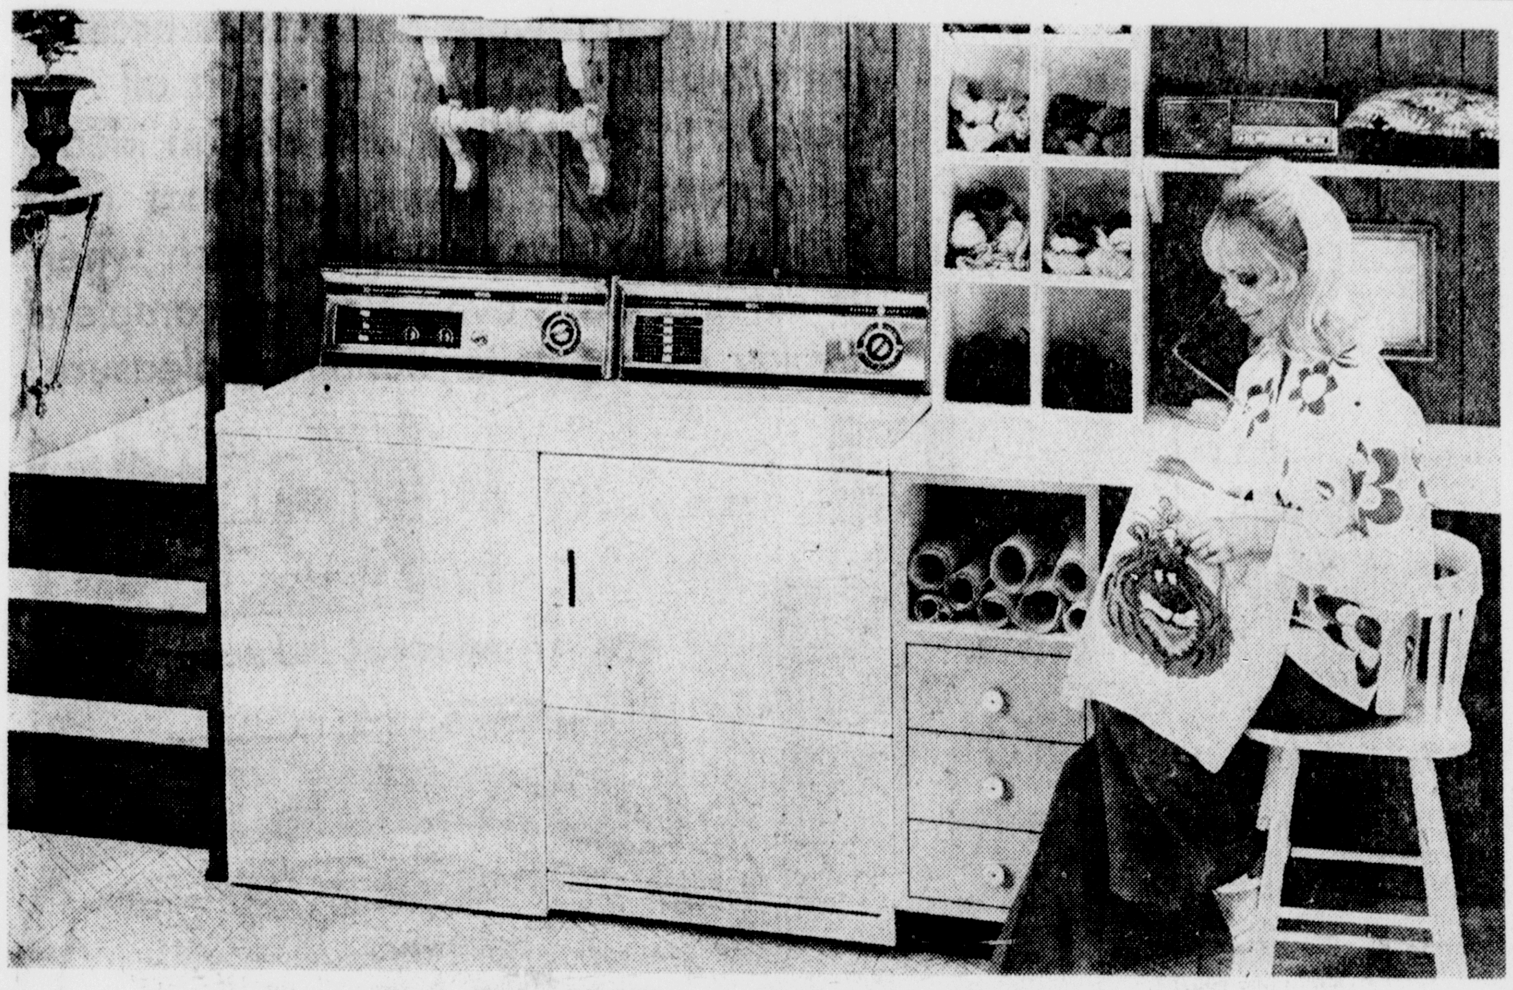
BLENDS WITH SCENERY

Natural materials make this house, designed by Phillips and Finisy for the Howard Friesens in Kent Woodlands, a part of its wooded setting. Trellised fence at the left connects the carport to the house and screens patio and rear entrance from the front approach. Ceilings follow the sloping cedar roof to a 13-foot height in the breakfast area and to 18 feet in the living room.



PLAYS A DUAL ROLE

By providing plenty of room for a washer and dryer and also for a homemaker's hobby corner, the sometimes dready laundry room is turned into another attractive addition. The walls are of wood paneling with a title floor of a lighter color.

Key To Slicing Of Wires Minus The Fuss

Ask any hardware, building supply or electrical parts dealer for a "solderless connector" or "twist-on connector" and he'll show you a small, conical-shaped device used to splice electrical wires in branch circuits or appliances.

These little connectors, available in three basic sizes depending on the number, gauge, and type of wires to be spliced, are as useful to keep in supply as screws and nails.

In use, they twist on without special tools, and can be removed just as easily, as new circuits are added or other changes implemented in the home wiring scheme.

Solderless connectors are essentially the same in outward appearance, but not in performance. The "secret" is a wire-holding mechanism, either plastic or metal, conical in shape with inner threads. A steel spring-action mechanism is preferred over copper or plastic, as the normal expansion and contraction of the wires can not work this type of connection loose. Connectors also should resist corrosion, while assuring good electrical contact.

The outside housing also is important. Solid materials can chip, or possibly break leaving the connection exposed. One of the newer connectors on the market features a flexible vinyl housing, with molded fins added for a better grip. The connectors also are color-coded as to size, making selection and identification within a circuit an easy task.

Here are a few guidelines for using electrical connectors:

Check your local electrical codes to see if connectors of this type may be used in branch circuits and, at the same time, which electrical chores you can do yourself.

Always work with the main or branch circuit turned off.

If using aluminum or a combination of aluminum and copper wires, make sure the connector you purchase is UL approved.

Make certain not too much insulation is removed from the wires prior to applying the connector or bare wire will be exposed even after the connector is in place, a possible hazard which may result in a short.

Use a connector rated for the size of wire (gauge) in use. Three or more wires spliced in this manner may require a larger connector.

Pre-twist the wires in a clockwise direction before adding the connector. The resultant connection will be tighter and will not work loose.

Hammer Marks

To prevent hammer marks on finished trim, use a nail shield made out of a piece of thin scrap plywood. Bore a quarter-inch hole through one end of the plywood for use with finishing nails, and a half-inch hole through the other end for use with ordinary nails

Drive the nail down to the shield, unhook the plywood and finish driving with a nailset.

Cluster Conecpt—Solution To Housing

Most people think the house of the future will be a cross between a piece of modern bathrooms, kitchens and living spaceship. Not so. Neighborhood design and layout will change in the years ahead, but houses will be very much the same.

We are still living in basically the same house that the people of Pompeii lived in. Families of tomorrow also will have the same needs for bedrooms, bathroofs, kitchens and living areas and builders of the future will continue to use most of the same construction materials they use today.

The big changes will be in neighborhood layout and planning. We already have planned unit developments which mix different types of dwellings — apartments, townhouses, single family homes — in one neighborhood.

The next major change will involve the way single-family homes are placed on land. One particularly promising concept is called the cluster — grouping single-family houses to make better use of available land. Sometimes, costs can be reduced by increasing the density of housing on a given piece of land. Clustering also helps make good use of difficult building sites and results in ribbons of green space between homes for beauty and recreational use.

The cluster concept was pioneered in Southern California and is now spreading to other parts of the country.

Single-family clustering will end the practice of placing houses in dull and seemingly endless rows along wide suburban streets. The way we have been planning neighborhoods not only wastes land, it has created a look-alike suburban blight that may become the slums of the future.

The traditional neighborhood was designed for the horse and buggy days. Suburban residents then needed large front yards to protect their homes from the dust of unpaved roads. They needed spacious side yards for ventilation and lighting and large back yards for gardens, chicken coops and hanging out the week's wash. Modern living has made that kind of suburban neighborhood as obsolete as the buggy whip and the crank for the family car.

Because cluster developments use land more efficiently, they must be adopted if we are to come anywhere close to meeting the country's future housing needs. There are demographic projections of at least 100 million more Americans by the end of the century — just 30 years away. Congress recognized the housing problem of the future when it enacted, in 1968, a law calling for the construction of 2.6 million new and renovated housing units every year until 1988. This plan would meet only the nations' minimum housing needs. Even so, housing starts were well below that goal in 1969.

Clustered single-family homes are one important solution to the country's housing shortage now and in the years ahead.

GALA by UNITED is the surprise modern look... ... for everywhere in your home

As elegant as its name, primavera veneers recreate the shimmering light of their tropical origin as they add to the handsomeness of elm solids and other selected hardwoods in this outstanding modern collection. This, in a warm, brown spicewood finish, is the beautiful beginning of Gala, where designs-for-dining match the splendor of the woods. And, as in all great modern design where splendor and simplicity go hand in hand . . . Gala, is distinguished by strong and beautiful lines throughout the collection. Polished chrome in hardware and casters accents the glow of it all. And to top it all . . . Gala is interest-filled with design ideas: for example, a serving cart that rolls into its own place under a hutch when its serving job is over. Now on complete display, Gala awaits your dining pleasure.

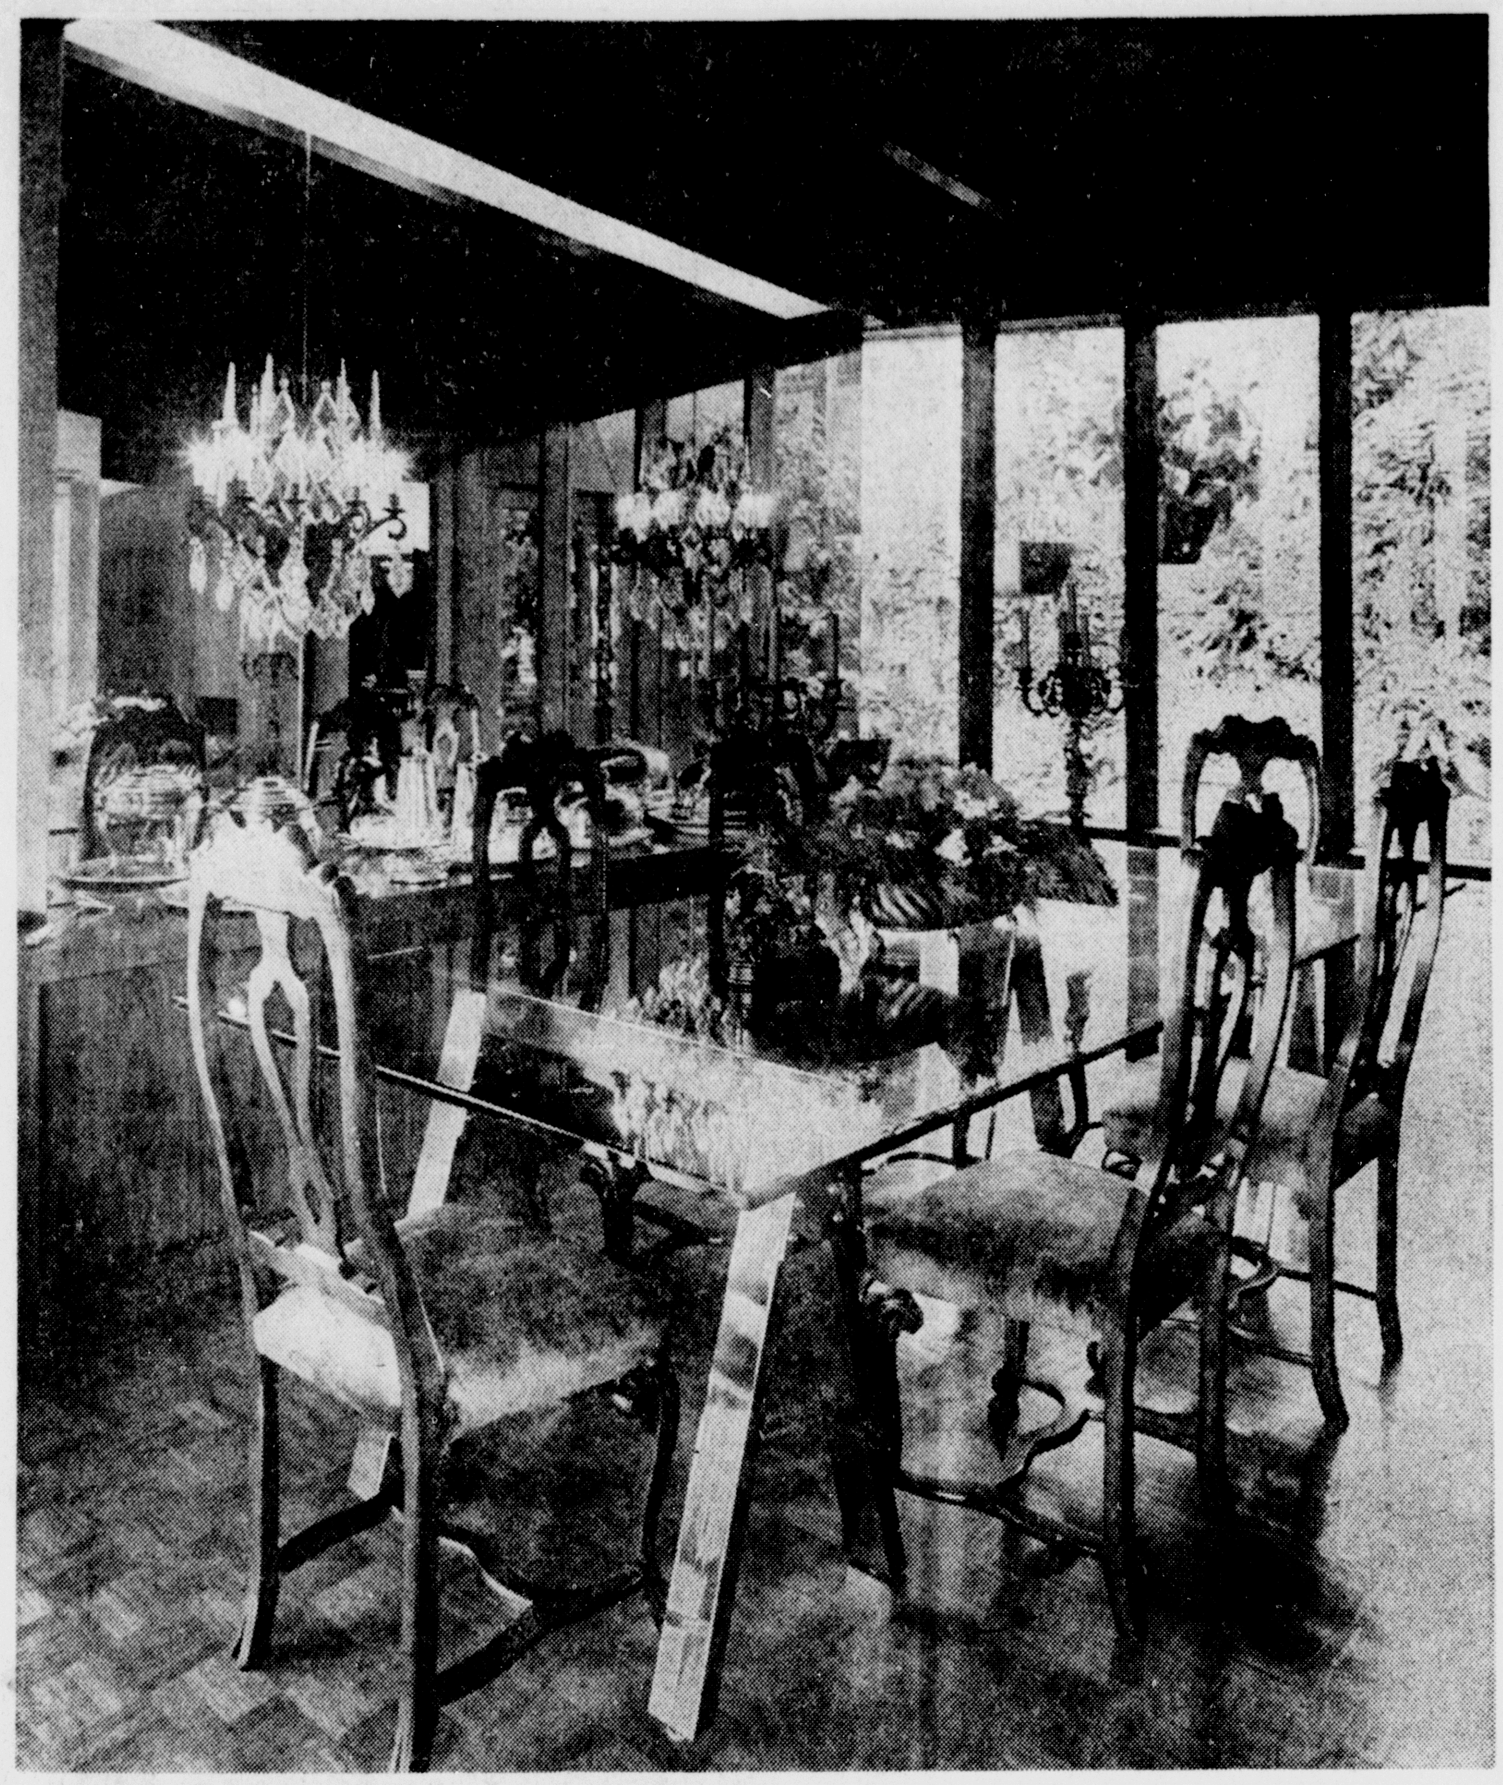
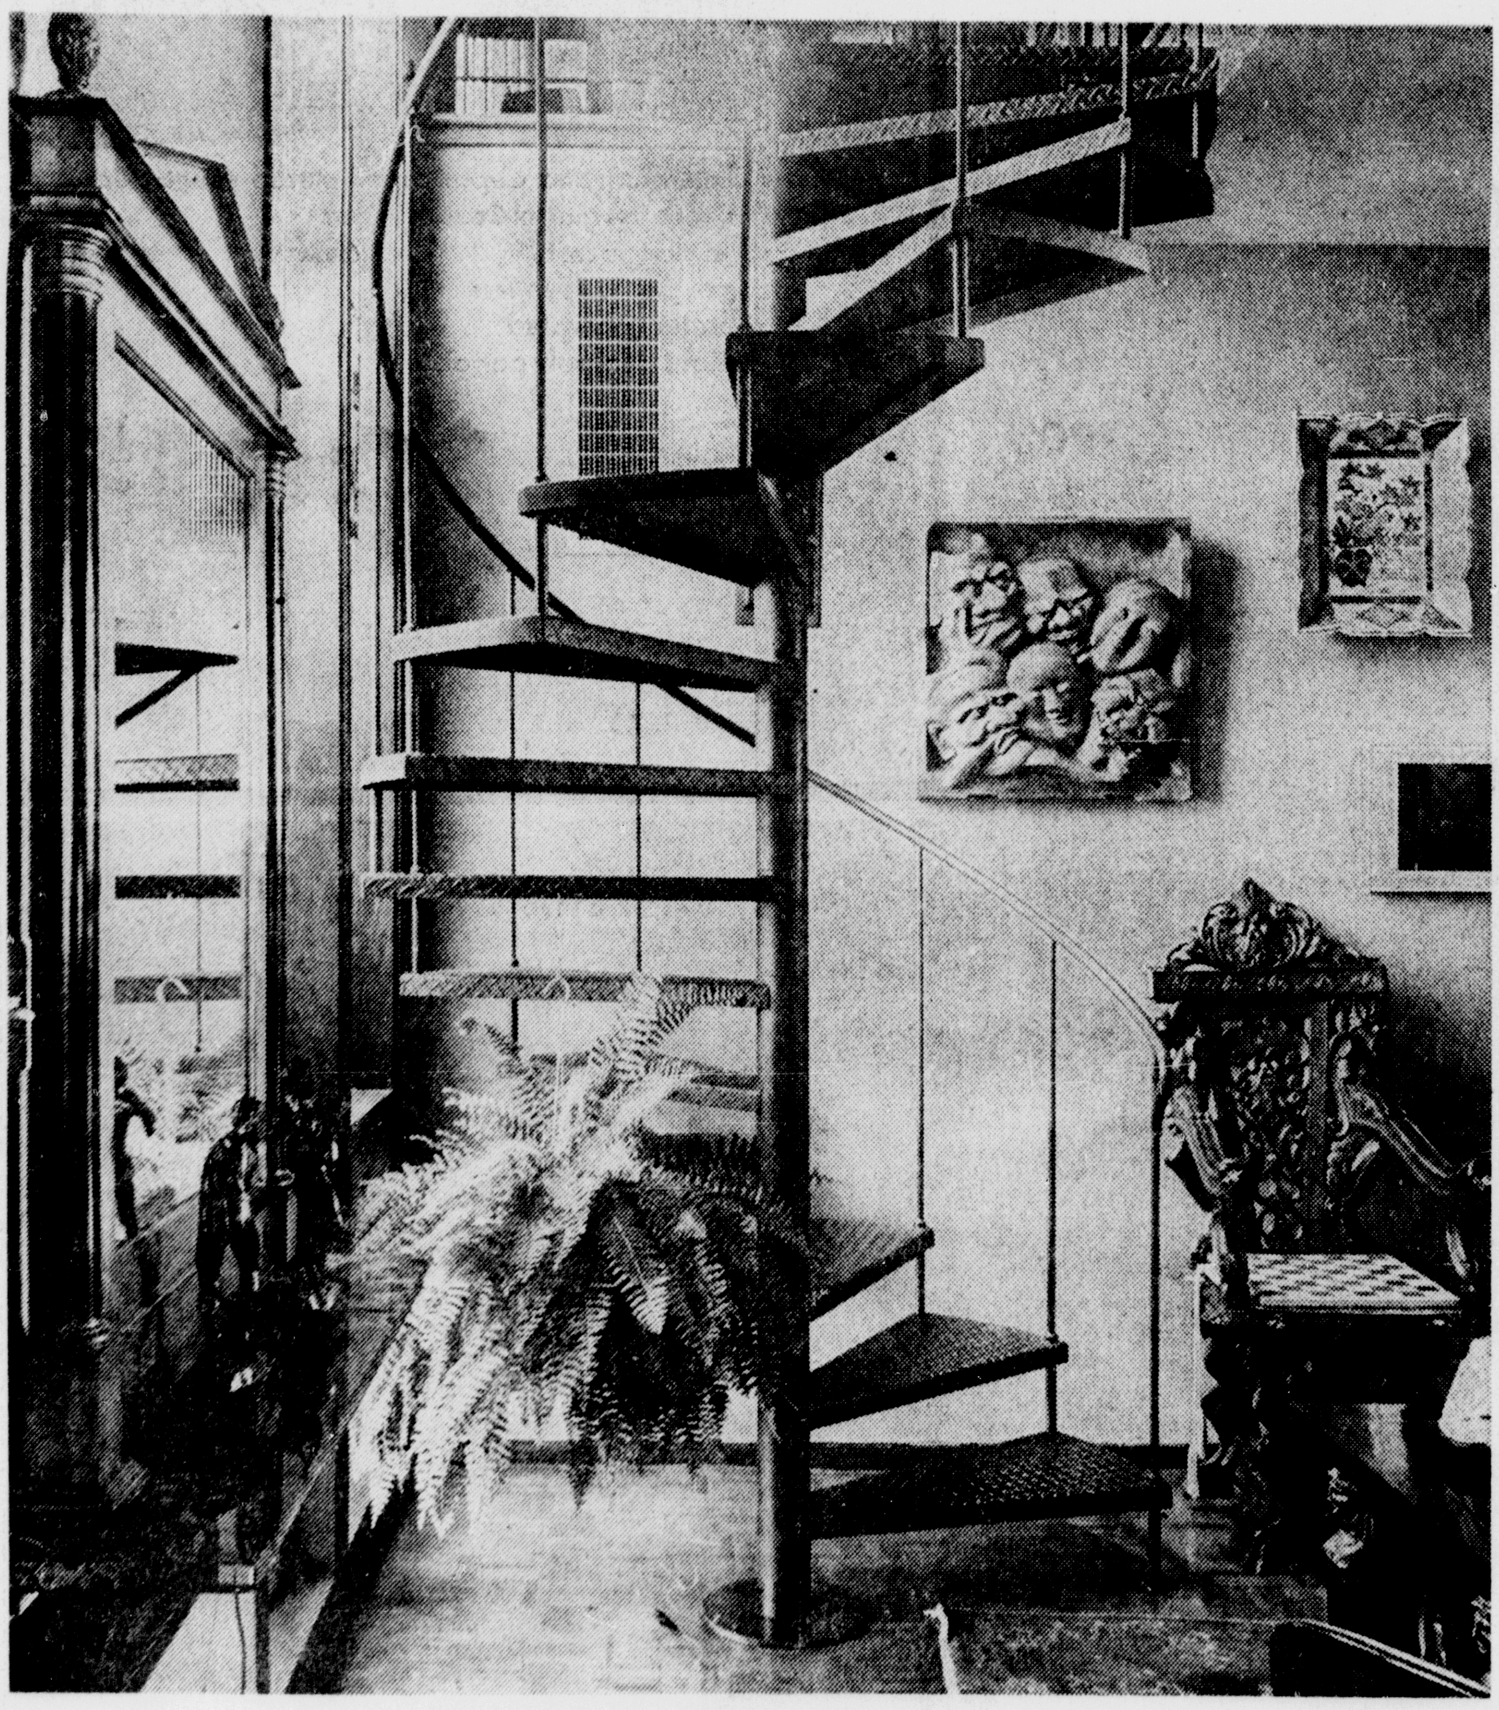
SECTION TWO



REDESIGNED HOME ON WOLFBACK RIDGE

When architect Mario Corbett designed his home at 21 Wolfback Ridge, Sausalito in 1947, this area was a bedroom. Subsequent and present owner Jack F. Howland, an interior designer, enlarged the house and converted it to a dining room. Table is his own creation — a 350-pound slab of three-quarter inch beveled plate glass on brass sawhorses. Wooded garden is shown through the rear window.



UPPER LEVEL ADDED — Interior designer Howland had a master bedroom and sitting room built on the second floor. It was made accessible by this circular wrought iron stairway constructed by Victor Iron Works in San Rafael. The house is furnished with many period pieces, including Empire mirror at the left.

Mastics Have Added Importance In Homes

The use of these organic adhesives, also known as "mastics," is largely a development of the past 15 years. Because they are packaged in ready-to-use form and no further addition of liquid is required, they are not called mortars, although their bonding function is the same as conventional portland cement mortar or dry-set mortar.

Organic adhesives are suitable for installing tile on floors, walls and counters where surfaces are appropriate and properly prepared. In every case the manufacturer's directions should be followed.

Appropriate surfaces are concrete, gypsum plaster, cement asbestos board, wood and plywood, brick, ceramic tile and marble. Local trade practices and climate conditions can affect the acceptability of some of these backings.

Adhesives are not generally suitable for swimming pool or exterior installation. They can be used satisfactorily on shower and other wet area walls only if the backing is suitably prepared to protect it from moisture.

Adhesives are applied in one thin layer with notched trowel. Priming is recommended for many surfaces. Where leveling or truing is required, an underlayment is used.

Economical and easy to use, organic adhesives have added greatly to the practicability of using tile in the home.

There is a special type of paint for putting a frost on glass. It is translucent.

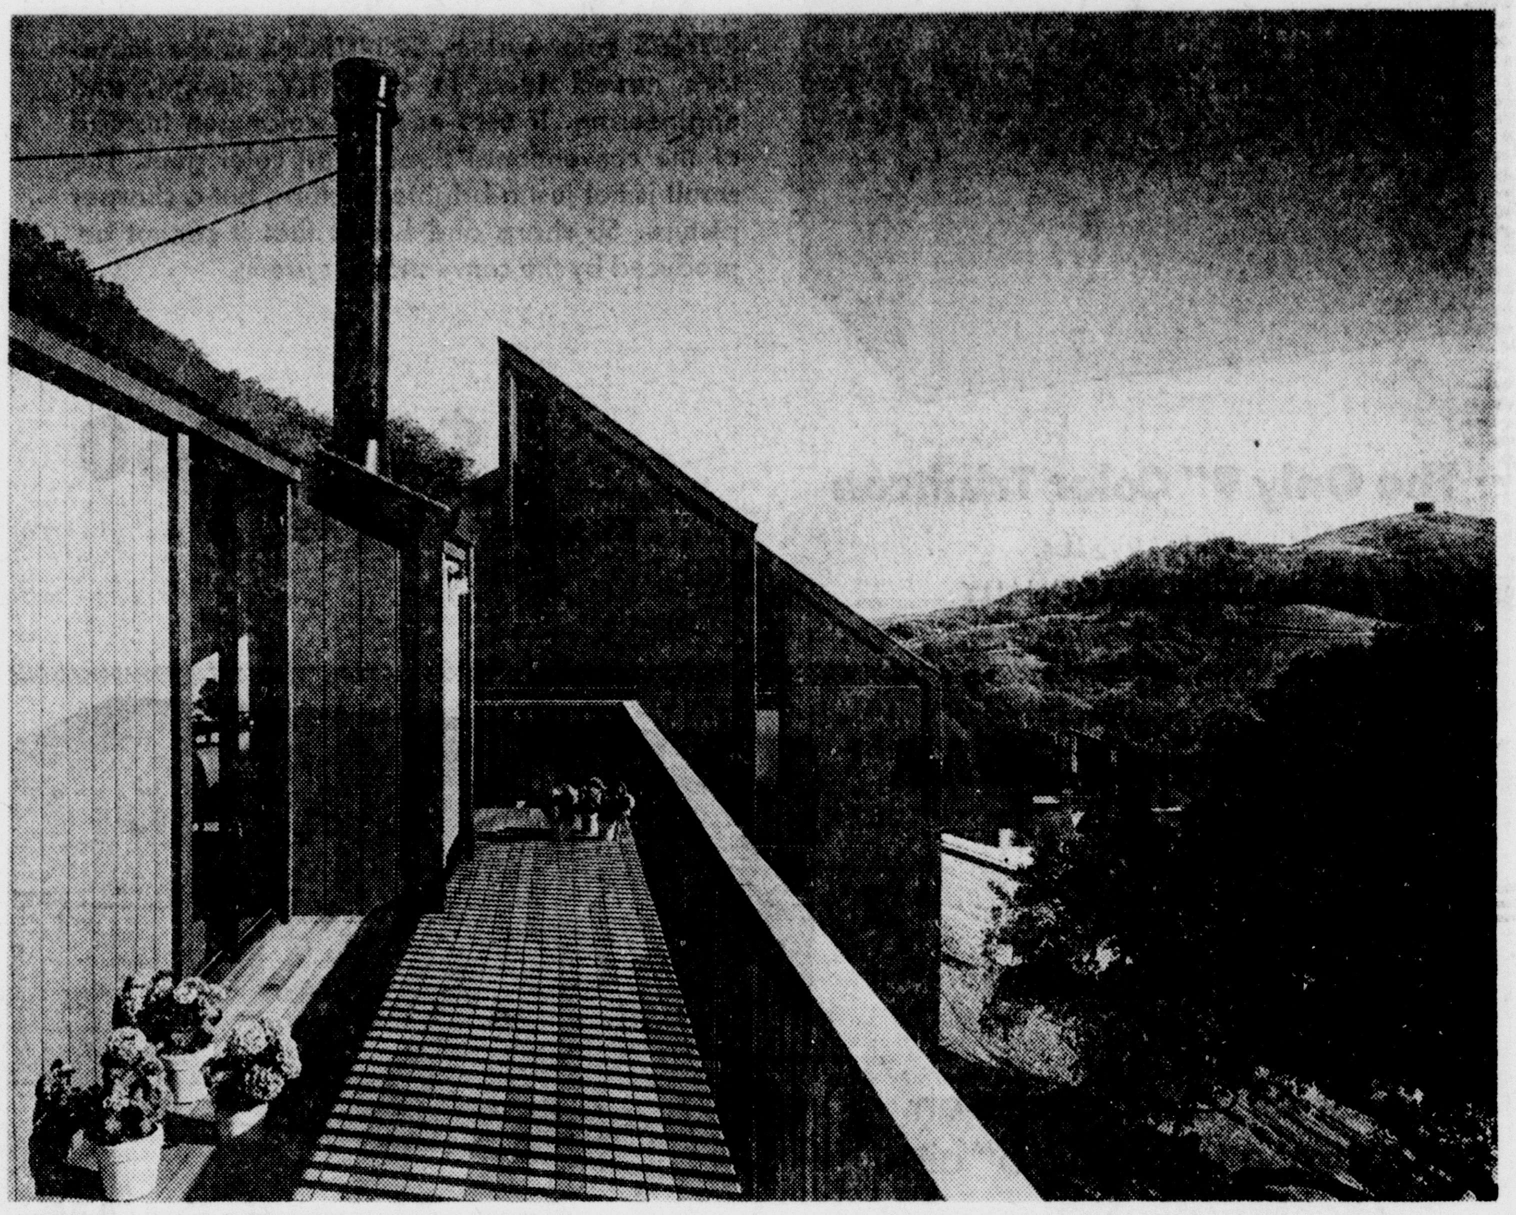
NEW DEVELOPMENT FOR COMMUTERS

Marin View, a 114-acre development of the Allan-Marin Co., located on Tennessee Valley Road, Mill Valley, one-half mile from Highway 101, is spread over partly wooded, hilly land, with sweeping views of the bay and valley. Model homes have been designed by Fisher-Friedman Associates and are open for inspection. It is said to be ideally situated for commuters, with normal driving time of 22 minutes from downtown San Francisco.



HOUSE OF MANY DESIGNS — Houses at Marin View differ considerably in sizes and shapes — from a one-level building to three-story homes, to fit the contours of the sites and blend with the individual settings. Decks are oriented to take advantage of the many views offered.

Decorative Paneling Is Not Too Expensive

There's a wide selection of plastic-faced materials on the market for those who are willing to spend a little more to get decorative faces on their paneling.

Hardboards with plastic coatings, for example, have been increasingly in popularity with do-it-yourselfers. Even the old standby, gypsum wallboard, can be obtained with a vinyl plastic surface.

The special gypsum wallboard panels can be applied in one of two basic methods. The first is with special nails, which go through the panels directly into the studs, furring strips of other surface which will firmly grip the nails. The second is by cementing to solid existing walls, a procedure not recommended for application to wood framing or masonry.

If the panels are to be part of a new wall construction, in which the studs will be 16 inches apart of center, a single 48" panel can be placed across the studding. But if the studs are not perfectly aligned, 1" by 2" furring stips should be nailed horizontally over the framework, with the panels attached to the strips.

Over masonry of broken plaster surfaces, the furring strips are a must, but they should be anchored to the wall using any one of serveraly anchor clips on the market. Concrete stub nails also may be used. In some cases, it is advisable to build new wooden framing a few inches away from the wall at some future time — to repair a pipe leak, for instance — it is wise to make the distance between the masonry and the new wall at least 4' and preferably more. Admittedly, this can't always be done because of the limitations it places on the size of the room. The larger the space behind the wall, the smaller the space in the room itself.

BUILT FOR ALL WEATHER

This house designed by Hal Weiss and built by 20th Century Homes for Toby and Joan Perry sits on a stark, barren lot on the lagoon at Peacock Gap. The front buttresses the winds from San Francisco Bay, while the rear opens toward the leeward side, overlooking the fairway of the Peacock Gap Golf Course.

Relocation Of The Home Laundry A Good Brightner

One of the most looked-forward-to changes in modern homes has been the relocation of the laundry.

Thanks to the ease of installation and attractive styling of flameless electric washers and dryers, the home laundry can be placed where most dirty clothing or linen accumulates — near the bathrooms, bedrooms or kitchens.

Laundry areas near bedrooms are especially popular in modern homes because of the heavy use of clothing and linens in sleeping and dressing locations.

And with many of today's homes being built on two or more levels, smart homemakers are planning a second laundry area at a handy place in the home to save lugging loads of laundry up and down stairs to wash and dry them and return them to the point of use.

It's especially easy to have your laundry area (or areas) exactly where you want it when you use flameless electricity to wash and dry your clothes.

Because electric clothes dryers don't dry clothes with a flame, there is no need for a special flue to carry off the products of combustion. And whereas a flametype dryer requires two connections to operate it — one for the fuel and one for electricity, a flameless electric dryer needs only one.

Yellowstone National Park extends into three states, Wyoming, Montana and Idaho.

PLAN BABY'S CLOSET

Don't overlook the closet when re-doing a room for a new baby. Plan it with the future in mind. Include such features as adjustable shelves and double clothes bars that will allow for growth. By lining the closet with aromatic red cedar you can provide moth-free protection for a growing child's sweaters, suits and other woolen garments later.

FURNITURE THAT STAYS

Wall-hung furniture which makes maximum use of space is so easily adjustable that it takes only minutes to raise or lower shelves, cabinets, tables or desk tops and will serve from toddler to adult age. It is available in modular units and an array of decorator finishes at Interior Systems, Northgate Mall.

Home Bar Great In Living Room

A home bar is a great convenience in the living room or dining room and can probably be built in with a little ingenuity, despite seeming space limitations.

The advantages of a bar in these rooms is that it eliminates traffic back and forth to the kitchen, simplifies bartending chores and supplies a good central place to store beverages.

When possible, of course, running water and a sink will increase the convenience of the bar. Stanproof and waterproof materials like ceramic tile on counters, floors or nearby walls will remove worries about spilling damage.

If there is a convenient closet, or enough space to build one, a shallow pantry-like arrangement with double doors that open out can supply space for shelves, drawers and counter.

Building a room divider with enough width for a counter and storage space above and below may eliminate a room layout problem as well as create a bar.

A peninsular counter with storage cabinets underneath can also make a very handy bar between a living room and dining area.

Roof Area

The roof area of your home determines the size of gutters and downspouts to be used. One square inch of pipe for every 100 square feet of roof area to be drained is the formula used by most contractors.

Liquid Foam New Method To Insulate

Urethane foam, formed by a "batter" of various chemical substances, is poured into walls and doors of some refrigerator-freezers. Within seconds, the foam fills out the spaces between inner and outer walls and hardens into a light, rigid mass.

Because urethane foam is highly effective as an insulator and takes considerably less room than other insulating materials, refrigerator-freezers can be built with thinner walls that provide more interior space for food storage in the same size box.

Best Times To Remove Paint

When painting a window sash or the putty around the glass, it it difficult to avoid getting a few paint spatters on the pane.

There are two correct times to remove those spatters—when the paint is still fresh or when it is hard. Keep a clean cloth handy to wipe off any paint at once. But if you do not take this step immediately — or if the paint is too cloes to soft putty to risk wiping it off—wait a day or two. It then is easy to scrape off with a single-edged razor blade or one of those handled tools into which a blade is inserted.

When the paint spatter is partly dry, it smears and doesn't come off easily with either a cloth or a razor blade.

NEW HOME AT TERRA LINDA HIGHLANDS

View sites like this are common at Terra Linda Highlands, where Kenney Homes, Inc., has 113 lots. All utilities are underground. Most houses have decks for outdoor living. Four new model homes are planned for an early showing.

New Pitches By Carpet Industry

The carpet industry is wooing the do-it-yourselfer in a big way. The reason is sky-rocketing installation which has added $1.50 a yard or more to the final cost.

On small jobs, such as kitchens or bathrooms, installers often demand a minimum fee in excess of this per yard rate. This makes amateur carpet instalation desirable, but it has been quite a task for an inexperienced worker.

The problem with installing conventional wall-to-wall is the stretching. Wooden lathes studded with sharp tacks that go right through the wood are nailed around the perimeter of the room, with the tack points up. The carpet is then stretched and hooked over these tacks. This holds the carpet firmly in place and prevents ripples or shifting. The stretching is hard work.

Separate underlay is necessary too, and the carpet must be rolled out over the underlay without bunching and wrinkles.

A new variety of carpet with a built-in, high density latex foam rubber backing is available. There is no separate underlay because of the built-in backing. The heavy rubber backing gives the carpet great dimensional stability, which means it won't stretch or pucker. When unrolled, it simply lies flat. And tack strips are not needed at all. Instead, double faced carpet tape is used.

The high density foam was first used on contract carpet for hotels and other commercial uses. It reached the home handyman first on carpet tiles, and now comes on a wide assortment of carpet styles, widths, fibers and constructions.

Kitchen carpets often have the foam backing, and a few high pile carpets with built-in backing suitable for living rooms have been marketed with success. More and more of these styles will be in stores soon.

To install these carpets, they are unrolled and cut to fit around obstructions with scissors or a razor blade knife. They will not unravel, so edges do not need binding. At doorways, a strip of carpet metal is used, and around the edges and at seams, double-faced tape is used. No stretching is required, but a carpet stretcher is useful for maneuvering the carpet into the final position.

Water Control

A chemical preservative that controls water absorption is making modern wood windows operate better and last longer.

The preservative is factory-applied to all stock ponderosa pine windows. Wood sash and frame thus impregnated will not warp, swell or shrink, and are made completely resistant to termites, dry rot and decay.

Asbestos Is Still Widely Used Fiber

Much to-do has been made over the wonders of synthetic fibers, but one of the most versatile and widely used fibers today is still nature's own asbestos. Fireproof asbestos has been known and used by man as far back as Biblical days.

Asbestos is obtained from a fibrous type of rock formed thousands of years ago far below the earth's surface. Exactly how it was formed is still a mystery.

Extensive outcroppings of this rock found in Africa, Canada and Russia are mined and milled to obtain the fibers. These fibers are formed into cloth, rope, tape, sheets, powders and braids.

The outstanding quality of asbestos is its ability to withstand intense heat and yet retain its strength. Asbestos fibers are used to reinforce plastic and other materials when greater resistance to heat and impact are required of them.

Asbestos is also used as insulation in many electric appliances and in electric power supply cords; in mail bags, table pads, auto brake linings, and many other products.

Why should you consider a decorating shop for furniture?
Because when you buy a sofa there are 2.475.960 possibilities to select from. How did we arrive at this figure?
There are 235 styles of sofas available to us, each one in an average of 4 sizes, which makes 4 x 235 or 940.
Each one of these comes in 439 possible fabrics in an average of 6 colors, which makes 439 x 6 x 940 or 2.475.960.
You may call us at 454-4870 for our free estimates and suggestions and benefit from our experience. The sofa will cost you no more than elsewhere!

POWDER ROOM EASY TO MODERNIZE

Well chosen accessories create an interesting Roman theme in this powder room. Vertical lines between the plastic-finished hardboard plans give a feeling of spaciousness with a relatively low ceiling. The same material but in a marble pattern was used for the countertop.

Good Fence Makes Sense These Days

A good fence makes good sense, in terms of creating a feeling or privacy, visually defining property lines, and adding a design dimension to the homesite.

Fences help integrate the relationship of house to lot, and contribute much to the landscape planning and the overall architectural scheme.

For the new house, fencing and patio screens or walls immediately take away the awkward "unfinished" look new houses have until landscaping is completed. And if your house looks too similar to those next door, distinctive fencing will make it stand out as individual.

There are many functions that a fence can serve, as definition of lot lines and yard areas, as a background for planting, to shut out sun and wind. For wind and sun, fence design directly affects the temperature you feel. The sun will feel warmer, for example, if the fence screens the wind.

For wind control, a solid fence is only one third as efficient in protecting against high winds as a slat fence. This is because a solid fence creates a wave of air that splashes over the fence, whereas a slat fence diffuses, or filters, the stream of air.

Solid fences erected to provide privacy can deflect the wind better if a slanting baffle is added to the top to force air to flow over the fence in a gentle arc.

Hard Water Costly Item

Any homemaker will tell you that hard water means hard work. But it also costs you money. Here are some of the reasons:

You have to use more soap to do your dishes, laundry or general cleaning. You need more hot water to get rid of loosened dirt. Even then, your dishes are likely to have a film and your clothes and floors an off-color, dull look. Soap, water and the cost of heating the water all drain dollars from the budget.

Hard water leaves a scaly deposit in pipe and water-using equipment and shortens their useful life.

The only way to eliminate hardness in water once and for all, is to remove it with an automatic softener before the water enters the piping system.

In the modern unit, the water flows through a tank where a chemical removes the hardening materials. As the chemical becomes saturated, it's automatically regenerated. The equipment is easy to install and is virtually maintenance-free.

PANELING COMPLEMENTS FURNISHINGS

A wall of warm walnut plywood complements a room furnished with ultra-contemporary pieces and can be installed by most do-it-yourself enthusiasts. It is economical and easy to maintain. A raised platform in this family room, covered with tiles squares, lends additional interest to the arrangement of furniture.

Kitchen Holds Many Utensils

Remember, today's kitchen has to hold from 85 to 110 utensils of all shapes and sizes. Don't skimp on cabinet and counter space!

Ample countertop work space and appropriate cabinet storage should be located near the food preparation, cooking and clean-up centers of the kitchen.

Make sure doors and drawers of cabinets and appliances don't block traffic aisles when they are open.

RESIDENTIAL AND LIFE CARE COMPLEX

The 12-story Tamalpais is a dramatic feature of the Marin landscape near Greenbrae. Residents pay an entry fee based on the size of the unit and a monthly maintenance fee which entitles them to apartment, three meals daily, weekly maid service, hospitalization and most medical and physicians' fees for life.

FULL BEDROOM — Tamalpais units range from studio and alcove apartments to one and two-bedroom residences. Each is equipped with a kitchenette, carpeting, draperies and large closets. Emergency switches enable a resident to summon nurses at any time.

Minimum Costs For Keeping Cool

There are several things that can be done to assure the cooling performance of a room air conditioner at a minimum of cost. Here's a check list:

1. Replace and clean the return air filter regularly. It should be inspected frequently and cleaned when necessary.

2. Select the thermostat setting that is most comfortable for your needs and try to avoid frequent setting changes and on-and-off operation. The result will be stable and constant comfort.

3. Where applicable, use the fresh air and exhaust vents on "open" only when you want to remove heavy smoke and extra stale air. Keep the vents closed at all other times. Otherwise, cool air will be wasted by loss to the outside.

4. By operating the fan only, you can use the air conditioner as a clean air circulator even in mild or cold weather. In this way the unit will filter and recirculate the air.

5. For maximum efficiency, the condenser coil at the rear of the unit outside the house should be cleaned before the start of every season. You can do this yourself with some units. With others, it may be necessary to call a serviceman.

6. Outside air leaks should be prevented at all time. Make sure the window mounting kit is installed and sealed properly. A tightly sealed unit will prevent drafts and operate more efficiently. Also, keep your unit protected during the winter. Some have built-in weather seals and automatically prevent leakage. With others, you may need a special protective covering.

Most air conditioners today have permanently-lubricated motor bearings and do not need maintenance. However, says a major air conditioning manufacturer (Chrysler Airtemp), you can avoid trouble by checking your operator's manual and following the instructions.

It's quicker and easier to achieve a level suspended ceiling when you use chains to adjust metal grids and runners to exact uniform heights.

Instead of wire, which must be bent and crimped, use either single jack chain or register chain.

All the grid runners must hang at a uniform level. Along the walls, a chalk line snapped at the desired level lets you attach the borders of the metal grid molding directly to the wall at the elevation you wish.

However, the main runners of the grid which extend out from the walls must also be leveled. So must the metal cross tees between runners. It is easy to make the precise adjustments necessary if you use chain.

AC or alternating current means that the current flows first one way through the circuit, then the other way. DC or direct current flows only in one direction.

Question Of Remodeling, Home Value

Although many home owners have found that household improvements protect and extend the long-term value of their property, such projects don't always achieve that effect.

Some improvements tend to increase the value of a home more than others. Adding a third bedroom to a two-bedroom house surely enhances the worth of the structure. But adding a sixth bedroom to a five-bedroom house might very well contribute less value to the property than the cost of the addition.

Similarly, improvements made to accommodate unusual taste or unique family circumstances may be of no advantage at all when the time comes to sell. In fact, remodeling projects that reflect highly individualized personal preferences can, in many instances, actually detract from the value of the property.

Contractors who specialize in remodeling point out that converting an untidy, catch-all basement into a family entertainment center is one of the soundest home-improvement investments any family can make.

But investigate before you invest in order to be sure that all of your basement space works for you. Mistakes can be costly, and one of the most expensive errors a homeowner can make is to maintain a massive, outdated heating unit in his basement. The space that an old-fashioned, bulky furnace or boiler squanders can be measured in dollars and cents, since space is money.

Some modern boilers and furnaces are exceptionally compact. Many gas units are no bigger than a two or three-drawer filing cabinet. And they needn't be confined to the basement, but can be installed in a closet, kitchen, alcove, attic or laundry room — almost any inconspicuous place. Thus, the entire basement can be devoted to recreation or entertainment facilities for whole-family use.

It is important to decide exactly what you are trying to accomplish. Make a list of the things you want done, and be sure that your ideas are workable. Check building codes and other restrictions, and find out if your home's construction will permit the changes.

Next, draw a simple floor plan on graph paper, sketch your furniture in scale and clip out those pieces. As you make your layout keep in mind open traffic areas, a center of interest, conversation groupings, storage space and adequate lighting.

If you are having the job done professionally, be sure that your contractor is qualified by inquiring about other jobs he has done.

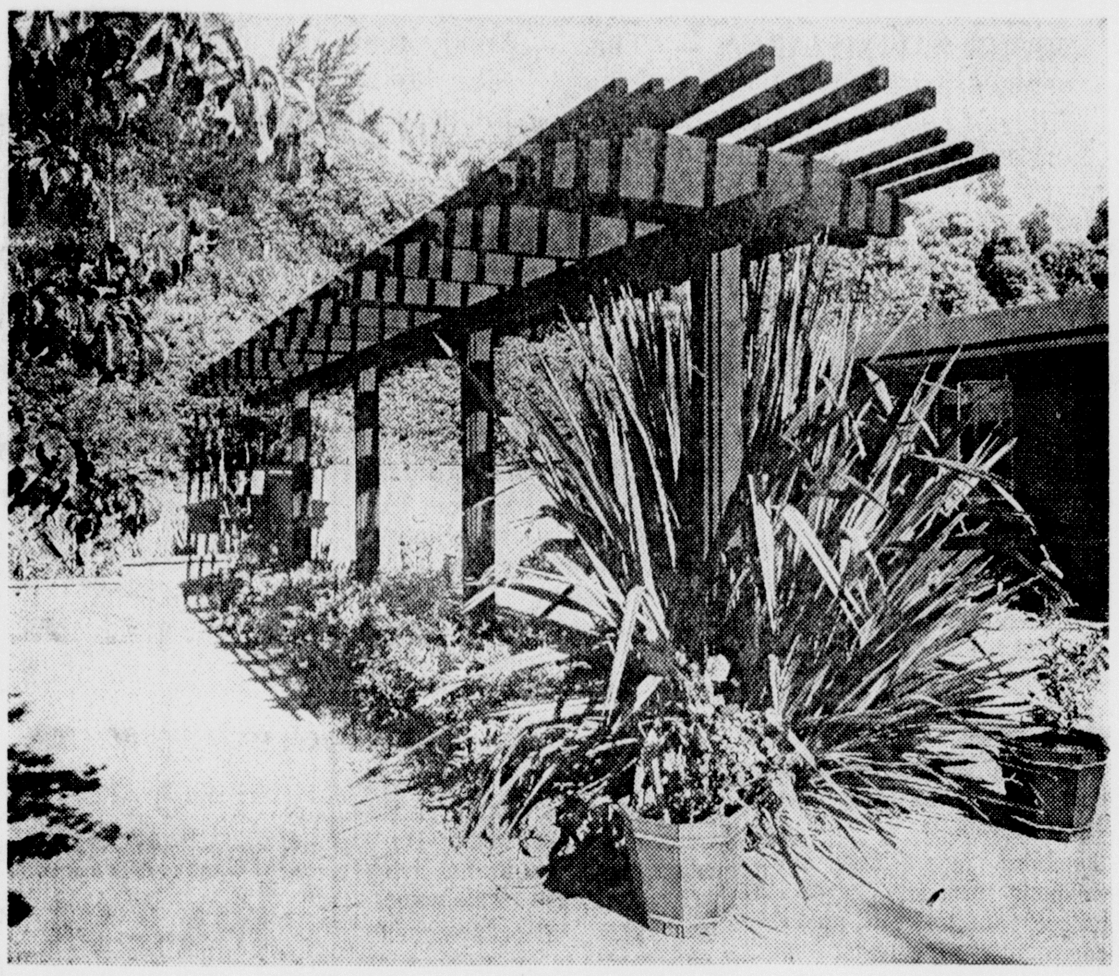
ALL IMPORTANT FENCING

Security for small children at this pool of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tully, designed by landscape architect Henry Cole, is provided by a simple redwood and wire mesh fence. Posts are from three-by-three-inch stock, with the cap shaped from a three-by-six.



RELIEVES SPACE MONOTONY

Entrance Foyer—Key To Mood

The first impression of the inside of your home comes from the atmosphere of your entry or foyer. Is is warm and welcoming, graciously elegant, or coolly aloof? The foyer announces the decor of the home. Is it French Provincial, modern or Mediterranean?

Since most entries are small in size, their planning is difficult, particularly because their emotional impact is great. A few carefully selected pieces of furniture, some prized posession a handsome painting or piece of sculpture, can set the mood for your entire home.

The home owner should plan his choice of lighting with great care, since a handsome chandelier or pendant demands no floor space, yet casts a hospitable glow over the entire entry, as well as illuminating the faces of visitors and guests. Lighting fixtures are now both massive and miniscule, scaled to varying rooms and needs. And the choice of styles ranges from shimmering crystal to traditional brass to wrought iron.

A tiny foyer with no floor area for furniture can be dramatic, if walls are white, carpeting or floor tile is white, and if one adds ceiling beams of polished wood, and displays an antique carved figure on a shelf directly opposite the door. You can light the entry with a wrought-iron lantern to complement the setting of the adjoining room — a book-lined Mediterranean study.

As you can plan the design of your entry, there are certain questions that must be considered:

1. What is the total "environmental theme" of your home?

2. What kind of lighting would most suit the setting?

3. What is the decor of the adjacent rooms visible from the foyer?

4. Is there floor space for furniture? If so, how much?

5. What kind of flooring — rugs, carpeting, or tile — would be most practical and appropriate?

6. How can your foyer be personal? Do you have a prized collection of shells, an exotic piece of sculpture, or handsome prints or paintings which could be artfully framed and arranged?

If your home is Louis XIV-in-look," accent this in the entry by covering the walls with a gay provincial fabric, wide wood paneling, or simulated brick tile or wallpaper. In this setting, color is important — either the cheerful sun colors, warm earth tones, or cooling shades of green or blue. A curving burnished brass or copper chandelier will add the glow of candlelight to your rustic setting, which might be furnished with an Early American chest or Hitchcock bench.

Paper the entry in a Versailles print wallpaper or mural, and set a delicately shaped white console opposite the door. Above the console, place a gilt-framed mirror, reflecting both your guests, and the glitter of a small crystal chandelier.

Chandeliers and wall fixtures used to be considered primarily for elaborate homes, and used chiefly in dining rooms as a decorative accent. This is no longer the case. Lighting has finally come into its own as an architectural tool. Its ability to create atmosphere, emphaxize colors and fabrics, and add drama to any setting has been long overlooked by the average home owner and apartment dweller. Now, as consumers become more sophisticated and better-educated, they appreciate the beauty of light as a catalyst, and as a decorative object in itself.

in apartments as well as modest residences, and hung in rooms which were never fixture-lit before, such as entries, bedrooms, baths, and breakfast nooks. Part of this growth is due to the widely varied selection of fixtures now available on the consumer market in an ever-increasing variety of styles and sizes, appropriate to any decor.

Lighting should be varied throughout the home: brightly welcoming in the entry, softer in a study but with pools of "task lighting" for reading, and adjustable in a living or dining room — where the light should vary, through dimmers, from gay intensity to quiet intimacy, for relaxing conversation. We respond to light more than we realize, and can feel happy or depressed because of it. This is why your entry lighting is so important. It is the initial greeting of your home to your guests, and should be a cheerful one, expressing welcome.

FRAMES MOUNT TAMALPAIS — Like many other Greenbrae Marina homes, the Maltzahn house is located on the lagoon. But visible through the railing may be seen its own swimming pool. Tam as seen from this outdoor living area and dining room is Marin's favorite landscape subject.

HIGH ENTRANCE FOYER

More conspicuous from the outside than from the inside is the 22-foot entrance foyer in this home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Maltzahn. Designed by Leonard Fisher and built by Edward W. Burgar, Inc., it occupies one of 260 homesites at Greenbrae Marina. It has eight rooms and contains 3,200 square feet. (Independent-Journal photos)

The Garage Is Often Neglected

Many homeowners provide for adequate roof drainage and rain carrying equipment on their houses, but neglect to give this much needed protection to their garage. Yet the garage is one place where flowers and srhubs are usually planted and which should be protected from the force of water off the roof.

Water that falls eight feet or so has a sharp cutting action on the soil and on plantings. The answer of course is to provide properly installed gutters and downspouts to carry water away from the immediate vicinity of the building. This prevents costly rotting of the lower boards on the garage, peeling of paint from excess moisture and weakening of the garage foundation from undercuting by the action of the water.

Factory painted gutters and downspouts are now available that also reduce maintenance and improve the appearance of his garage.

Even Lightly Talented Can Make Repairs

For the uninitiated, a "handyman's special" is a house with sound structure, plumbing and heating systems, but with floors, ceilings or walls in such bad shape as to cut the asking price sharply. The substantial money saved on labor can be used for other improvements.

The homeowner's demand for easily installed ceiling materials, wall paneling and floor coverings and, therefore, labor-saving economy, is keeping pace with the inflationary trend.

Just about anyone can install a modern acoustical ceiling or put up handsome wall paneling with adhesive, small nails or molding; and now it's even possible to install quality sheet vinyl flooring on a do-it-yourself basis.

In a sturdy but rundown old house, a new kitchen floor is usually inevitable and probably the need is urgent because it's where the homemaker does most of her daily work. A good vinyl floor in the part of the basement away from the heating plant adds instant living space — and cash resale value.

The new "floor-it-yourself" development is a 12-foot-wide cushioned vinyl sheet material that can be "loose-laid" with no adhesive, wall to wall, using quarter-round molding or cove base around the perimeter. The flooring is usually flexible and trims easily with a linoleum knife or heavy shears. It can be put down over old floor covering or any other surface, including concrete in a basement, for which some types of traditional floorings are unsuitable.

Apartments Going To Suburbia

There is a new skyline in suburbia. Apartment houses are leaving the cities and going to the country.

The exodus from the cities has brought a startling change to the suburbs. No part of the country has felt a greater impact in population. To occommodate all of the new suburbanites, builders are putting up large apartment house complexes.

The tenants of these apartment houses are often either very young or at the retirement age. The young people are the so-called "swinging singles" and newly married couples. Both age groups have some things in common, primarily free time.

Suburban apartments offer many convenience features which are almost impossible to find in city apartments — things such as ample parking facilities and outdoor swimming pools. On the other hand, the suburban apartment will retain the comfort features which are offered in most metropolitan luxury apartments.

Planning a first floor powder or mud room? If so, it will pay you to buy top-quality fixtures that can take extra hard use and require minimum maintenance.

Points On How To Trim Cooling Costs

The maximum in summer comfort with the minimum in operating costs will be attained in an air-conditioned home that has well insulated walls and roof and is shielded from the sun by trees and shrubs.

The key to efficiency and economy in air conditioning is keeping sun heat out of your home. Here are some of the things you can do to reduce the cost of keeping cool:

1. Make sure that the walls and roof of your home contain adequate insulation.
2. Locate exposed glass areas — windows or doors — on the south side of your home.
3. Plant deciduous trees on the east and west sides of your home.
4. Plant grass and shrubs around your house, particularly on the east and west.
5. If you can not shield the east and west sides of your home with trees, install awnings outside windows and doors, or locate your carport, garage, or porch here.
6. Paint the walls and roof of your home in light colors which will deflect sun rays.

FAT CARS DIE YOUNG!

But Volvos live to ripe old ages. Because Volvos are unfettered by fat.

They're trim. Yet they're designed to make good use of the space they take up.

That's why a Volvo's trunk holds more than a Lincoln's. And why a Volvo has more leg room in front than a Cadillac and more in the rear than a Buick.

So take a look at our Volvos. Driving a long-lasting, lean car can help put the fat where it belongs.

If you don't like your job...

Nobody likes to work at a dull, boring job, and that's exactly what the pool chlorination job is. Not too hard to do, but always there — waiting, demanding. You can't even go on a vacation without imposing on an understanding neighbor. If that's your situation, you don't own a pool. Your pool owns you.

There is one simple way out of this dilemma. Just quit! Let E-Z CLOR take care of the chemical chores automatically, 24 hours a day — even while you're on vacation. You'll never measure, pour, store or touch those supplies of chemicals again. All you do is insert the E-Z CLOR PAC in the automatic feeder and forget about chlorination for a month or more. Even at peak season, about one minute every month or six weeks and your job is done.

E-Z CLOR PACS are sealed canisters of compact, highly concentrated dry chlorine formulated especially for E-Z CLOR by Monsanto. Your pool gets a continuous feeding of this formula, assuring you the proper level of available chlorine, residual chlorine and pH balance. The combination of low-cost, concentrated chlorine and continuous feeding saves you money. In fact, E-Z CLOR pays for itself in no no time at all.

Even the installation is easy as pie. We'll install it, or you can do it yourself in less than 20 minutes. You don't have to change plumbing or electrical connections, and since E-Z CLOR has no moving parts, there is no maintenance. If you don't like that pool chlorination job, quit. E-Z CLOR works a lot cheaper than you do.

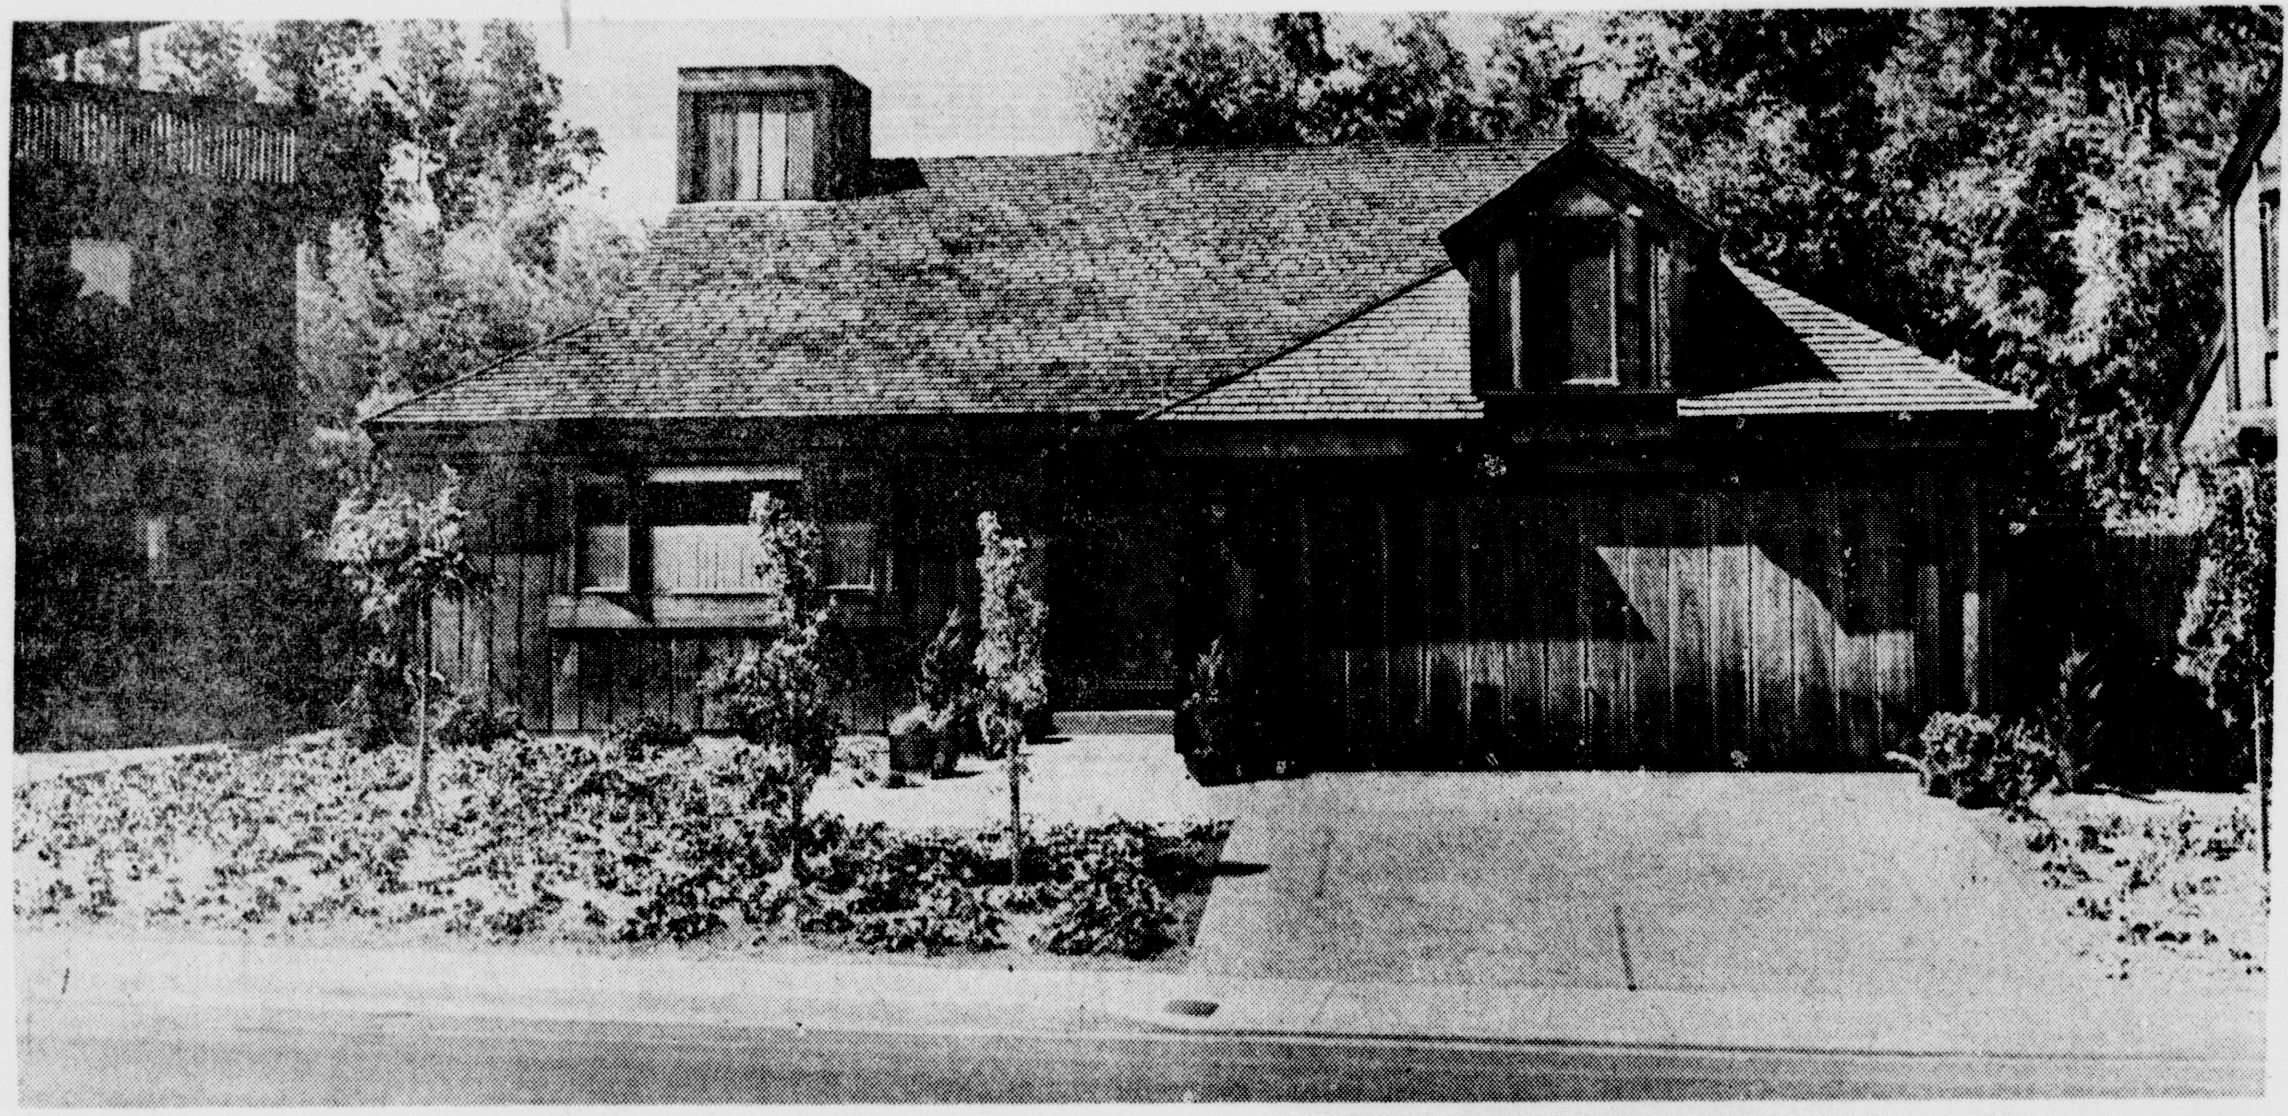
SHELTERED BY MOUNT TAM

The "hidden" Larkspur community that has been hard to find for more than two years has only a few sites remaining in its first two units. A third and final unit is in the planning stages. The Meadowood site was originally selected by the founder of the Niven Nursery as a perfect spot for raising orchids because of its sheltered location. Only one block from downtown Larkspur, it has previously had no direct access. Now a bridge has been constructed and connects Meadowood Drive with Ward Street. Brockmann Real Estate is the exclusive agent for the subdivision.



FEATURE NATURAL WOODS — Meadowood homes were designed by Reid and Drosihn and were built by Fred De Cook. Most have four bedrooms, spearate family rooms and full dining rooms and multiple baths, using natural cedar, redwood and birch.

Blenders Ideal For Gatherings

A complete party for teenagers can be planned around the electric blender for ice-cream drinks and non-stick electric giddle for hamburgers or grilled sandwiches. Have an electric slicing knife handy too for cutting bread thick or thin, as desired. The blender also stars in the sandwich spread and cocktail-dip department for more sophisticated parties.

Another unusual idea is based on the smokeless electric broiler of hibachi. Offer a choice of kabob ingredients: bite-size pieces of meat and seafood, plus cherry tomatoes, mushrooms, onions, olives, etc. Let guests assemble their own.

Status Of Single Family Dwellings

A wide difference of opinion regarding the future of the single-family house exists today.

Several influencing factors make it increasingly difficult to produce such housing within the budget limit of the middle income family.

The more affluent Americans will continue to be housed in large homes on large plots, or in luxury apartments. Poor Americans will be housed in subsidized housing. But what about the vast group called middle class?

At the core of the problem is the increasing cost of land. Inflation cannot be singled out as the prime cause, but rather a diminishing supply of desirable land areas.

The question posed by those who predict fewer one-family houses in the future is "Can we justify using so much of this scarce land, at such a high price, for single-family living unitc?"

To suggest that we should all be living in more densely populated structures can be compared with the suggestion that mass transportation completely replace the often single-occupied automobile.

For the foreseeable future, it appears that a very large number of home owners will prefer the advantages of the one-family house, despite its high initial cost and its upkeep responsibilities.

Although the establishment continues to use its homes as symbols of success and status, it also looks to the roof over its head as a link in a chain of security insurance for the future. If the next generation buys this concept, the single-family house will continue in its present form, at least in over-all structure.

There are indications, however, that younger people are unimpressed with the wealth of their parents and that the house of 1980 may therefore be designed with greater emphasis on livability and less on ostentation.

With a high intelligent quotient and a background of world travel, they will substitute items reflecting their culture for sales-oriented gadgets. They will want areas in their houses to display painting and sculpture, books and those items related to creative individual hobbies.

For the immediate 70s however, we will doubtless continue with the kinds and sizes of rooms as we now have them. But if present trends continue, there will be added at least two other rooms — a private den and a large sewing room. The den, a multi-purpose space, will be furnished with TV, stereo and taping equipment, contour chair, writing desk and book shelving. It will be located away from the family room as a hideaway for both husband and wife.

HIGH ABOVE TIBURON WITH MOUNT TAM VIEW

High on Vistazo West, Tiburon, is this eight-room home of Nivaldo Saraiva, which overlooks both San Francisco and Mount Tamalpais. Built of rustic redwood, it is listed with Kay Noah and Associates in Tiburon. The home built for a large family features several entrances, including one for the teen-age set.

LARGE FAMILY ROOM — Beautiful wood wall paneling and high beamed ceilings make this spacious corner of the Saraiva home a restful spot for relaxing. The house has five full bedrooms and several baths,

Air Can Be 'Processed'

Air is a commodity (and an increasingly precious one) that can be "processed" like any other commodity to increase its utility.

Our ability to "condition" air has increased rapidly in recent years. Not too long ago, heating was the only common way of processing air. Then along came the cooling of air in the summer, together with the control of humidity in hot weather. After that, we learned to add humidity to the air in the winter through use of humidifiers, and to cleanse the air inside the home with electronic filters.

Today, equipment to accomplish all these processes comes from a single industry — the air-conditioning industry — which makes it possible for nearly all families to enjoy the comfort and health advantages of conditioned air 12 months of the year.

Marin Is Ideal For Leisure-Time Loggers

With the cost of firewood rising, suburban homeowners who enjoy loafing around a living room fireplace are turning themselves into leisure-time loggers and going out to gather their own fuel.

Filling a car trunk with enough logs to make the foray into farm woodlot or distant construction site worthwhile, however, can be strenuous work if you're relying on a hand saw or Scout ax to do the cutting. To reduce the energy drain in wood hunting, many homeowners have turned to the chain saw.

Cutting firewood and clearing ground actually are the two main reasons property owners buy chain saws.

Though the power saw reduces the chore of cutting through a tree trunk to a few seconds' work, the Saturday morning lumberjack needs to learn a few things about firewood before he can cut himself off from his commercial wood supplier.

Many of these get-it-yourselfers cut whatever wood they can put their saws on, but the wiser fireplace keepers are more choosey, selecting some hardwood, such as oak, for its slow-buring qualities and blending it with quantities of birch, ash or maple, which produce a bright, lively flame but burn quickly.

He also concentrates on limbs about six inches thick, cuts them in lengths of about 18 inches and then splits them with an ax to help them dry out faster for better burning. A round, unsplit log can retain its moisture for years.
